

Increased Cost-Share Rates For Nutrient Mgmt. Plans Announced

Increased cost-share assistance is now available through the Maryland Agricultural Water Quality Cost Share Program (MACS) to farmers who hire a private certified consultant to prepare a nutrient management plan for their farm. Maryland secretary of agriculture Dr. Henry A. Virts announced recently.

"Maryland law requires nutrient management plans for all farms beginning Dec. 31, 2001," said Virts. "The new cost share rates are designed to help farmers offset the cost of hiring a nutrient management consultant, thus making it easier to comply with the law."

Under the new rate structure, MACS will reimburse eligible farmers for up to 87½ percent of the cost to hire a private, certified nutrient management consultant. A flat rate ceiling ranging from $3.20 to $6 an acre for traditional grain and animal operations and $15 to $20 an acre for vegetable or nursery operations applies. MACS has also established per-operation funding caps of $750 to $3,500, depending on the size, type and complexity of the operation.

The new rate structure supersedes the previous rate of 50 percent or up to $3 an acre, and is designed to make the program more attractive to a broader range of producers, including nursery and greenhouse operations. To further encourage participation, an earlier provision requiring immediate implementation of cost-shared nutrient management plans was removed.

Applications for cost-share funds must be submitted to MDA through the local soil conservation district and approved prior to plan completion. Applications will be approved on a "first come" basis. To meet eligibility criteria, nutrient management plans must include eligible farm acreage and be prepared by a non-government consultant who is certified and licensed by MDA. Nutrient management plans developed to meet permit requirements for land applications of sewage sludge are not eligible for cost-share assistance.

The Water Quality Improvement Act of 1998 requires that a nutrient management plan be written and implemented for all agricultural operations with gross annual incomes in excess of $2,500 or livestock operations with more than 8,000 pounds of live animal weight. Farmers using chemical fertilizers are required to have a nitrogen and phosphorus-based nutrient management plan by Dec. 31, 2001. These plans must be implemented by Dec. 31, 2002. Farmers applying animal manure or sewage sludge must have a nitrogen-based plan developed by Dec. 31, 2001, and implemented by Dec. 31, 2002. Development of a nitrogen and phosphorus-based plan is required by July 1, 2004, with implementation due by July 1, 2005.

Maryland Dairy Industry's Annual Meeting Planned

Maryland's $1 billion dairy industry will meet in Westminster on Nov. 30 to outline two important new concepts designed to help family dairy producers increase their profits and productivity. The Maryland Dairy Industry Association's (MDIA) 2000 annual meeting will feature "A Team Approach to Family Dairying," in addition to presenting a first "hands-on" computer training workshop to solve dairy problems through the National Dairy InfoBase.

Both presentations are scheduled for Thurs., Nov. 30, at Wilhelm's conference center on Md. Route 140, on the outskirts of Westminster.

Noted dairy experts Carl Theunis of Tinedale Farms, Kaukauna, Wis., and Dr. William Heald of Penn State University will team up to present a complete plan and demonstration on "A Team Approach to Family Dairying."

The innovative concept involves two segments: family team and professional team. Progressive dairy pro-

Clinton Signs $78 Billion Ag Appropriations Bill

National Farmers Union (NFU) thanked President Clinton for his expeditious signing of the FY 2001 $78 billion agriculture appropriations bill passed by Congress. While the bill contains important emergency, economic and production loss relief for agricultural producers, the family farmer and rancher organization continues to express concern about long-term issues that were not addressed by the 106th Congress.

"We are pleased that emergency relief is on its way to producers who have suffered greatly from weather and market conditions," said NFU president Leland Swenson. "Now that the president has signed the 2001 appropriations bill, the way is cleared to consider future farm policy needs. Leadership must be provided by the next Congress and administration to address escalating concentration and fair trade issues and to reform domestic farm policies."

Farmers Union continues its call for policy changes that will stem the economic crisis faced by producers through an adequate safety net, fair trade policies and actions to address the negative impact of concentration.

The farmer and rancher organization also is critical of the bill's severe limits on U.S. farmers' opportunities to trade with Cuba by restricting export funding and codifying travel restrictions to the island country.

"We need to restore fair and open markets for farmers," said Swenson. "We need to address the economic pressures that are devastating producers and creating crisis in rural communities. The structural problems that have led to the lowest farm prices in two decades must be changed by restoring fair, open and competitive markets for input needs, transportation, and domestic and international markets while providing producers with a meaningful and equitable economic safety net."

NFU Praises Congress For New Dairy Act

National Farmers Union (NFU) praised Congress for passing the Dairy Market Enhancement Act of 2000 that promotes accurate price reporting in the dairy processing industry. The legislation establishes a system by which important marketing information for dairy producers across the country is reported and improves the price and inventory reporting service of the U.S. Department of Agriculture (USDA).

"This timely legislation will ensure accurate and reliable market information on which dairy producers depend," said Wisconsin Farmers Union president Bill Brey, chairman of NFU's legislative committee.

"Recent inaccuracies in reporting have compromised a market in which dairy farmers cannot afford any margin for error. We applaud Congress for helping to restore confidence in America's dairy price reporting program."

The bill, sponsored by Sen. Russ Feingold, D-Wis.,

and Rep. Ron Kind, D-Wis., changes a voluntary and inconsistent reporting system that has been subject to error. Farmers Union has long pushed for this legislation, which will require reporting of dairy supply and price information. The bill states that price and supply information must be readily understandable by producers and other market participants. It also improves the price and supply reporting services of the USDA and encourages competition in the marketplace.

The need for this legislation was highlighted as a result of two reporting errors at dairy stock warehouses that greatly affected dairy prices.

"Accurate reporting of information will allow dairy farmers to make important decisions regarding their production operations," said Brey. "With readily available and understandable information, we can give producers a vital tool in seeking a fair price and the market a valuable tool in encouraging competition."

Weight Of Ready-To-Eat Poultry Down 7 Percent

A report from the National Ag Statistics Service (NASS) shows that poultry certified wholesome during September (ready-to-cook weight), totaled 2.81 billion pounds, down 7% from the amount certified in September 1999. Updated totals for August 2000 show that 3.29 billion pounds were certified.

The preliminary total live weight of poultry inspected during September 2000 was 3.79 billion pounds, down 7% from a year ago.

Inspections included 3.17 billion pounds of young chickens, 7% below last year; 66.1 million pounds of mature chickens, down 11%; 538 million pounds of turkeys, down 7%; and 12.9 million pounds of ducks, down 2% from September 1999.

Young chickens slaughtered during September 2000 averaged 4.98 pounds per bird, unchanged from September 1999. The average live weight of mature chickens was 5.38 pounds per bird, down 1% from a year ago. Turkeys slaughtered during September 2000 averaged 25.0 pounds per bird, down slightly from September 1999.

My View

From The Barn Door

by Bernice Kepple

There is no doubt that the whole political process and especially presidential elections are of extreme importance to farmers. We know that our future can be determined by who is in the White House and who has control of the House and Senate. As this column is being written Wednesday morning, the presidential race is still up in the air, with the results in four states still too close to count.

There are ways, though, that close elections have been predicted in the past and can be used again today to determine the probable winner so that political junkies (like my husband) can get back to work and quit worrying about the outcome.

Some of these predictions are taken very seriously. Last night CNN even interviewed a psychic when the station had dead space to fill. One method that has been used since the 1930s relies on the Washington Redskins football team to predict the president. As the story goes, if the Redskins lose the game played just prior to the election, the incumbent will also lose. This year they lost; would that mean that George W. will win? A prognosticating elephant living in the D.C. area back in the '70s was used to predict the winner of the game as well as the election. Unfortunately that animal has probably gone to the Great Beyond by now, but come to think of it, he may have been reincarnated as CNN's psychic.

Since 1952 voters in the state of Delaware have set an example for the rest of the country by choosing the president, and at no time in recent history has a candidate won if he didn't win in the states of California and New York.

This year the news media used the small town of Penn Hills near Pittsburgh as a "bell swing" community, thinking that because of the racial and economic diversity found there they could predict the outcome of the election. The outcome of "straw votes" taken in elementary school classrooms have also been used as predictions.

Across the country there have also been farmers who have found unusual ways to predict the election. Some Iowa farmers use corn futures to determine the winner, while cow patty bingo and the order (or a change in the order) in which cows come into the barn on election day are determining factors for some.

Here at The Republican our resident potato farmer says it's true that potatoes have a magical quality and they can be used to predict many important questions like a political election or the sex of an unborn child. There is no warranty offered, but you might want to give it a try. First, rub a medium-sized potato (the recommendation is that it should be a Montecroft Farms potato grown this election year) on your right elbow. After spinning around three times, toss it over your head. Now, if the potato lands with the largest number of eyes down, Al Gore will be the winner. If it lands with the largest number of eyes up, the "eyes of Texas are upon you," and George W. will be our next president!

I've had my own "psychic" experiences since stopping to vote in Deer Park on my way to work yesterday morning. I was the 13th person to place my vote at Deer Park. What does that mean for my candidate? Then last night after watching the election results on TV until very early in the morning, my "political junkie husband" went out to his shop to check the furnace before going to bed and discovered that our two donkeys had gotten out of the barn and were walking down the driveway. What does this mean? Were these two elderly statesmen going out to drum up more votes for the party they represent? Or, like the woolly bear caterpillar is used to predict winter weather, can the fact that these donkeys were out, possibly on their way to a celebration somewhere, mean a Democrat will win the election???? Who knows? It's kind of spooky, but stranger things have happened!

Ten Rules of Transition Management

The issue of family business generational transition is a major topic of discussion as farm businesses are positioning themselves. Growth is the number one reason businesses fail, and this is because of under-capitalization, inadequate preparation in human relations and communications, and insufficient income generation. Sixty percent of all farm and small businesses that enter bankruptcy were profitable in previous years. The following are some rules that are generally used in successful business transitions.

Rule 1: Revenue/Net Income

Bringing in a new partner takes an estimated $150,000 to $250,000 in gross revenue, or $40,000 to $70,000 of net profit, for a successful business transition. Violate this rule and you set yourself up for guerrilla warfare, where family members or partners fight over scarce resources (including net income) to meet their standard of living.

Rule 2: Three-to-Five-Year Rule

Agricultural business transitions are twice as likely to be successful when the family member or potential business partner works for someone else for three to five years. Allow them to make mistakes with someone else's money! A recent study found that the farm businesses that allowed entering partners to work for others for three to five years found their business to be four times more profitable. A college education is not part of this experience; however, military and summer work experiences are part of the experience base.

Rule 3: Six-Year Rule

If a new partner is brought into the business, make sure you allow him/her to move into management and decision-making within six years. Farms and businesses that fail to do so are twice as likely to have an unsuccessful business transition and are less profitable. The old adage is you either teach or share with the younger generation, or you destroy the business.

Rule 4: Ripple Effect

When making changes to a growing business, you should over-estimate capital needs by at least 25 percent to avoid being short on working capital due to unexpected costs. For example, if you need $200,000 to expand the business, then $250,000 should be estimated and used to determine whether or not the growth is financially feasible. It is also wise to over-estimate the time needed to complete the change by 25 percent.

Rule 5: Staying Too Long Rule

Many managers and owners stay too long before turning over the business. The optimal time for ownership and management of a business is 30 to 35 years. Owners and managers who fail to heed this rule run into the trap of continuing to do "business as usual" without changing for the times. In order for managers to maintain the cutting edge, they must either follow this rule or surround themselves with new members who will bring renewed energy and new resources into the business.

Rule 6: You Can't Treat All Children Equally, But You Can Treat Them Fairly and Equitably

One of the most profound challenges in estate planning and transition management for farm businesses today is what to do with children who move away from the business. Usually, they have little interest in the operation. When the parents die, the business interests of the children who have moved intensify because proceeds from the estate can be used to pay off mortgages or fund their children's college educations. The most successful transition plans have the business assets transferred to the child managing the business, and insurance policies to cover estate settlement costs and cash settlements for children who are not interested in the business. This strategy allows the children involved with the farm to continue to function without requiring them to buy out the non-farm children's shares, and also have sufficient cash to pay estate settlement taxes. This strategy is simple and objective.

Rule 7: Non-Business Spouse

An increasing challenge in businesses is incorporating the non-business spouse into the family and business management process. Many more families are finding this incorporation a challenge, as there are more non-business or non-agricultural spouses, and that spouse frequently does not understand erratic business schedules, time management, and prioritization problems that can occur. An operations agreement that includes time expectations, goals, responsibilities, and accountables can resolve many of these issues.

Rule 8: Getting Out of Business

A plan that covers dissolution of the business is critical in establishing a family business transition. Included is an operations agreement, a buy/sell agreement, and a time line for an orderly transition. Partners who are not willing to discuss these issues initially frequently find that getting out of business is more difficult than getting into business.

Rule 9: Transition Team

All businesses need to have a list of advisors or a transition team. This team includes a lender, a lawyer, an accountant, a financial planner, both spouses, and all partners. Annual team meetings with all members present are critical. Outside professionals need to be placed on retainer rather than on an hourly fee structure.

Rule 10: The Nike Principle

Just do it! The biggest concern with family business transition plans is procrastination. Day-to-day matters frequently take priority over the planning process. A transition plan often takes two to three years to formulate, and must be updated at least twice a decade.

AgrAbility Program Serves Farm Families Touched By Disability

The National AgrAbility Program serves farm and ranch families touched by disability. It's about breaking down barriers and breaking new ground. It is the practical expression of technology, tenacity and the willingness to try. As a philosophy, it represents the very ideals that define American agriculture. It is about supporting and promoting growth and independence. It is about no-limit thinking and the can-do spirit. Ultimately, it is about hope.

Agriculture is considered one of the most hazardous occupations in the United States. Farm accidents cause 850 deaths and 140,000 disabling injuries annually.

Farm families also cope with the same illnesses and infirmities that can beset any family. When a disability, injury or health condition strikes a farm family, everything changes. For the farmer, the desire to continue farming often remains constant. Recognizing that drive and the critical need for farmers, the National AgrAbility Project was established with approval of the 1990 Farm Bill.

The goal of AgrAbility is to inform, educate and assist farmers, farm workers and their families who have disabilities or health conditions so they can continue to pursue their agricultural occupations and lead successful and productive lives.

The staff of the Delmarva AgrAbility Project will assess agricultural work sites and tasks, make recommendations regarding farm equipment adaptation, and suggest home modifications.

AgrAbility can provide peer support from other farmers with disabilities and refer families to local service

Maryland Corn And Soybean Harvest Continues

Dry weather conditions prevailed for yet another week allowing for 7 days suitable for field work in Maryland, according to Ray Garibay, state statistician with the Maryland Ag Statistics Service. These conditions are favorable for harvesting; however, the process has slowed because of a lack of storage. Some area farmers have reported that elevators are full, and outside storage is becoming an alternative.

The slow corn harvesting trend continued this week with 84% harvested for grain, which is 4 percentage points behind the five-year average. Soybean harvesting activities are 61% complete, 2 percentage points above the five-year average.

Soil moisture levels continued to decline with the persistent dry weather trend in Maryland. Currently, both providers.

One farmer who has been helped by AgrAbility summed up his feelings by stating: "AgrAbility is willing to help you if you are willing to help yourself. It isn't for those who are ready to give up, but it's great for those who have it in their heart to keep farming." For more information, interested persons may call toll free 877-204-FARM.

Objective: Use technology to help farmers with disabilities to continue farming.

The Solution: Provide services, education and support for farmers and their families.

Target Audience: Farmers, loggers, watermen and poultry growers.

Delmarva AgrAbility is a joint effort of the University of Delaware Cooperative Extension and Easter Seals, serving Delaware and the Eastern Shore of Maryland. For more information, those interested may call the toll-free number 1-877-204-FARM (1-877-204-3276).

Hay harvested: other hay, 4th cutting 89, 84, 90, 90; alfalfa, 5th cutting 65, 55, 67, 60.

Crop conditions for the week ending Nov. 5, listing the crop and percentages for very poor, poor, fair, good, and excellent, are: barley 0, 7, 28, 63, 2; rye 0, 1, 13, 84, 2; winter wheat 1, 3, 23, 69, 4; range and pasture 3, 12, 25, 55, 5.

Number Of Dairy Farms Falls 5.1%

U.S. milk production is increasing, while the number of dairy farms is heading in the opposite direction. According to a recent report by the American Farm Bureau Federation, in July 2000 the number of dairy farms in the United States fell 5.1 percent compared to the previous year.

The report indicates there were 83,025 dairy herds in July, a decrease of 4,502 from last year, according to Ken Olson, AFBF's dairy policy specialist. Since 1992, AFBF, with assistance from state Farm Bureaus and Extension personnel, has surveyed state dairy agencies to determine the number of farms selling milk in each state. The United States has lost 36.9 percent (48,510) of its dairy herds since the survey's first year in 1992.

"This year's decrease of more than 4,500 dairy herds is a significant loss and has a major impact on the families involved, but it is consistent with what has occurred over the past nine years," Olson said.

"Given current milk prices, and projected prices over the coming months, it appears that financial stress will remain in the industry for some time. This is certain to force continued change, and change is likely to occur at an even more rapid rate in the coming years."

"We see a dynamic, changing dairy industry across the United States that is adjusting to new technology, price volatility, environmental concerns and a variety of other issues. The herd losses that have occurred are certain to have ongoing impacts on the dairy infrastructure across the nation as it adjusts to the changing herd structure."

While the rate varies, change is occurring in all regions of the country. Over the past nine years, each region of the nation has lost more than one quarter of its dairies. The report shows that the Southeast has had the largest percentage loss in five of the last six years. During the eight years when comparisons are available, the Northeast and the West have each had the smallest loss in four of the years.

During the past year, however, the nation has seen a substantial increase in milk production, "with national increases of more than 3 percent virtually every month," according to Olson. While a few states have provided the bulk of the growth, every region has shown increased production.

"Increased production is a result of both a major increase in herd size and increased production per cow," Olson said.

From 1992 to 1999 average milk production per cow increased from 15,570 to 17,771 pounds of milk, according to the agriculture department. Olson said increases this year will take the average, well over 18,000 pounds of milk per cow. Since 1992, average dairy herd size has increased from 73 to 111 cows. This year's average herd size is six cows larger than in 1999.

The report indicates substantial regional differences in herd size. During the past year, the average herd size in the Southeast was 158 cows, up 10 from last year; 521 in the West, up 36 cows; 81 in the Northeast, up two cows; and 70 in the Midwest, up three.

Among the states, New Mexico had the largest average herd size at 1,551 cows, while Indiana had the smallest at 60 cows. Florida had the largest average herd size in the Southeast at 684 cows; Delaware had the largest in the Northeast at 129; and Kansas was tops in the Midwest, with an average herd size of 136 cows.

Milk prices over the last year have varied, from relatively good in the summer and fall of 1999 to quite low for most of 2000, Olson said. During the past 12 months, feed prices have been relatively low, reducing a portion of the stress from low milk prices.

Northern GOP Women Convene

The Northern Garrett Republican Women's Club met Oct. 31 at Hill Top Inn, Grantsville. President Carolyn presided.

Brenda Butscher and Sheila O'Neil reported on the convention they attended in Ocean City. A donation was given in memory of Cora Bowser toward the new library. Books were also given in memory to the libraries in memory of Bonnie Bowman, and a contribution to the Brethren Church in memory of Rosa Wilhelm. Three library books were presented to Rt. 40 Elementary School, as well as school supplies for the media center.

"No Child Left Behind" is a campaign of Republican women to focus the nation on children. Grantsville, Accident, and Friendsville will receive the same. There was also a contribution given for the Mamie Eisenhower project.

The free will offering to be gathered at our Christmas luncheon December 9 at 12:30 at Hill Top Inn will be divided between the Dove Center and Mt. Top Pregnancy Center.

After the business meeting the fund-raiser auction was held. Proceeds from it came to $301.50.

Refreshments were served and those present were: Mary Durst, Cleda Baker, Nancy Devore, Carolyn Ganoe, Zeola Robinson, Louise McKenzie, Connie Burdock, Lillian Crowe, service. Everyone is welcome. Following the service will be a welcome-back party for the pastor and his wife.

NATIONAL HONOR SOCIETY INDUCTS GCC STUDENTS — Six Garrett Community College students were inducted into Phi Theta Kappa, the national honor society for community colleges, during a recent reception in the college art gallery. To be eligible for the distinction, a student must have completed a minimum of 30 credit hours with a cumulative GPA of at least 3.5. Shown at the reception, seated from the left, are Terry Beachy, Kristi J. Coddington-Durat, and Lacy Timmerman; standing are Adam Cowgill and Hans W. Lange. Not available for the photo was the sixth inductee, Casey B. Vanderbilt-Beachy.

Turkey Dinner Set At Fire Hall

A turkey dinner will be served at the Grantsville fire hall on Saturday, Nov. 18, 4-7 p.m., as a fund-raising event for the Grantsville Volunteer Fire Department. The menu will include turkey, dressing, mashed potatoes, gravy, corn, a dinner roll, and a beverage. The cost of the meal will be $7 for adults and $5 for children 12 and younger.

Toys For Tots Campaign Set By Long, Foster

Long & Foster Real Estate has announced the launch of its 11th annual toy drive throughout the Mid-Atlantic region. Between November 13 and December 15, each of the company's 163 sales offices will collect toys for distribution to financially and/or physically disadvantaged children within the local community.

"Please drop as many new unwrapped toys as you can at your neighborhood Long & Foster office to help bring joy to needy children," said a Long & Foster spokesperson.

The "Toys For Tots" program, which was begun by the U.S. Marines in 1947, is an annual toy-collecting drive spearheaded by the Marines in 342 communities covering all 50 states, including the District of Columbia, Puerto Rico, and American Samoa. Last year's campaign surpassed all records set in 1998 with the distribution of 13.8 million toys to 5.9 million needy children. Long & Foster collected more than 25,000 new toys throughout the Mid-Atlantic region last year.

LEARNING INTERVIEW SKILLS - Garrett County high school students in the PIVOT (Partners In Valuable Ongoing Training) program focused on techniques to improve their interviewing skills. Tanya Beltzel, general manager of the Point View Inn, was the guest speaker, who discussed with the students the qualities that an employer may look for when seeking to hire new staff members. She spoke also about the skills that may help an employee advance in the workplace. The group also recently visited Nemacolin Woodlands Resort and Spa for a day of team building and leadership skills. This year's workshop participants include Merkle Response Service, Pizzazz Pizzeria, Billy Bender Chevrolet, Dennott Road Elementary School, Broad Ford Elementary School, Shaffer Ford, the Vision Group, Arnold Phillips Attorney at Law, and Meadow Mountain Services. The PIVOT program is sponsored by the Garrett County Board of Education, Garrett Community College, and the Garrett County Chamber of Commerce. In the photo above are, seated from left, Anna Diahong, Beltzel, Anissa Jamison, and Crystal Thrift. Standing are Julie Green, Kola Artice, Charlena Reeves, April Bernard, and Mindy Lucas. In the back row are Jessa Carey, Mark Fike, Brian Schroyer, and Jennifer Mattingly.

For more information on this year's "Toys For Tots" campaign, persons may call or stop by their local Long & Foster office.

Scholarships Offered By Long & Foster

Long & Foster Real Estate, with over 150 offices in the five-state mid-Atlantic region, is now offering a $100,000 scholarship program for "well-rounded" graduating high school seniors entering an accredited four-year college or university. The Long & Foster scholarship program will award $1,000 to each of 100 students from across the region for the 2001-2002 academic year.

The monetary scholarship award will be made directly to the college or university in the student's name. The deadline for applying is March 1, 2001, and the scholarships will be awarded beginning May 1, 2001.

Eligible high school seniors must have at least a 3.0 GPA on a 4.0 scale, demonstrate financial need, indicate positions of leadership held while in school, and describe the school groups in which they have been involved, community organizations in which they have served, and whether they have held a part-time job while in school, to be considered "well-rounded" applicants.

Applications for the Long & Foster scholarship program may be obtained from any of the company's residential sales offices, from high school guidance counselors, or via Long & Foster's web site at www.longandfoster.com/scholarship.

BITTINGER

by Darryl Glatfely

It is time to catch up on the fall activities of the Bittering 4-H Club. After a successful fair, it is time to get back on schedule.

The Glatfely, Bass, and Sussman farm purchased a pig from the livestock sale and donated it to the club. The pig was processed into sausage and will be served at the "all you can eat" buckwheat cake dinner on Nov. 17, 4:30-7:30 p.m. The cost will be $4.50 for adults, $2.50 for ages 6-12, and free for ages 5 and under. Mark that date on your calendar!

At the October meeting demonstrations were given. Some of the members of the club presented their demonstrations. They were enjoyable and entertaining to watch.

Some of the members of the club walked in the Autumn Glory Parade. Darryl, Elliot, and Blakely Glatfely and Caiti and Mere Sussman walked in the parade carrying maple leaves in front of the winning floats.

Also on Oct. 14 the club served a beef and chicken dinner to celebrate the wedding of Kim and Juan Perez. We had a lot of fun as they included us in on the dancing and music.

Adopt-A-Highway on Oct. 20 was on a half-day of school. We covered our stretch of Rt. 495, gathering several large bags. Matthew Bass, Robbie and Blakely Glatfely, Claire Sussman, Carol Bass, and Marci Glatfely participated in picking up trash.

SWANTON

Linda Lowery and her sister, Darlene Reckley, hosted a baby shower at the home of Debbie and Brock Atkinson in Belair for their daughter Erin, who was born September 22.

Joey Rase, Jim Williams, Peggy Smith, and Linda Lowery accompanied John Lowery to the Hen House West on Halloween to celebrate his birthday.

Last Tuesday, Linda Fleming and Arlene Lantz traveled to Williamsburg, Va., to attend the Accelerated Reading and Reading Renaissance Seminar. They returned home on Thursday.

Lawre, Zach, and Hannah Virts visited Orval and Mareva Teets on Wednesday afternoon.

On Saturday Mary Louise Wilson and her father, Glen Teets, were the guests of honor at a birthday dinner at the Teets home. Others attending were Tom, David, Joni, and Holly Wilson, and Freda Teets.

Chris Riley and friend Michelle of Mt. Airy spent the weekend here. Chris had a holiday craft show at the Community Center on Saturday. While here they visited Orval and Mareva Teets, and John and Linda Fleming, and were overnight guests of Joan Riley.

Mary June Harvey and Mareva and Orval Teets were among those attending the Agriculture Fair Stockholders' dinner meeting at the Deer Park fire hall Friday evening.

Maxine and Meredith Ball have returned to their home from Dallas, where they attended the wedding of their daughter Maria to John Bodiford on Saturday, Nov. 4.

LIFE
 Oh! How precious life really is Values, Integrity, and Standards of how we should live.
 Life has difficulties and discouragements
 Sometimes it takes its toll on us.
 Time is passing us by very quickly.
 We may be here today,
 but not here tomorrow.
 Thinking back as we grew up
 Our lives weren't so bad.
 We had what we needed.
 Most of all we had Godly Parents.
 Who taught us and instructed and instilled in us
 the way we should live.
 Only by the grace of God and His son Jesus' love, can we come above the things of this life.
 Praise to our God for the promises
 He has given to us in His word.
 We must look up to the heavens for our strength because Christ is our only help.
 Because of the instruction and teachings of our parents.
 We can be the same to others.
 Our help comes from the Lord
 Who made heaven and earth.
 Thank You Dad & Momma

GCC Sets Intro To Shiatsu Class

A one-day course titled Introduction to Shiatsu will be offered on Sunday, Nov. 26, from 9 a.m. to 4:30 p.m. at Garrett Community College.

Shiatsu is described as "an outgrowth of the order of nature expressed in a fundamental human exchange," according to a Continuing Education and Training Division spokesperson. The course will explore the basic concepts of shiatsu, and students will be instructed in hands-on techniques that may be integrated into a massage therapy session.

The class is open to students who have completed the Overview of Bodywork and Massage Therapy, practicing massage therapists, and other helping professionals. Massage therapists who provide proof of licensure/certification at time of registration will earn six CEUs for Category A Continuing Education. GCC is approved by the National Certification Board for Therapeutic Massage and Bodywork.

NOTICE OF TENTATIVE DETERMINATION

Garrett County

Application for State Discharge Permit 00-DP-1068, NPDES Permit MD0051721:

Mayor and Town Council of the Town of Accident, P.O. Box 190, Accident, Maryland 21520, submitted an application on September 27, 1999, for renewal of the permit to discharge 50,000 gallons per day of treated municipal water from the Town of Accident Wastewater Treatment Plant, located at 427 South Main Street, Accident, Garrett County, Maryland, to South Branch of Bear Creek, which is protected for the growth and propagation of trout and public water supply.

A Tentative Determination has been made to reissue the discharge permit with the following effluent limitations: BOD5: 12 mg/l maximum monthly arithmetic mean, 18 mg/l maximum weekly arithmetic mean (May 1 to October 31) and 30 mg/l maximum monthly arithmetic mean, 45 mg/l maximum weekly arithmetic mean (November 1 to April 30), total suspended solids, 30 mg/l maximum monthly arithmetic mean, 45 mg/l maximum weekly arithmetic mean, fecal coliform, 200 MPN/100 ml maximum monthly log mean value; dissolved oxygen, 5.0 mg/l minimum at any time and 6.0 mg/l minimum daily average, pH maintained between 6.5 and 8.5. Discharge of effluent treated with chlorine or chlorine compounds is prohibited.

Regular effluent monitoring and reporting are required. The effluent limits reflect water quality based requirements necessary for compliance with the State water quality standards.

A public hearing on the tentative determination will be scheduled if a written request is received by November 22, 2000. The request should be sent to the Maryland Department of the Environment, Water Management Administration, 2500 Broening Highway, Baltimore, Maryland 21224, Attn.: Stephen Luckman, and must include the name, address and telephone number (home and work) of the person making the request, the name of any other party whom the person making the request may represent, and the name of the facility and permit number. Failure to request a hearing by November 22, 2000, will constitute a waiver of the right to public hearing on the tentative determination. Written comments concerning the tentative determination will be considered in the preparation of a final determination if submitted to the Department, to the attention of Mr. Luckman at the above address, on or before December 6, 2000. Any hearing-impaired person who requests a hearing may also request an interpreter at the hearing by contacting Mr. Luckman at 410-631-3671 or by written request to the above address at least ten working days prior to the scheduled hearing date.

Information supporting the tentative determination, including the draft permit and fact sheet, may be reviewed by contacting Mr. Luckman at the above telephone number to make an appointment or by written request to Mr. Luckman at the above address. The Mayor and Town Council of Mountain Lake Park hereby gives notice that it will hold a public hearing on Ordinance No. 00-02, which has been introduced before the Town Council, providing for the maintenance of sidewalk and driveway aprons by adjoining property owners, and setting penalties therefor.

A fair summary of the Ordinance is as follows:

An ordinance of the Mayor and Town Council of Mountain Lake Park providing for the maintenance of sidewalks and driveway aprons by adjoining property owners, including the removal of snow and the repair of any defect in such sidewalk or driveway apron which could make it unsafe for public use; and providing that in the event an abutting property owner does not do such maintenance and/or repair, the Mayor and Town Council of Mountain Lake Park can cause such maintenance and/or repair to be done and assess the cost thereof to the said property owner; and prohibiting any person from operating or permitting to be operated any motorized vehicle over or upon any sidewalk or curbing located within the town of Mountain Lake Park; and prohibiting any person from operating or using any bicycle, skates, skateboards or scooters over or upon any sidewalk or curbing located within the town of Mountain Lake Park; and providing for penalties for the violation of the terms of said ordinance.

This notice is given in accordance with the Policy for the Adoption of Ordinances by the Mayor and Town Council of Mountain Lake Park and gives notice of the date and time of the scheduled public hearing on said Ordinance.

The full text of Ordinance 00-02 is available at the Town Hall Monday through Friday during normal business hours.

The Mayor and Town Council of Mountain Lake Park shall hold a public hearing on the said Ordinance on the 22 day of November, 2000, at 6:00 p.m. at the Town Hall located at 1007 Allegheny Drive, Mtn. Lake Park, Maryland 21550.

MARYLAND DEPARTMENT OF THE ENVIRONMENT

Notice of Intent to Establish a Total Maximum Daily Load (TMDL) for Carbonaceous Oxygen Demand (CBOD) and Nitrogenous Biochemical Oxygen Demand (NBOD) for the Little Youghiogheny River, Garrett County, Maryland

Section 303(d) of the federal Clean Water Act requires Maryland to: (1) identify waters, known as water quality limited segments (WQLSs), where technology-based effluent limitations and other required controls cannot achieve water quality standards; (2) for each listed water, establish Total Maximum Daily Loads (TMDLs) for pollutants preventing the attainment of water quality standards; and (3) offer an opportunity for public review and comment on the proposed TMDLs.

Little Youghiogheny River was identified on the State's 1996 list of WQLSs as impaired by nutrients. The evidence of the impairment was the occurrence low dissolved oxygen concentrations believed to be due to excessive nutrients. Subsequent investigation determined that biochemical oxygen demand (BOD), not nutrients, is the cause of the low dissolved oxygen concentrations. To address these conditions, the Department is establishing TMDLs for the Little Youghiogheny River for both Carbonaceous Biochemical Oxygen Demand (CBOD) and Nitrogenous Biochemical Oxygen Demand (NBOD), which will completely address the original 303(d) listing for nutrients. The TMDLs set the maximum load limit for these substances. The TMDLs also reflect load allocations to point sources, nonpoint sources and a margin of safety that accounts for uncertainty in the procedures used to estimate TMDLs.

Once established by the State, the TMDLs will be subject to approval by the United States Environmental Protection Agency (EPA). These established TMDLs will support measures needed to restore water quality in the Little Youghiogheny River.

OPPORTUNITY FOR PUBLIC REVIEW AND COMMENT

The draft TMDL document is available by written request to Ms. Margie Crawford at the Water Management Administration, Maryland Department of the Environment, 2500 Broening Highway, Baltimore, MD 21224, or by telephone at 410-631-3634. For technical information please direct your request to Mr. Steve Bieber, Technical and Regulatory Services Administration at the same mailing address or by telephone at 410-631-3656. Anyone wishing to review the draft TMDL and supporting information may call Ms. Crawford during normal business hours. The draft TMDL is also available from the Internet at web site <http://www.mde.state.md.us>. A copy of the draft TMDL has also been placed in the Ruth Enlow Library of Garrett County, 6 N. Second Street, Oakland, MD 21550-1393, phone: 301-334-3996, TDD 301-334-3996.

Written comments concerning the draft TMDL may be submitted to the Department on or before Friday, December 8, 2000 and should be sent to Ms. Crawford at the above address. If there is sufficient interest, a public hearing on this matter will be held. All comments received during the comment period will be considered and the TMDL revised as appropriate.

INVITATION FOR BIDS

Garrett Community College Board of Trustees will receive sealed bids, in triplicate, from General Contractors for a single firm fixed price contract for the construction in the Incubator building located in Garrett County, Maryland until 10:00 a.m., prevailing time, on the 11th of December 2000 at Room 316 (President's Office) Continuing Education Building (Bldg. #5), Garrett Community College, 687 Mosser Road, McHenry, MD 21541, at which time and place bids will be opened and read aloud. Bids received after the designated time shall be non-conforming and shall be returned to the bidder. No fax, e-mail, or telephone bids will be accepted.

Proposed forms of contract and bid documents, including plans and specifications, are on file at the Office of the President, listed above and at the Pittsburgh, PA, office of Lorenzi, Dodds, and Gunnill Inc., 100 Wood St. Bldg., Pittsburgh, PA 15222. Authorized contractors only may obtain copies of the documents from Garrett Community College upon non-refundable prepayment of $150.00 payable to Lorenzi, Dodds, and Gunnill Inc. for each set of documents obtained. A maximum of one set will be available per contractor. Contractors and subcontractors may purchase additional complete set plans and specifications by arrangement with the College by calling Rich Ford at 301-387-3074. All sets obtained from the College must be picked up at the College. Complete and/or partial sets may be purchased directly from Modern Reproductions (Pittsburgh, PA) at 412-488-7700. All sets obtained from Modern Reproductions can be shipped via major shippers by arrangement with the printer. Documents will be available on or after November 13, 2000.

A certified check or bank draft payable to Garrett Community College or a satisfactory bid bond executed by a surety company authorized to do business in the State of Maryland and executed by the bidder in an amount equal to five percent of the bid shall be submitted with each bid. Surety's Certificate of Maryland authorization is to be attached to the bid bond. If any bidder refuses to enter into a Contract, the Owner will retain his/her bid security. Bid bonds will be returned (without interest) to unsuccessful bidders within 90 days of the bid opening.

The successful bidder will be required to furnish and pay for the performance and payment bonds, each in the amount of 100 percent of the contract price. The successful bidder's security will be retained until bidder has entered a contract and has furnished the required payment and performance bonds. If notified of bid acceptance, bidders shall execute the contract and provide the stipulated contract assurance as provided for in the Project Manual.

The successful bidder shall substantially complete the project within 320 calendar days. If the project is not substantially complete by the 320th day, the Owner will impose a penalty of $500.00 day.

Garrett Community College reserves the right to reject any and/or all bids, and to waive any informalities in the bidding.

No bids shall be withdrawn for a period of 90 days subsequent to the opening of bids without the consent of Garrett Community College.

The project is not tax-exempt. All applicable taxes must be included in all bids. Specific requirements of the U.S. Department of Commerce Economic Development Administration (EDA), including the Davis-Bacon wage decision issued by EDA, are applicable to this project.

Minority Business Enterprise Participation: The Contractor who provides materials, supplies, equipment and/or services for this project shall attempt to achieve a minimum of 10% of the dollar value, directly or indirectly, from Certified Minority Business Enterprises.

If the Owner does not award the project within 21 days subsequent to the opening of bids, the substantial completion date will be adjusted.

College And Me Program Offers Higher Ed Intro

The College and Me program at Garrett Community College, currently in its 11th year operation, provides Garrett County fifth grade students with a pre-college experience. Each fifth grade class and respective homeroom teachers spend one week at the GCC campus during the school year, where students continue their regular studies and participate in a variety of enrichment classes, many taught by college faculty.

Pam Fike, coordinator of the College and Me program, outlined the enrichment activities in which the students are participating this year. Some of these activities are related to academic subjects, such as "Math Think" with Linda May and Vance Slagle, computers with Terry Norris, poetry writing with Debra Wolf, biology with Carolyn Deniker, and a library treasure hunt with Dana Shimrock.

Some activities provide experiences in the arts, such as music through a "tutti frutti" band sponsored by Lillian Reckner; landscape painting instructed by Edna Bender; the Japanese paper-folding art of origami, instructed by Vickie Teets; and stage experience through a theater segment instructed by Ben Sincell.

signed to inform the students about the world they live in. Mike Logsdon teaches about river currents and eddies, and Debra Nichols provides information about careers in the health field.

The College and Me program is a cooperative effort of the college and the Garrett County Board of Education.

Southern High Sets Financial Aid Workshop

A financial aid workshop has been scheduled at Southern High School on Monday, Nov. 20, at 7 p.m. in the cafeteria. Margie Robison, financial aid officer for Frostburg State University, will explain how to complete the Free Application for Federal Student Aid (FAFSA) form as well as answer questions about the financial aid process.

"This workshop is specifically aimed toward high school seniors and their parents," said Beverly Sincell SIS guidance counselor. She will also be at the workshop to discuss information on scholarships and how the guidance office can assist families through the process of applying for college and for financial aid

TEEN COMMITTEE UNVEILS BOOK DISCUSSION GROUP — From church basements to the Oprah Winfrey show, book discussion groups are creating a sense of community out of what is commonly thought of as a solitary pursuit. A book discussion group sponsored by the Teen Advisory Committee will provide an avenue for local youth involved in the activity when it holds its first book discussion on Saturday, Nov. 18, at 11 a.m. at the Ruth Enlow Library in Oakland. Copies of Cecilia in Space, the book by Sid Hite nominated for discussion by the teen group as the selection that will appeal to a number of readers, are available at the library. "The 'space' theme as indicated by the title comes out of nowhere, but does bring a human side to this boy's struggle in learning to verbalize his feelings," commented a local reader who had praise for the book. Shown evaluating the book are, from the left, Tim Angelo, Ben Parrachio, Tia Angelo, Jennifer Lyall, Mary Beth Pitts, and Kathy Pitts. Youth interested in participating in the book discussion may stop by the library or call 301-334-3996 for further information. Registration is not required for this free activity.

Persons may call Sincell at 301-334-1660.

DEEP CREEK LAKE
The following activities have been scheduled at Deep Creek Lake State Park for this weekend, Saturday and Sunday, Nov. 11 and 12. For further information interested persons may call the park's Discovery Center at 301-387-7067. All programs will take place at or depart from the Discovery Center.

Saturday and Sunday, 30-minute horse-drawn hayrides will be offered by Broken Bar Stables, which will get under way at 11 a.m., noon, 1, and 2 p.m. both days.

Saturday's slate gets under way with a 10 a.m. song bird hike. A park naturalist will present "Living with Black Bears" at 1 p.m., which will be followed by a viewing of Eyewitness Birds at 2 p.m. A children's bug hunt activity is slated for 3 p.m.

Sunday's activities will begin at 10 a.m. with an edible and medicinal plant hike. "Amazing Animals" will be presented at 1 p.m., and Eyewitness Reptiles will be shown at 2 p.m. A children's scavenger hunt will get under way at 3 p.m.

VOL. NO. 123 OAKLAND, GARRETT COUNTY, MD., THURSDAY, NOVEMBER 16, 2000 PER COPY 47¢

"IT'S BEGINNING TO LOOK A LOT LIKE..." No, we won't write it. At least not until after Thanksgiving. But it certainly is beginning to look a lot like winter, especially at the Wisp ski area in McHenry, where operators turned on the snow-making guns last night to take advantage of the sub-freezing temperatures and get a jump on the 2000-01 ski season.

There is a skiff of natural snow on the ground right now, and more snow predicted for Friday and Saturday, much to the delight of hunters, winter sports enthusiasts, and students who would love to have a snow day off from school. Photo by John McEwen.

DCL Tour Boat Proposal Nets Recommendation

A Monday meeting of the Deep Creek Lake Policy and Review Board included discussion of a proposal to allow larger tour boats on Deep Creek Lake. The proposal, which already had the recommendation of the Maryland Department of Natural Resources, was also recommended by the board's members.

Current regulations limit the length of boats used on the lake to 26 feet, with the exceptions of pontoon boats which may not exceed 30 feet or vessels operating with a special permit. Two years ago marina owner Robert Browning requested permission from the Deep Creek Lake Advisory Board to operate a 62-foot-long boat for tours. That initial request was tabled during the lake sale negotiations.

Monday's latest meeting of the DCL Policy and Review Board, formed earlier this year to develop a recreation and land use plan to guide the lake's future management, ended with the board recommendation that state law be amended to allow certain vessels that exceed 26 overall feet. Those

Voluntary Milk Recall Issued By Potomac Farms

Garrett County health officer Rodney Giotfletty issued a statement on Tuesday from Dave Gilles, general manager of Potomac Farms Dairy in Cumberland, about a milk recall. Gilles stated that Potomac Farms is in the process of a voluntary withdrawal of gallons and half-gallons of fluid milk coded Nov. 22, 2000.

"In response to customer concerns about an off-flavor of fluid milk, Potomac Farms has proactively begun a voluntary withdrawal of gallons and half-gallons of fluid milk code dated Nov. 22, 2000," Gilles said. "We will continue to investigate the source of the off flavor."

Potomac Farms is requesting anyone with this product to return it to the place of purchase for a full refund or exchange.

Gilles said Potomac Farms wishes to extend apologies for any inconvenience caused to its customers.

CIBIT Center Mountain Maryland PACE 2001 Unveiled At Garrett CC To Promote Western Counties

Garrett Community College officially inaugurated its new Career Institute for Business and Information Technologies (CIBIT) last week during a program presented by college president Dr. Steve Herman and CIBIT director Dr. Terry Norris. Those in attendance also had an opportunity to observe a working session of the Computer Certification Academy that serves local high school students.

"CIBIT graduates will be able to remain in the Garrett County area and be linked with employers anywhere in the world," said Norris, who pointed out that the institute's Center for Teleworking Professions is designed to serve the increasing numbers of individuals who wish to pursue careers by working from their own homes. The director's remarks also highlighted other offerings of the CIBIT, including computer certification programs such as Microsoft Certified Systems Engineer, Network+, Webmaster, and CISCO, along with the practicum/internship opportunities that are available to students.

The multi-faceted CIBIT includes a variety of academic offerings as well, according to Dr. Lillian Mitchell, dean of academic and student affairs. Among these are certificate and associate in applied science degree programs in Business and Information Technologies, and the transfer program in Business Administration.

Non-credit programs in medical transcription will be available through the Building on the progress made through the One Maryland initiative, Garrett and Allegany counties will again join forces to present the strengths and challenges of western Maryland to the leaders of the state government. In January 2001, the Cumberland/Allegany County Industrial Foundation Inc. and the Garrett County Development Corporation will co-sponsor Mountain Maryland PACE 2001, based on the theme "Work Where You Play."

This year will mark the silver anniversary of the Allegany County PACE (Positive Attitudes Change Everything) reception in Annapolis and the second decade since the inception of the Garrett County legislative breakfast in Annapolis. The 2001 Mountain Maryland event will combine features of both activities.

Co-chairing the committee for the joint venture in Annapolis are Christine Kepple Sweitzer, president of the Garrett County Development Corporation, and Allegany County business owner John Korpela. "I think with the two counties working together we will be able to accomplish much more than we would working separately," Kepple Sweitzer said.

Scheduled for Thursday and Friday, Jan. 25 and 26, at the Lowes Annapolis Hotel, Mountain Maryland PACE 2001 will begin with a ballroom reception for 650-850 people, highlighting "limited" corporate displays and a "key message" display from both counties.

Following the reception will be a dinner to honor the governor and first lady.

Among others invited will be the lieutenant governor, 12 key cabinet members, local delegations, county commissioners, and chamber of commerce leaders. PowerPoint presentations on Garrett and Allegany counties will be given, hosted by Speaker Casper R. Taylor Jr.

A legislative breakfast on Friday morning for members of the Maryland General Assembly will include a PowerPoint presentation on Garrett and Allegany counties, hosted by Del. George Edwards.

Reflecting the statements made by Kepple Sweitzer, Edwards said he looks forward to positive results from this shared initiative.

Law Pertaining To Home Builders To Be Mtg. Topic

The Maryland General Assembly approved legislation last session that requires all new home builders in the state to register with the Consumer Protection Division of the Maryland Attorney General's Office. The Garrett County Planning and Zoning Office has scheduled a meeting next week to discuss the major provisions of this new law.

The meeting will take place on Nov. 21 in Room 314 of Garrett Community College's Continuing Education Building. It will begin at 6:45 p.m., and all area builders are welcome to attend.

A representative of the attorney general's office is to be present to introduce the law and answer questions, according to Jim

Agency Seeking Adults Who Meet New Medicaid Criteria

Community Action Area Agency on Aging is seeking adults who may be eligible for more in-home services as result of the waiver of Medicaid criteria that will be effective January 1, 2001. On that date there will be only 1,000 slots open for new participants qualified under the more lenient eligibility guidelines.

Area Agency on Aging (AAA) director Adina Brode explained that because there will be so few people approved for the waiver statewide that she and her staff are trying to identify Garrett County candidates for the program as soon as possible. "We want to have as much paperwork complete as possible prior to January 1 so we can get our applications in early," she said.

To meet the target population criteria a person must be at least 50 years old, have a monthly income of no more than $1,536, have assets of no more than $2,000 to $2,500, and qualify for nursing facility level of care.

The services that will be covered for those approved under the waiver are personal care, respite care, senior center plus, personal emergency response systems, extended home health care, environmental assessments and modifications, care management, home-delivered meals, assisted living services, family or consumer training, dietitian/nutritionist services, assistive devices, and behavior consultation services.

For more information on this program, persons may call the Area Agency on Aging at 301-334-9431 or 888-877-8403.

McHenry Post Office In Need Of More Space

United States Postal Service officials met with the Garrett County commissioners this week in a first step toward expanding the post office at McHenry. The current size of the post office is 1,274 square feet, which includes 675 square feet of work space. David Bradshaw, manager of administrative services of the postal service in Maryland, told the commissioners that the staff needs about 4,800 square feet of work space.

"In all, we are looking for a site of about 56,000 square feet," Bradshaw said. This would include parking expansion as well. Currently the office has seven parking spaces for customers. With the expansion, the office hopes to be able to offer about 29 spaces.

Joe O'Connor, real estate specialist for the postal service, also spoke with the commissioners, explaining that the most probable plan will involve the construction of a new building, although the feasibility of expanding the present facility will be explored as well. Currently, the postal service leases the building used for the McHenry office.

"We have lots of options, but we want to work with you and with the McHenry community in deciding what option to choose," O'Connor said. While the financing of the facility is the responsibility of the postal service, O'Connor and Bradshaw said it is impor-

The Making Of A Real Santa Claus — A Remarkable Story Of Courage And Faith

by Mary Sincell McEwen

What compels a man to give to others nearly every hour of his life? What compels him to put himself last on a long list of people he doesn't even know? One might assume he has had all he needs in life and is only wishing to "give something back," or perhaps he does such things to earn honor and glory from the public.

Neither of these scenarios are true for Lou Stouffer, better known locally as "the Terra Alta Santa." The reason he does what he does — working all year to provide Christmas presents to hundreds of area children — is almost an unfathomable story of horror as well as faith.

Not many people realize that Lou, the "70th Point of Light" recognized by former President George Bush, is also a veteran of World War II. He joined up in 1939 when he was "almost 17," he said, becoming part of the secret 101st Air Rescue and Assassination Team. It's not a squadron that many people know about.

"We were secret because America wasn't supposed to have anything like us," he said. His assignment

NORTHERN BAND FARES WELL AT SCRANTON — The Northern High School Husky Marching Band represented Garrett County well at last weekend's Tournament of Bands (TOB) Atlantic Coast Grand Championship by placing 11th in Group 1 competition. The championships, held in Scranton, Pa., are a culmination of the season of TOB contests that take place throughout a 13-state region. Of 147 Group 1 bands, Northern's season scores placed the local group in the top 25, seeded seventh going into the final competition. The young musicians took 11th place out of 25, and also earned the trophy for best woodwinds in all of Group 1. Band director Bill Robinson said he was very pleased with the season and with the 75+ teenagers involved in the group. The show featured music from the movie The Mummy, with an Egyptian theme carried throughout. Pharaoh (drum major) Mike Fratz is pictured above as he is carried in at the beginning of the show. Musical selections, composed by Jerry Goldsmith and arranged by Robinson, included "Grand Conquest," "Mummy Attack," "Giza," "Camel Race," and the finale, "Sand Volcano."

Maryland Commission on Aging Hears Garrett County Concerns

The cost of prescription drugs and the need for transportation topped the list of concerns voiced by Garrett County senior citizens and other residents attending two town hall meetings last week. Organized by the Maryland Commission on Aging as part of a statewide survey, the local forums took place at the Mary Browning Senior Center, Oakland, and the Grantsville Senior Center.

The approximately 125 residents who attended the sessions focused their attention on four position papers developed by the state commission and submitted for consideration. The briefings were titled:

- Prescription Drug Coverage and the Elderly, Human Service Transportation Initiatives, the Long-Term Care Ombudsman Program, and the Medicaid Waiver and state-funded Community-Based Long-Term Care Programs.

Each of the discussion papers was reviewed by the session leaders — Charlie Culbertson, member of the Maryland Commission on Aging and president of United Seniors of Maryland, and Bill Bechill, president of the Maryland Commission on Aging.

Among the facts stated in the position paper on prescription drugs is that since 1990 drug spending has tripled, and it is estimated that spending will again double by 2008. Generally, Medicare does not cover medications on an outpatient basis, and access to medications through HMOs "also seems a thing of the past," the report states.

Forum coordinators and information in the position papers emphasized that there are several programs of relief for those faced with excessive prescription costs which are available to people who qualify as low-income. "However, 79 percent of older Marylanders have income over these levels yet cannot afford to pay out-of-pocket for their drugs," the report noted.

Culbertson encouraged seniors attending the Oakland meeting to add their input to commission members so that they may be reflected in recommendations to the governor for future legislation.

Pending any further legislation, Adina Brode, director of Garrett County's Area Agency on Aging, underscored the importance of all seniors contacting the agency for information on what options may be available to help defray some of the expenses of medications.

Del. George Edwards pointed out that the General Assembly had provided some relief for the elderly in rural counties who had lost HMO options through legislation enacted in the 2000 session. He also emphasized the fact that aside from legislation, there are a number of programs available to help alleviate the burden of cost of prescriptions.

Edwards encouraged seniors to contact Donna McClintock at the Garrett County Health Department or Brode at the AAA for more information on eligibility for assistance programs.

"In addition to their concerns about lack of prescription coverage, the seniors at both meetings pointed to transportation as a problem," Brode noted.

The position paper from the Commission on Aging noted that "many older drivers do not know what transportation services are available in their area, or how to use them." To remedy the problem, the authors of the paper suggest the development of "mobility coordinator programs."

Brode exhorted the seniors attending the forums to become self-advocates by addressing their concerns to legislators, local officials, and representatives of county agencies.

Bechill, addressing the seniors at the Grantsville site, said that advocates for the aging need to be represented in the planning and implementation of any new transportation systems.

For information on issues pertaining to senior citizens, persons may contact the Area Agency on Aging at 301-334-9431 or 1-888-877-8403.

Christmas Events To Be Listed In New Supplement

The Republican newspaper will publish a new Christmas supplement this year highlighting holiday events on the mountaintop, among other holiday features. The advertising staff of the newspaper has printed "Christmas Wonders" for several years, but this season is changing the name to "Home for the Holidays," with a focus on local events.

"Our Autumn Glory 'Splendour' supplement is always so popular because it lists the entire festival schedule of events, and there are lots of pictures of local people," said Lisa Rook, advertising manager for the newspaper. "We wanted to make the Christmas supplement a source of local information, too, so everyone knows when and where all the special events are taking place."

All area residents who are involved in holiday events, whether they be programs, projects, special events, or any other Christmas happenings, should contact The Republican office before Nov. 28. The staff is looking for dates, times, and locations of these events to include in the schedule. Pictures of past events are also being accepted to help publicize this year's activities.

Also to be included in "Home for the Holidays" supplement will be gift-giving ideas, Christmas recipes from readers, the winners of a children's essay and art contest (see separate story), and, for the adults, the annual "Win Cash for Christmas" contest.

"We really hope people respond to our request for information about their holiday activities," Rook said, noting again that the news and advertising deadline for the supplement is Nov. 28.

For more information, or to provide event information, persons may call the Oakland newspaper office at 301-334-3963 (fax: 301-334-5904) or the Grantsville branch at 301-895-5827 or 301-746-8223. Items can also be mailed to The Republican, P.O. Box 326, Oakland, MD 21550, or dropped off at the Oakland or Grantsville location.

Maryland With Pride

A live nativity scene will be presented at Spruce Forest on both Friday and Saturday, featuring a youth group from an area church. This will occur each day at 6:30 p.m.

A local chorus will present a Christmas cantata at the Village Church on Friday at 7:30 p.m.

Local residents are encouraged to make the town more festive by hanging their Christmas lights by the first weekend in December.

For more information, persons may contact Nancy Kauffman at 301-895-3315.

Route 40 School Earns Honorable Mention Award

The Maryland State Department of Education announced yesterday 10 public elementary schools as 2001 Maryland Blue Ribbon Schools of Excellence. In addition, awards were presented to eight schools for honorable mention, including Route 40 School.

The winning schools were selected for achievement in such areas as student performance, instruction, organization, parent involvement, standards, curriculum and leadership, state officials said. They will compete in the U.S. Department of Education's National Blue Ribbon competition next year.

The winning schools — each of which receives a Maryland Blue Ribbon flag and $1,000 cash award — will become part of a state network of past winners and work with other elementaries across the state on school improvement. They will be recognized by the General Assembly in January and at an awards celebration in the spring.

Area Mayors, GCC Trustees Discuss Significance Of Estonian Program

A recent meeting of the Garrett Community College board of trustees included a presentation by two area town mayors, who detailed their communities' growing relationships with Estonia. Grantsville mayor Gerry Beachy and Oakland mayor Asa McCain both spoke of their personal visits to the Baltic nation on behalf of Garrett County, and a subsequent visit to western Maryland by a group of Estonian mayors.

Beachy and McCain saluted the work of GCC president Dr. Steve Herman in helping build the Estonia-Maryland partnership, which operates under the Department of Defense Maryland Partnership for Peace Program. The local mayors said that Herman's efforts could pay off in Garrett County, not only through educational and cultural exchanges, but in real economic benefits as well.

Expressing their hope that plans for importing and exporting products between the two nations will continue to go forward, the mayors noted that Grantsville's Hobby House Press printing and publishing house and Oakland- and McHenry-based Rudy's clothing store are both interested in receiving products from Estonia. McCain added that Estonian representatives were also interested in purchasing items from Wood Products in Oakland.

Beachy and McCain underscored that the educational benefits could impact all levels of education in Garrett County, as the Grantsville mayor noted that the fifth grade class at Grantsville Elementary School is in the process of establishing a pen pal relationship with fifth graders in the city of Tallinn. He told the trustees that

Five County Schools Awarded For Continuing Improvement

Bloomington School and Broad Ford, Crellin, Friendsville, and Yough Glades elementary schools were recognized by the Garrett County Board of Education during this week's meeting for the awards they recently received from the state's School Performance Recognition Program. This program publicly recognizes the work of teachers, principals, parents, and community members for bringing about positive change in student learning.

Bloomington was singled out for a cash prize of $22,559, in addition to special awards given to all five of the schools by Dr. Nancy Grasmick, state superintendent of schools.

Selection of the schools was based on demonstration of significant improvement in scores on the Maryland School Performance Assessment Program (MSPAP). The cash award may be used for a variety of activities and equipment which may further foster student achievement.

"We have not yet met as a staff to discuss what we will do with the money," said Bloomington principal Jim Morris, adding that a suggestion box has been placed in the hallway at the school for students and parents to offer their ideas for use of the funds.

"Probably we will get some more of the Macintosh 1 Book computers," Morris noted. The Bloomington students and staff have made "great strides" in incorporating technology into the classroom as a Co-Nect school, he explained.

Crellin principal Keith Harvey commended board members for their support. "I appreciate them letting us use the programs and implement the strategies and practices to help make the students more successful. Your motto is 'Achievement for All ... Meeting the Challenges' and that's just what you are helping us do," he said.

Other Acknowledgments

The board also congratulated Mettiki Coal Corporation on being selected for the state's Excellence for Minority Achievement Recognition 2000. For the past nine years, Mettiki has sponsored a middle school student success night, honoring eighth grade students in Garrett County. This program has selected students based on criteria "beyond the typical parameters." The award recipients have included students with special needs as well as those who are academically gifted.

A proclamation saluting the efforts of all education system employees in recognition of American Education Week, November 12-18, was signed during the board meeting.

Family Life Program/

Materials Approved

The board members voted to approve the revised Family Life Program of Studies for grades 10-12 as presented by Martin Green, supervisor of secondary education. In addition the board voted to approve the textbook Human Sexuality — Responsible Life Choices and supplemental videos Be Prepared, Be Protected and Break the Silence: Kids Against Child Abuse.

The program of studies and the materials had been on display for public review and comment for 30 days. No comments were recorded.

CELEBRATING SUCCESS - Principals of five Garrett County elementary schools took a bow on behalf of their students and staff members when they were honored at the Garrett County Board of Education meeting this week. The schools were distinguished for improvement demonstrated on the Maryland School Performance Assessment Program (MSPAP) and functional tests. In the photo, from left, are board president Rodney Durst; Tom Fowler of Broad Ford; Lindsey Stanton of Yough Glades; Doug Galther of Friendsville; Jim Morris of Bloomington (which also earned a cash award of $22,559); school superintendent Dr. Wendell Teets, and Keith Harvey of Crellin.

Oakland Men Arrested On Sex Charges

A pair of Oakland men were arrested this week by the Garrett Bureau of Investigation on sex charges stemming from unrelated incidents. Both men were still incarcerated in the county's Detention Center as of this morning.

Leslie Allen Bittinger, 34, Oakland, was jailed Monday for alleged sex offenses stemming from a series of incidents in August involving a 15-year-old female. GBI detectives filed charges of three counts each of third degree sexual offense, fourth degree sexual offense, and second degree assault, and two counts of perverted practice. Bittinger, who had been arrested as part of a suspected counterfeiting ring last month, is currently being

G.W. Highway Mishap Leads To DWI Charge

An Oakland woman was charged with driving while intoxicated (DWI) following an early-morning single-vehicle accident Saturday along George Washington Highway, according to the Garrett County Sheriff's Office.

Rhonda Gayle Gank, 42, sustained minor injuries as a result of the mishap, and was transported by the Southern Rescue Squad to Garrett Memorial Hospital where she was treated and released. Sheriff's deputies reported that Gank was

Choral Society Will Present Handel's Messiah

Handel's Messiah will be presented by the Garrett Choral Society on Saturday, Dec. 9, at 7:30 p.m. and Sunday, Dec. 10, at 2 p.m. Both performances will be at the Faith Evangelical Church in Mtn. Lake Park.

This traditional holiday production will be directed by Nancy Learey and accompanied by the West Virginia University Symphony, under the leadership of Bill Skidmore. Featured soloists will include choral society member Dave Callis, as well as guest soloists Myrna Paris, Kristin Peterson, and Michael Horton.

Tickets, which are $8 for adults, are currently available at Gregg's Pharmacy, Oakland, and Deep Creek Pharmacy, McHenry. Purchases can also be made from choral society members and at each performance. Children under 12 will be admitted free of charge.

These concerts are funded in part by grants from the Maryland State Arts Council, the Garrett County Arts Council, the Stanley P. Smith Family Foundation, and the Sprenger-Lang Foundation.

Drug Violations Result In Four-Year Jail Term

Judge James L. Sherbin last week sentenced John Francis Ward III, 34, Duquesne, Pa., to a total of four years in the Department of Corrections for drug-related charges, according to a report from the county's state's attorney's office. The sentencing was handed down in the Circuit Court of Garrett County.

Ward had entered pleas of guilty to the charge of possession with the intent to distribute cocaine, for which he was given three years in jail, and to unlawful possession of a handgun, for which he received another year. A $2,000 fine was also imposed.

Ward was charged with these offenses in April 1999 by the Garrett County Narcotics Task Force. The Maryland State Police at McHenry and officers with various agencies in the Keyser/Piedmont, W.Va., area had information about Ward that was shared with the task force and with officials in Pittsburgh, Pa. This led to surveillance of Ward on April 16, 1999, as he drove from his home in Duquesne to Garrett County, where he was stopped for speeding.

An immediate search by a K-9 unit (dog) trained to detect illegal drugs led to the discovery of almost three grams of cocaine and a .45 caliber handgun, according to the report.

Keep the College...

With the extreme closeness of the vote in the 2000 presidential election, so close that, as of today, over a week after the election, a winner has still not yet been declared, attention is once again being focused on the electoral college system that we use in this country. If George Bush is ultimately declared the winner, it will be under even closer scrutiny since Al Gore will most likely finish the race with a slightly greater number in the popular vote. After all, should not the person with the greatest number of votes always be the one who wins the election?

It was, however, a wise move by our founding fathers to set up the electoral college, for at least a couple reasons. In the early days of our nation it didn't take too many elections to realize that the larger states, those with the greatest population, would always control the outcome. Consequently, the more rural, less populated states had virtually no say in the outcome of the elections. With the electoral college, even though the more populous states have more electoral votes, the votes of several smaller states combined can fairly challenge the vote of the populous states.

We who reside in Garrett County can appreciate such a situation and opportunity. A number of years ago the state legislature, in an effort to save public school transportation monies, decided that all students, statewide, who reside within a mile of their school would have to walk to school. No bus transportation would be provided for them. Of course, those short-sighted lawmakers who proposed the legislation resided in the Baltimore area where there are literally miles of sidewalks leading to the local schools. It made sense there. But these legislators had obviously never walked along Broadford Road or Accident-Bittering Road in Garrett County, especially in mid-February. The majority had made a blanket rule that was totally inappropriate for the rural areas of the state. Fortunately, exceptions were made once these city lawmakers had their "horizons expanded," but if enactment had come down to just numbers, or a popular vote of the legislators, the rural areas would have lost.

Another good reason to keep the electoral college, and a requirement that a candidate must garner at least 270 electoral votes in order to win, is that it greatly reduces the possibility of having numerous candidates. The danger of having numerous candidates and the winner being determined strictly by popular vote is that the vote would be split to the point that the winner would be elected by, say, 20% of the vote or less. Thus the wishes of 80% or more of the voting public would be denied.

This is not to say that the electoral college system should not be studied for possible revision. As the population patterns of our nation change, certain aspects of the system may need updating. But we believe the system should continue to be utilized.

of 110% since the 1996 presidential election. Throughout the rest of Florida, the registration increase for these parties was roughly 38%. In contrast, in neighboring Broward County, only 47% voters are registered to these parties.

In addition, in the 1996 presidential election, 14,872 ballots were invalidated for double counting in Palm Beach County, a figure comparable to the number of ballots dismissed this year (considering this year's higher turn out).

Given these facts, what happened on election night in Palm Beach County — a county whose elections are run by a Democrat — is an understandable event. The Gore campaign is politicizing and distorting routine and predictable events.

The Republican falls into that trap when it buys the Democratic line that Buchanan votes were stolen from Gore. All over the nation, while Gore was losing votes to Nader, it was Bush who was losing votes to Buchanan. There is no evidence whatsoever to suggest otherwise in Florida.

To the Editor:

This letter is in response to a letter written (publish date 11/9/00) by Liane Preston. The glass is either half-full or half-empty, and how one looks at things in life. On is either a positive-thinking person, or a negative-thinking person, a complainer or a thankful person. Ms. Preston in her letter last week did a wonderful job praising the Southern Ram football team, and rightly so. This has been a very successful season (and I write this prior to the Southern-Northern game this evening) and we should be proud of the entire squad, starters, reserves, young practice players, coaches, fans, parents, cheerleaders, administration, teaching staff, school personnel, Sam the Ram, and their accomplishments. Period! She should have stopped right there. That would have been a great thankful letter full of praise and positive stroking.

Nope! She had to see the glass as half-empty instead! Why does someone always have to complain after saying something nice? It still baffles me. Did Ms. Preston inquire as to why there was no possibility of a "pep rally" and/or bonfire for the Northern game? Had she, she would have found numerous reasons for this. One of the reasons hinges on the success of the Lady Ram volleyball team this week and their continuing in the playoffs, and that they had a match on Thursday night. Another is the unfortunate timing of a freshman football game on Thursday night. And yet another is the school board policies and rules on class schedule revisions.

But, whatever the reason, do not point fingers at any one person or any group, as Preston did in her letter. How quickly we forget! Forget what? How she must have forgotten that it was the cheerleaders, their coaches and advisors, parents, teachers, administrators, fans, etc., who worked countless hours to provide a fabulous half-time spectacle at the Tucker County football game during homecoming weekend. Let us also not forget all the time and effort that went into making the homecoming dance an activities a success. AH!

This is looking at that glass and seeing it as half-full! In fact, our glass runneth over when it comes to the support that our sports teams get from the community. Ms. Preston, take a deep breath, blink a few times, clean your eyeglasses, lube your contacts, smell the roses, give Sam a hug, and let's be positive!

To the Editor:

A few days ago Jesse Jackson said that democracy requires eternal vigilance. As an African-American and product of the pre-1965 South, he probably feels this need keenly. Our current constitutional test is an opportunity for all citizens to examine their own complacency.

We should be reminded by the vituperation and hyperbole issuing from the Bush and Gore campaigns that constitutional checks and balances which are necessary to ensure fairness can easily be abused. This kind of exploitation will inevitably lead to a diminished democracy, if not in actual practice, then undoubtedly in perception. News organizations have, for the most part, clearly demonstrated that the right to a free press is accompanied by a vigorous press. Too much of the coverage of this historic episode has been

by Jeffrey Wilson

WHITHER THE REPUBLIC?

It is tempting to talk about the bumper crop of red potatoes that I have been harvesting from my garden. They are huge and, if a potato can be said to be juicy, they are juicy. The turn of the soil is so good that I plunge my arms deep until I encounter a potato, and then I hoist it to ground level.

Not potatoes, but other subterranean growths, and not nearly so benign, are on my mind today. At the time of writing this column the news reports state we shall not know who will be the next president of the United States until this Friday, Nov. 17.

Some commentators have suggested that we shall not know who is the next president until a month hence when the Electoral College casts its votes. While electors are supposed to vote the will of their respective states (or districts, where state law provides for a division), they are not legally obliged to do so.

As disturbing as the current stalemate and the possible abuse of the Electoral College are, they pale by comparison with another possibility, namely that the courts and ultimately the U.S. Supreme Court will decide who is to be the next president of our country.

For the past 40 years a concern and a fear have grown that the courts are gradually but inexorably usurping the authorities and responsibilities which the U.S. Constitution endows in the legislative and executive branches of our government. The prospect of the courts choosing our president would give a clear object to such a concern and fear.

Further disturbing is that there are scholars of the law who are advocating for this greater role of the courts. They do not use the word "usurpation;" it is too negative, of course.

That school of scholarly opinion believes that the courts, and especially the U.S. Supreme Court, are the best entities to govern our country because they will guide us "toward the conception of the good society held by 'dominant national elites.'" In other words, we should trust the courts more than legislatures and executives because the courts are not answerable to the people, and because the courts reflect what elitists think life should be for all of us, poor benighted cattle that we are.

One scholar, who served as law clerk to the great liberal Supreme Court Justice William O. Douglas, writes, "A majority of the justices were men of action, confident of their own judgment. If wide-scale social engineering was necessary — and they certainly believed it was — then who better to do it?"

In other countries, takeovers of governments are effected by colonels and generals. We have safeguarded against such a danger. No one fears that the Joint Chiefs of Staff will storm the White House. We left the back door open, however, to people whose main recommendation for governing is that they are out of touch with the man and woman in the street — our judges, and especially the justices of the Supreme Court.

We are experiencing a constitutional crisis of a kind that our nation has undergone only a few times in the history of our republic. The virtual tie in our presidential election plays into a dynamic that has been unfolding ever since Earl Warren was appointed to the Supreme Court in 1956.

The "dominant national elites" are prepared to provide the philosophical foundations for such a judicial takeover. The courts will not seize power, partly because they do not have to seize it. We give the courts power by taking issues for them to decide, often decisions that should be made by the elected officials who sit in our legislatures and serve as our executives.

The "dominant national elites" stand against the people. They corrode the rights of all because of their patronizing arrogance; for they think they know better than we, and therefore that they should be able to manipulate the system to enforce their will upon us.

"Eternal vigilance is the price of liberty." That truth has never been more pertinent.

simple repetition of statements and allegations. More unbiased information (for example, about the Florida election laws, other recent disputed votes, etc.) and less partisan rhetoric would be conducive to real debate about the constitutional issues which have been raised. This should lead to a strengthening of the republic.

It is important to remember that the wise and learned men and women of this nation, on whom we rely to explain the significance of important events, sometimes suffer from a lack of perspective. While it's clear (as many experts and pundits have cautioned) that the prolonged quest for "fairness" in this election has the potential to undermine widespread faith in our system, there are other dangers to this all-important confidence which seem to go mostly unnoticed (or unmentioned). Because a significant part of the population has a general impression that their only empowerment in our democracy is their cherished right to vote, they deserve a full investigation into and explanation of voting problems. Of course, no system can be perfect, but neither should it be taken for granted that ours works as well as it could. Statisticians explain that we must accept a certain level of inaccuracy. This is undeniable, but our tolerance for election irregularities should never become too high.

Perhaps each individual's greatest vigilance needs to be reserved for himself. Most of us are doing our best to understand what is happening, appreciate the historical significance, and respond accordingly. There is one opinion, however, that I have repeatedly heard and read which makes me shudder. Many have stated that people who are not intelligent enough to understand the Palm Beach County ballot perhaps can't handle the responsibility of voting. I am incredulous that anyone but a neo-fascist would express this opinion. Perhaps we have forgotten that such ludicrous arguments were used just a generation ago to keep African-Americans in the South from voting. I hope that most of us recognize it as an outrage to all democratic principles.

It is possible that the eternal vigilance of which Jesse Jackson spoke needs occasional "tests" like this one. Maybe democracy can only thrive when we review certain issues and make sure they still live up to our ideals. The United States of America will probably be better for what happened in the election of 2000.

Sincerely,

Emily Knight Morgan

To the Editor:

The Garrett County Board of Elections and our elected officials are to be commended for their decision to update our voting machines and voting methods several years ago. After seeing the antiquated methods of voting on TV during this election, I am convinced that our county has one of the best and most accurate systems in the nation!

Many of these states should observe our present tabulator machines in use and method of administration at the polls. Punch-hole ballots are not used, and provisions are made to assure the voter's intent. I will explain a few advantages of our new machines, or tabulators. The tabulator will not accept a voter's ballot if he has marked more candidates than instructed on the ballot. The ballot is immediately pushed back out to the voter. An explanation is automatically printed on a tape explaining how and where the voter erred. For example: "Ballot over-voted for President of the U.S." or "U.S. Senator, etc. The voter then has the option of marking a new ballot, or he may decide to have the judge push a button for the machine to override the error and all other votes on the ballot will be counted. Should the voter mark a second ballot and an error occurs, the voter is entitled to yet another ballot.

Ballots returned to the voter where the tape notation reads "Blank Ballot" is an indication that the ballot was improperly marked or the voter used his own pen instead of the special marking pen at the booth. The tabulator requires clearly marked ballots. The voter is then asked to "spoil" that ballot by coloring in all arrows so no one knows how he voted. After the ballot has been "spoiled," the machine judge can usually determine how it was improperly marked. The voter is given another ballot.

Additionally, a machine judge is stationed near the entrance where all voters must pass to receive their official ballot. Her job is to show the voter on a specimen ballot how to mark the arrow and assist him in any way in understanding how to vote the ballot. Once he reaches the voting booth and reviews the official ballot, he may still ask a judge for assistance in explaining or reading the ballot. One judge from the Republican and one from the Democratic parties are present should he ask for someone to point to the arrow of the candidate of his choice. By signing a Voter Assistance card, the voter may have a relative or friend assist.

I observed in the Cumberland Times-News that Allegany County is still using the old lever-type machines we recently replaced. While this method is better than some, the biggest disadvantage is that the voter never has the opportunity to correct his vote once he has pulled the levers and opened the curtain. Had he over-voted for a candidate, his vote would be disqualified without his knowledge.

Voting results of the day are automatically calculated by the pressing of a button and are printed out on a tape at the closing of the polls. One copy is posted at the voting place, one copy is hand-carried to the election board office by the chief judges, and one is immediately deposited in the post office should the board office copy be lost or mislaid.

And yes, provisions are made should the electric power go off, as it did in Grantsville on November 6. Voters simply place their ballot in a slot in a locked section of the machine. These ballots are fed through the machine by the judges when the power comes back on or at the close of the polls. A battery-powered memory pack backs up the accounting

Letters to the Editor

To the Editor:

I'd like to take this time to thank the Southern Ram football team for a fantastic season. As Liane Preston stated in her letter last week, nobody gave these young men much of a chance with one of the toughest schedules in the school's history. On top of that, in the last three years, they have had three head coaches, three different coaching staffs, and three different systems. They have overcome great odds, and have ended their season a winner with a 6-4 record, winning the county championship last Friday night in typical Garrett County football conditions. Contrary to what Coach Carr from Northern stated in the Cumberland Times-News, the Huskies were beaten by the Rams, not the weather. I do believe both teams played under the same adverse conditions.

I have been blessed with the opportunity to get to know each and every young man on this team, and know how hard they have worked this season. They have played most games with only 20-some players eligible each week. Coach Fred Gregg and his coaching staff have done an excellent job this season preparing the team week after week. Even after some tough losses, they never hung their heads, they kept the Red and White pride, and "pinned their ears back and came a hummin'."

I'd also like to recognize the following seniors: Josh "Fitzzy" Fitzwater, Josh "Preppy" Sharon, Jeremy "WeeWee" Lear, Jeremy "J" Hayhurst, Billy "Heeb" Hebb, John "JohnBoy" Hayhurst, Toby "Big Toab" Tasker, and James "Doughboy" Preston. Guys, you've given four great years to the Rams; thanks for the memories. And thanks to all the underclassmen. See you in August for "sketti."

Sincerely,
"Uncle Bubba"

Your editorial "Historic Times" in the Nov. 9 edition seriously distorted the true situation in Florida.

The statement "When one sees a heavy Jewish vote for Pat Buchanan, one knows something has gone terribly awry" is what's known as ethnic stereotyping. You have assumed that all Jewish voters are always going to buy the nonsense promulgated by the New York Times.

In fact, the situation in Palm Beach County is much less obvious. The Bush campaign office looked deeper and found out the following: Palm Beach County is a Pat Buchanan stronghold, and that's why Pat Buchanan received 3,407 votes there. According to the Florida Department of State, 16,695 voters in Palm Beach County are registered to the Independent Party, the Reform Party, or the American Reform Party, an increase the maps to tell us what country we were in. Sometimes they would drop us miles and miles away from the planned landing site. We would have to find our way with almost nothing to help us."

On the night of the Pearl Harbor attack in 1941, Lou and his team were shipped immediately to the Philippines. The young men, most of them in their late teens or early 20s, had no correspondence with their families, no letters, no packages. They carried out their orders cloaked in international secrecy.

In June of 1942, Lou and two other men of the squadron were captured by the Japanese. They were transported to the mainland of Japan, where he began a dreadful, unimaginable chapter of his life. Not able to recall the actual name of the prison camp, Lou said he and the other prisoners referred to it as Hell's Half Acre. It was later to become known as the main torture camp where the Japanese forces were able to obtain the most of their inside information.

Lou was continuously tortured at the camp, where the enemy would nearly kill him, and then nurse him back to health for yet another round. When not the subject of interrogation, he and the others were put to work in sulfur mines. They existed, barely, on a diet of rice chaff and fish heads. When a cat once wandered into the compound, he and the others pounced on it like wild animals.

"We ate that cat, raw. That's how starved we were," he said.

The beatings Lou withstood often ended in surgery. The prison's medical staff put a steel rod in his leg, two pins in his shoulder, and a plate on his skull. They also put an artificial valve in the 21-year-old's heart. (Lou has since suffered three heart attacks over the past 30 years.)

At one point, the guards tied him to a table and forced his right eye open. Water dripped into that eye for two days, effectively blinding it for life.

"If you showed any sign of giving in to the pain, they would really go after you then," Lou said. "But if you resisted it and stayed strong, they would eventually quit. We were trained to endure pain when we first joined, so that helped us all a lot. And we were also never told anything, so we didn't have a thing to tell the guards anyway."

Lou Stouffer was kept in that prison for 37 months. One of his comrades died there, but the other one survived. Throughout his ordeal, he relied on his faith.

"I prayed to the man up there, and I told him that if I could get out of that place, I would do something to help people. I promised him I would do something," Lou said. "But I didn't really think I'd survive it."

Three days before the bomb was dropped on Hiroshima, he and his fellow captives were saved. The prison was a mere 170 miles from the targeted city. When the storm troopers rescued the young soldiers, Lou weighed 67 pounds.

"I don't remember a lot about the liberation, but I did know we were being saved," he said. Taken to a military hospital upon his release, Lou was a patient there for one year and seven months. Finally, in 1947, he returned to his home in Fort Payne, Alabama. His adoptive mother had died while he served the country, and just three months after Lou's homecoming, his adoptive father died, too. His two foster brothers had both been killed in the war. Lou was alone.

DOING WHAT HE LOVES BEST — Some boy or girl was probably thrilled last Christmas to see a bicycle under the tree, left by none other than the real Santa Claus. Lou Stouffer, the mountaintop's own true St. Nick, is pictured as he works on one of thousands of holiday truckloads, to be delivered to one of over 800 needy families. The photograph was taken last year, but Lou could certainly be found doing similar work this year as he and his wife Lola, for the 28th year together, deliver Christmas presents to hundreds and hundreds of area children. Lou has every reason to put himself first, being a veteran of World War II and suffering for over three years in Japanese prison camp. But instead he is joyful, giving to children every year, all year. (See feature story.) When asked if he wanted to add anything to this report, Lou only responded with praise to those who assist in his effort. "I sure appreciate all the help we get," he said.

"It wasn't long after I got home that a family's farmhouse burned down. I went there to help them rebuild and to get the crops in," Lou said. "I liked helping people, and I wanted to do what I had told the good Lord I would do."

He moved to Florida and opened a paint and body shop. It was there that he began to help families have brighter Christmas holidays. He started taking gifts and food to needy folks in the early '60s, all while rearing his own five children. He and his wife of that time divorced, and Lou was again on his own. However, his five children remained close, and are to this day a great joy to him.

In 1972, while visiting a friend in Terra Alta, W.Va., Lou met Lola Samantha Yonker. The two were like oil and water at first.

"She said I was the most disgusting person she had ever met," he said, laughing. "But it wasn't long 'til we were together. That first year, we took presents and food to 35 families in Terra Alta. We got married then, on Dec. 26, 1972. We're like two peas in a pod."

Having suffered what Lou has suffered, one might expect him to be a bitter man. In addition to his war nightmare, he seems to have a penchant for luck — sometimes not so much good as fantastic. And that's "fantastic" in the incredible sense. For instance, in 1963, Lou was in Hagerstown to visit one of his veteran buddies who had fallen ill. As Lou ascended the long outdoor staircase to the friend's home, he suffered a heart attack, falling backward down the steps. He was transported to the hospital, where he was pronounced dead. Lou came to in the hearse on its way to the funeral home. Confused, he knocked on the window separating him from the hearse driver.

"He was so upset he drove that hearse into a Hagerstown drug store, right up to the cosmetic counter," Lou said. The headline in the city paper the next day proclaimed that the "dead come alive in Hagerstown." In addition to the injury of being officially declared dead, the hearse wreck also injured Lou, whose arm was pierced through by a large piece of glass.

In the mid-1960s, Lou packed a trailer full of Florida citrus and toys and hooked it to his brand new 1967 Lincoln Continental. His destination was Hagerstown, where he knew of several families that needed his Christmas help. Driving through Glen Burnie, Lou was broadsided by another vehicle. The new car was bashed in from the driver's door all the way back. Because he was determined to arrive in Hagerstown before Christmas, he left the scene of the wreck without receiving any compensation from the offending driver. He did get the goodies to the families, all the while driving his mashed-in car. He drove it back to Florida where he repaired it at his shop and soon sold it to a co-worker.

Healthwise, Lou has suffered two other heart attacks, and nearly died about two years ago from paint poisoning. Last spring, while working on the foundation of his home in Terra Alta, he was bitten twice by a rattlesnake. As it turned out, the snake hadn't gotten a firm hold in Lou's skin, resulting in a superficial wound.

"My doctor says I'm a walking zombie," Lou said. But he maintains that there's no point in being bitter.

"I don't regret a thing in my life," he said. "I believe in the good Lord and I know he has a purpose for me. If you give of yourself, you feel better, and you make other people feel better. You can make the world better."

And Lou does indeed give of himself. Existing on a paltry $100 pension from the military and not much more in Social Security, along with a little pay from odd jobs in the area, he and Lola spend almost everything they have to round up toys and clothes to give to families in Preston and Garrett counties. Last year, the two, with the help of Lou's five children and Lola's four, delivered to 830 families. They started delivering at the end of August and finished on Jan. 3. Gathering the thousands of used articles, cleaning them, and repairing them to give away takes up the rest of the year.

Lou reports that he has plenty of good help in the physical part of the job, not only from his extended family, but also from Boy Scouts in Terra Alta and some other volunteers. But financial help is always welcome.

"We need money for reindeer feed," he said, referring to his 1989 Dodge 300 diesel vehicle. When he bought it, the Dodge had 69,000 miles on it. After five years of Santa Claus work, it has 257,000 miles on it and a dead "spicer" clutch.

"It's not going anywhere right now. We need a new double-disk clutch, which will cost $765," he said. In the meantime, Santa is using a different truck that also needs some work. Despite these obstacles, he and Lola and all their elves will probably help out over 800 families again this holiday season. While they have plenty of toys and games for little kids, Lou said they need videos, clothes, and older games for the teenagers.

"After they hit 11 or 12, it's a lot harder to get things for them," Lou said of his young recipients. "We need clothes 'from the skin out,' and other things that teenagers like."

Items can be dropped off at St. Mark's Lutheran Church in Oakland. A large box is located inside the side door of the church. Monetary donations may be mailed to Lou Stouffer at P.O. Box 56, Terra Alta, W.Va. 26764, or in care of The Republican at P.O. Box 326, Oakland, MD 21550.

At 78 years old, Lou Stouffer is a happy man. He has found his soul mate in Lola, and he adores his children and grandchildren. His house is lively with nine cats, romping around on the piles and piles of Christmas presents waiting for delivery to children who otherwise might have nothing. When he could sink into self-pity and despair over what life has handed him, Lou instead finds great joy in living every day.

In discussing the day of his birth, he said he was taken instantly from his biological mother and handed to his adoptive one. "I guess I was a mistake for my real parents," he said. But a mistake Lou Stouffer is not. Rather he is a gift — a gift to the thousands of lives he touches.

AMERICANS:

If you can read this you still have time to repent and turn back to our LORD! If you read the Bible only as a history book, you will see that Israel was placed into bondage over and over because they turned away from God. One thing upon which you can depend is that God is consistent. He will not apologize for Sodom and Gomorrah—He will not take away the 10 commandments presented to Moses in Exodus.

What is my point? When a "doctor" stabs a baby in the back of the head while it is being born, that is plain murder! In Exodus 20, verse 13 God gave Moses the commandment which says you shall not murder.

When one half of the Americans (many who read this paper) vote for a man who advocates murder—do you need such a basic approval of a criminal act explained? In conclusion, God has judged His people many times, by giving them Kings (rulers) who are evil and wicked. He will do so again unless we all repent, turn from our wicked ways and begin to live in His will. Time is running out. Read the WORD.

GETTING BACK IN SHAPE - Following knee surgery four weeks ago, Eleanor Getz, a woman who prefers to be up and on the go, accepted the fact that she would need to slow down a bit, stay home, and heal. This was her second knee replacement in 94 days. Marina Getz began therapy with Eleanor in her Friendsville home. "Marina is great. She works with you as an individual and she seems to really care about her patients," Eleanor said. Therapist and patient have been working well together, and, by all accounts, Eleanor may soon be released to resume her active lifestyle. "I love to travel so the doctor gave me a special card to show the security people in case I set off the metal detector with my new knees," Eleanor said laughing.

Marina Getz Brings Healing Touch To Homebound Patients

by Peggy Santamaría

If one asks physical therapist Marina Getz what equipment she uses most often to help her patients regain their strength, she will reply by smiling and holding up her two skilled and practiced hands. "These are the best equipment that I have for my work," she will say. Through her work she has been applying the healing touch of physical therapy to patients' injured and damaged limbs and bodies over the last 20 years.

As part of the Home Care treatment team at the Garrett County Health Department, Getz takes her healing skills to homebound patients who require varied treatment for a broad range of challenges. "I treat people of all ages. They may be young children or the elderly, or anyone in between," she noted.

The condition requiring physical therapy may have resulted from an auto accident, a fall from a horse, serious illness, or surgery, and as varied as the cases may be, so too will be the treatment applied.

The one common thread in the portfolio of cases carried by Getz is that all patients require care within the home. "The people I work with are homebound. This means that the patient would have great difficulty getting out to receive this treatment elsewhere," Getz explained.

So it is through the Home Health program that a patient, though not strong enough to get about, is able to be out of a hospital environment and back in the familiar surroundings of home. "My goal is to help the patient regain function and strength and be ready for outpatient treatment," she said.

Getz explained that going into one's home for treatment necessarily establishes a different relationship between patient and therapist than would exist in a clinic, hospital, or other outpatient facility. "You are in their private space so it is more intimate. That is why it is necessary for me to establish a good rapport. They must be able to trust and believe in me, so a lot of my work is psychology. Some of these people are alone and they are isolated — Their lives are tough."

Getz said she believes that touch in itself is an important part of the healing process and that a person must be treated as a whole being, not just a collection of fractured bones and damaged muscles.

The treatment plan differs for each patient, and Getz explained that she tries to get each patient involved in the therapy plan. "Communication is very important. I want the patient to feel some sense of control in this very difficult situation."

About 70 percent of her caseload are patients who are recovering from knee or hip surgery. They are mostly looking forward to getting back to their routines as soon as possible, she noted. But some patients will not be getting back to routines at all. "I had a child in therapy one time who had a brain tumor — it was terminal. In this case, my goal was to keep her active and improve the quality of her life. Sometimes it is these patients who are most motivated."

Motivated is a word that may also describe the therapist in the situation. Getz said she cannot believe that she found a career to which she feels so dedicated and from which takes such a sense of fulfillment.

Physical therapy is one of many services provided to residents by the Garrett County Home Health Department. Speech and occupational therapy, plus all the supportive medical services needed for a comfortable recovery, are offered in one's home. Because this service is available, patients need not be treated in nursing homes during a convalescent period.

As of July 2000, Garrett is the only county in Maryland to have home health services provided through the health department. In all other jurisdictions, home services are delivered by private providers. For more information persons may call 301-334-8113 or 301-895-3112.

Massage Therapy For Fibromyalgia Slated At GCC

The Continuing Education and Training Division of Garrett Community College will offer a one day seminar, "Clients with Fibromyalgia," on Saturday, Dec. 9 from 9 a.m. to 4:30 p.m.

This session will provide information on persons who have fibromyalgia and how massage therapy can be complementary to treatment or contraindicated.

The course is open to students who have completed the overview of bodywork and massage therapy, the general public, and practicing massage therapists as continuing education. Licensed massage therapists will earn 6 CEUs for Category A Continuing Education, and must provide proof of licensure/certification at the time of registration.

GCC is approved by the National Certification Board for Therapeutic Massage and Bodywork (NCBTMB) as a continuing education provider under category A.

The cost of the course is $95 for Garrett County residents with an added differential for out-of-county residents and a reduced fee for Maryland senior citizens over age 60. For additional information persons may phone 301-387-3088, or stop in the Continuing Education and Training Division office, McHenry campus, Room 300.

Local Seniors Eligible For Rx Coverage

Approximately 300 Garrett County Seniors are eligible for prescription drug coverage under a program established by the Maryland General Assembly to help people in 17 rural counties who no longer have access to Medicare+Choice HMO. To date, program enrollment has been low in Garrett County, according to Adina Brode, director of Community Action Area Agency on Aging.

Noting that while the program is not a long-term solution to the high cost of prescription drugs for seniors, Brode said it can provide a temporary relief. "We want to get the word out to seniors so that they can take advantage of this benefit," she stated.

The Rural Senior Prescription Drug Program offers as many as 15,000 eligible seniors statewide $1,000 in annual drug benefits, plus negotiated discounts on prescription medicines.

Though currently limited to seniors who had received their health care under a Medicare+Choice plan that subsequently dropped coverage, this program will be available to all residents age 65 or over who qualify for Medicare and live in one of the 17 rural counties.

For more information, persons may call CareFirst at 1-800-972-4612.

Cancer Group To Hold Service

The Cancer Support Group is planning a memorial service for deceased members on November 28 at 7 p.m. at the Community Services building next to Garrett Memorial Hospital. Those who will be included in this memorial are former members Donna Zimmerman, Marsha Callis, Susie Scott, Shirley McNair, Elaine Gardner, Pat Callis, Wilda Massi, Harriet DeBerry and Jackie Seuss.

A member of the family or good friend is invited to attend the service as a representative. Those who are able to attend are asked to contact Kitty Poyer at 301-387-4173.

Health Careers Workshop Slated For Local Youth

A Health Connections 2000 Health Career Pathway Workshop for all interested eighth and ninth graders is set for Monday, Nov. 20, from 6:30 to 8:30 p.m. in Room 308 of the Continuing Education Building of Garrett Community College.

The session will provide students with current information on career opportunities through topics such as decision making and career choices, utilizing a variety of interactive group activities and computerized career exploration. Parents will be provided with information about enrichment opportunities, job outlooks, academic foundations, general requirements for health care experiences, the availability of over $100 million in scholarships and financial aid, and how to begin planning for a future in the health field.

Persons interested in attending are asked to call Jennifer Blatchley of Western AHEC at 301-777-9150, ext. 103. Refreshments will be provided. The workshop is sponsored by the Western Maryland Area Health Education Center with funding from the Western Maryland Cancer Connections Employment Involvement Fund.

Eye Examination Urged For Those With Diabetes

The Maryland Society for Sight, along with the federal government's National Eye Institute (NEI) and 41 other organizations, urges people with diabetes to have an annual dilated eye exam to detect eye disease in its early stages and help prevent vision loss.

According to a spokesman for the Maryland Society for Sight, of the approximately 10.5 million Americans diagnosed with diabetes, 40-45 percent of them have some degree of diabetic retinopathy, a potentially blinding eye disease that is a complication of diabetes.

"Diabetic retinopathy has no early warning signs, so you may not notice changes in your vision until it's too late," said Kathleen Curtin, executive director of the Maryland Society for Sight, adding that early detection, and treatment may save the sight of more than 90 percent of those who would otherwise become blind from the disease.

Curtin also said that people with diabetes can slow the onset and progression of diabetic retinopathy and reduce the likelihood of vision loss through better control of blood sugar level.

Oakland Station Among Stops On Red Cross Tour

The recently restored Oakland train station will be included in this year's American Red Cross Home for the Holidays House Tours, slated for Dec. 1 from 4 until 9 p.m., and Dec. 2 from 10 a.m. until 3 p.m. The 2000 event will feature the homes of three families, as well as the 1884 station. All proceeds from the house tours will go toward the local Red Cross chapter, to be used to meet the immediate needs of disaster victims.

Historians consider the E. Francis Baldwin design of Oakland's station to be a "most elegant example" of the English Queen Anne architectural style. Its most prominent features are the circular tower with the bell-shaped roof, the half-timbered gables, and the fish-scale shingles.

OAKLAND TRAIN STATION

The station reopened on Oct. 7, 1999, after a year-long restoration project, which included restoring the molded brick, stone trim, slate roof, and stained glass of the building. The slate for the roof was obtained in Virginia from the same mine that the original slate came from.

The entire project followed years of work by Mayor Asa McCain and the town council to first gain ownership of the station, and then obtain grant monies and other funding resources to restore it.

The first train came into Oakland in 1851, and the station was completed four years later. Passenger trains operated for over a century, ceasing in the early 1970s. From that time until about two years ago, the station was owned by CSX and was used as a storage building for that train company. Now the station is owned by the town, and is the cornerstone of "Heritage Square," the area in front of the station where many community activities will take place in the future.

In addition to touring the entire building, guests on the Red Cross tours will also have the opportunity to view Scott Atwill's model train display inside the station, depicting Oakland's former Railroad Street as it was in days gone by.

During the Red Cross tours, raffles will be held at each location for gifts donated by local businesses. Those participating in this year's raffle are Country Treasures, Simon Pearce, 4 All Seasons, and Flowers by Webers. Joanne Glotfelty is also providing a raffle prize.

Tickets for all ages will be $5 in advance or $7 at the door. Advance tickets can be purchased at Proudfoot's and Gregg's pharmacies, Flowers by Webers, Arrowhead Market, and the Deep Creek Pharmacy.

(Persons should note that the home of Jim and Nancy Bauer, located along Lakeshore Drive, which was originally part of this year's lineup, has been removed from the tour event because of damages caused by a recent fire.)

More 911 Map Books Available At Courthouse

The Garrett County Planning and Zoning Office has received another shipment of the new 911 map books of the county, which are available to the public. The book is similar to the original printing, including detailed mapping of the entire county and an alphabetical road listing, according to an office spokesperson.

A new feature of the latest printing is a color-coded designation of road maintenance, the spokesperson noted.

The books sell for $7 each and can be purchased at the planning office, located on the third floor of the county courthouse in Oakland. The office hours are 8 a.m. until 4:30 p.m., Monday through Friday.

The Republican Seeking Young Writers, Artists

The Republican newspaper is hosting an essay and art contest for area children up to age 12. The winners will be announced in the paper's special Christmas supplement, "Home for the Holidays," which will be included in the Dec. 7 issue. Prizes will be awarded in three categories, which are as follows: essay, ages 7-9; essay, ages 10-12; and art, up to age 6. The theme to be used for all entries is "The Best Christmas Gift I Ever Received."

The essays should be about 150 words, written by children ages 7 through 12. Children age 6 and younger may draw their "best Christmas gift" on 8 1/2 x 11-inch sheets of paper (standard size). The name of the writer or artist should be written on the entry, as well as the address, phone number, and age. Each entrant is also encouraged to include a picture of himself or herself. The pictures of the winners will be published along with their winning entries in "Home for the Holidays."

The deadline for entry is Tuesday, Nov. 28. Entries can be dropped off at the Oakland or Grantsville office, or can be mailed to: "Christmas Essay/Art," The Republican Newspaper, P.O. Box 326, Oakland, MD 21550. The prizes will consist mostly of gift certificates to area businesses.

For more information, persons may call the newspaper office at 301-334-3963.

Success Of Small Towns Topic Of Wyo. Workshop

Mikal McCartney, the vice president of Community and Economic Development of Garrett County Community Action Committee Inc., recently participated in a five-day leadership institute in Jackson Hole, Wyo., titled "Helping Small Towns Succeed."

McCartney, a scholarship recipient, joined over 40 other participants from 21 communities in the United States, as well as Ireland, for the eight annual program presented by the Heartland Center for Leadership Development.

"Helping Small Towns Succeed" is a training program for rural community development specialists who work for local, regional, state, or federal agencies, and who have assignments that include building a community's capacity for sustainable development. McCartney said the institute helps community development professionals learn or refine skills that they can apply immediately in their work with rural leaders, especially with communities whose local economies are undergoing significant changes.

In addition to dealing with change, topics covered included mapping community assets, marketing the community, strategic planning, leadership characteristics and practices, and managing community conflict.

The workshop was developed by the Heartland Center, with major funding provided by the W.K. Kellogg Foundation. The Center also offers a follow-up program, "Skill-Building for Stronger Communities," each spring in Jackson Hole. Since 1992, the two programs have served more than 550 community leaders, McCartney reported.

The Heartland Center is an independent non-profit organization with its major focus on the practical resources and public policies for rural community development, McCartney said. "The center is recognized internationally for its hands-on approach to strengthening leadership for small towns and rural communities, and especially for its research, publications, and workshop, "Clues to Rural Community Survival," McCartney said.

Md. State Police Slate Campaign To "Buckle-Up"

The Maryland State Police announced this week that "Operation ABC Mobilization: America Buckles Up Children" will begin Monday, Nov. 20. This weeklong operation is sponsored by the Air Bag & Seat Belt Safety Campaign and Mothers Against Drunk Driving.

Operation ABC will involve education and enforcement to increase public awareness and safety. Child safety seats will be checked on November 21 from 10 a.m. to noon at the Garrett County Health Department located along Garrett Highway, Oakland. In addition, Maryland State troopers will give safety lectures at selected area schools.

Bernards Note 50th Anniversary

Roland and Norma (Breneman) Bernard of Canton, Ohio, celebrated their 50th wedding anniversary Saturday, Nov. 4, at the Gruber Family Life Center in Canton. The event was hosted by the couple's daughter and son-in-law, Crystal and Gary Mitchell.

The Bernards were married Oct. 28, 1950, at the First Assembly of God Church in Westernport, with the Rev. Ernest Welford officiating. The couple are Swanton area natives, and they resided in Oakland until relocating to Canton in 1956.

Mr. Bernard is retired from Republic/LTV Steel Corporation and is currently a self-employed insurance agent. Mrs. Bernard is employed by the J.C. Penney Company.

The couple attend the Bethel Temple Assemblies of God Church in Canton, where Mrs. Bernard is a member of the Women's Ministries group and Mr. Bernard is a member of the church board. He is also a member of the National Rifle Association and the Ohio Gun Collectors' Association.

LITTLE NICKY

Rated PG-13 - Running Time: 1:24 - Released 11/10/00
 There has been a rash of films released lately that deal with satanic issues, both from a comedic standpoint (Bedazzled) to the classic of classic horror stories (The Exorcist). If you want the low comedy version, however, you want Little Nicky. Adam Sandler's goofy supernatural comedy about the ineffectual spawn of Satan who travels to Earth to save dear old Dad. Written by Sandler and long-time partners Tim Herlihy and Steven Brill, and directed by Brill, Little Nicky plays like a middle-school film project, with jokes that wouldn't be funny even if they were delivered well. It has poor effects, a lame story, and one of Sandler's least likable characters to date, but hey, for the 14-year-old kids who buy most of the tickets, it'll probably do just fine.

Nicky (Sandler) is the sweet but weak-willed son of Satan (Harvey Keitel) who spends most of his time in Hell fending off the abuse of his two older and stronger brothers, Adrian (Rhys Ifans) and Cassius (Tom "Tiny" Lister Jr.). When the old man reneges on a promise to make one of his sons the next underworld ruler, Adrian and Cassius decide to ascend to Earth to convert it into their own personal Hades. Their exit, however, freezes the gates of Hell and causes their father to begin deteriorating for lack of souls. With only a week before Dad withers away completely, Nicky must go after his brothers and convince them to come back, aided only by a bulldog named Beefy (voice of Robert Smigel).

Upon reaching Earth, Nicky must learn about eating, sleeping, and various other bodily functions, not to mention avoiding "large, metal objects" in order to stay alive and complete his mission. Although Beefy tries to get him to "release the evil" and thereby overcome his brothers' dark powers, he is hindered by his own good nature, especially after meeting a sweet girl named Valerie (Patricia Arquette), who seems to be the first person ever to like him despite his awkward manner.

This film is pretty much stupid from start to finish, although there are occasions when one is unable to stifle an embarrassed chuckle. Sandler, who was charming and funny in The Wedding Singer, and crafted many enjoyable personae during his stint on Saturday Night Live, seems to prefer broad characters and low-end scripts, since they make up the vast majority of entries on his resume these days. It is surprising, however, that he was able to convince several big name performers to participate in this weak entry, including not only Keitel but Quentin Tarantino and Rodney Dangerfield, not to mention a host of his former SNL colleagues like Dana Carvey, Kevin Nealon, Michael McKean, and Jon Lovitz. There's even a surprise appearance by heavy metal rocker Ozzy Osbourne. But the performances of these people make the film look more like a drunken frat party than a movie serious about being funny. ★½

RED PLANET

Rated PG-13 - Running Time: 1:46 - Released 11/10/00
 Space movies have been popular since the first sputtering of Sputnik, and in this golden age of computer wizardry, Hollywood filmmakers are having a field day, taking pains to create what appears to be authentic, believable effects with regard to space technology and planetary landscapes. Unfortunately, they keep forgetting about creating believable people. In Mission To Mars, which was released last March, and 1998's Species 2 (which included a Mars mission, not to mention non-Mars-related features like Armageddon, Supernova, and Sphere, the common thread is the lack of a believable crew. Hoffman's freshman effort, the ambitious Red Planet, is no different. Although Hoffman and his screenwriters, Chuck Pfarrer and Jonathan Lemkin, show their respect for the greats by making obvious references to 2001: A Space Odyssey, and have created a rather interesting story with beautiful outer space scenery, their astronauts act like actors, not like astronauts.

The first reference to 2001 is the name of the mission commander: Bowman. However, this time it's Kate Bowman, played by Carrie-Anne Moss. The film begins with Cmdr. Bowman introducing her crew and explaining the mission. The year is 2057, and Mars has been chosen for the relocation of us earthlings, who have finally poisoned our own planet beyond repair. Unmanned missions have planted algae to create an atmosphere, and Mars is now almost livable for oxygen-breathing life forms. There's no Wal-Mart yet, though.

The crew is being sent to investigate a change in the algae population, and includes the arrogant co-pilot Ted Santen (Benjamin Bratt), the atheist science officer Dr. Quinn Burchenal (Tom Sizemore), the hunky and humble maintenance engineer Robby Gallagher (Val Kilmer), the spiritual Dr. Bud Chantillas (Terence Stamp), and the dark and enigmatic Chip Pettengill (Simon Baker). Also along is Aimee, the robot that looks and acts like a very, very smart German shepherd, and is trained not only to navigate the Martian surface, but kill on command. Just in case H.G. Wells was right. Although all these people are supposed to be professionals, they bicker among themselves about God, their importance on the mission, or any other subject that comes up, and compete for the title of First One To Make It With The Commander, until they reach their destination.

No space movie is worth its salt if nothing goes wrong, and several things do. The ship is disabled by a solar flare, the escape pod is damaged, forcing a crash landing, and the cyber-dog gets broken. This doesn't kill her but switches her to attack mode (second 2001 reference — the one-eyed robot gone bad). And to top it all off, the habitat that was supposed to be there for them to live in isn't there. So we have a bunch of guys stranded on an alien world with no air, no food, and a giant metal attack dog stalking them. And you thought you had problems.

While this film is visually pleasing and sprinkled with just enough science to seem intelligent but not annoying (there's even a special appearance by the good ol' Mars Fathinder), its characters are right out of a comic book. Kilmer and Moss are perhaps the most believable; their low-key performances help keep the schlock to a minimum. But there's a simple lack of realism in the redneck-bar-style male posturing, there are more life-and-death struggles than should be allowed by law, and the bad dog scenario is more laughable than horrifying. Incidentally, 2001 is scheduled for re-release on Dec. 31, just in time to ring in its namesake year. At least we know there's a sensible crew on that mission. ★★½

MEN OF HONOR

Rated R - Running Time: 2:08 - Released 11/10/00

At the opening of Men of Honor, we learn that it is based on the true story of the life of Navy diver Carl Brashear. It is such an amazing story, it is altogether proper that it be made into a movie. But as we have learned from films like Patch Adams, Music From The Heart, and The Hurricane, a good story is not all that is needed for a good film. More importantly, writers are needed who can translate the momentous scope and heroism of a story like this to the screen in a way that is moving, yet not emotionally manipulative. This must be tricky, because like the films mentioned above, Men of Honor pushes too hard on the sentimentality button and hamstring its own effectiveness. Although Brashear's story is truly incredible in many ways, Scott Marshall Smith's screenplay, and therefore George Tillman Jr.'s film, is far too melodramatic for its own good, and its choppy, episodic structure gives the impression that too much is being crammed into too little time. Even the talents of award-winning actors like Robert De Niro and Cuba Gooding Jr. cannot save this film from itself.

Carl Brashear (Gooding) enlisted in the U.S. Navy sometime during the early 1950s, and was assigned to the USS Tiger, a ship dedicated to undersea search and rescue operations. Being a black man, Carl's best assignment on the ship is as a cook. Also on board is the brash hothead Master Chief Billy Sunday (De Niro), whose dedication to his job occasionally leads him to the point of disobeying the orders of his superior, the much younger Cmdr. Hanks (David Conrad). Sunday's insubordination, and Brashear's desire to become a Navy diver, cause their paths to be inextricably intertwined, as Sunday is reassigned to a small diver training base in New Jersey, where Brashear signs on as the first black trainee. With the exception of one other sailor named Snowhill (Michael Rapaport), Brashear is ostracized by the entire company, including the senile commanding officer, a wizened old sailor called "Mr. Pappy" (Hal Holbrook), whose living quarters are atop a tall watchtower in the middle of the base.

During his training, Brashear excels at everything except his written exams, so he seeks the guidance of a young female law student named Jo (Aunjanue Ellis), who is also struggling against the racial barriers of the time. Eventually, against Mr. Pappy's orders, Sunday must pass Brashear, who begins his active service as a Navy diver, working toward his eventual goal of becoming a Master Chief like his unwilling mentor.

We follow Brashear's story through a confusing series of flashbacks and forwards, with much of the film being concerned with the drippy relationship of Carl and Jo, but also with Sunday and his wife Gwen (Charlize Theron). The portions that deal with the actual diving are usually gripping and well-paced, but the above-ground scenes are uniformly overwrought. Sunday goes through so many states of mind (and consequently, so many changes in rank) that his existence as a real person is called into question. He seems almost more like an amalgamation of several people, too many to inhabit one body. Brashear, meanwhile, is portrayed as a nearly faultless individual. He is a hero, but a hero without faults is a comic book character. Moreover, the final court scene with the too-evil-to-be-real Hanks presiding, is completely over the top, and its resolution, intended to provoke cheers, will more likely result in groans and a sickish feeling in the stomach.

While director Tillman gained moderate success with his first major release, 1997's Soul Food, he could still be called a novice, and this is Smith's first screenplay. The lack of experience between the two main creative forces results in an unfortunately sappy telling of a truly amazing story. ★★ traveling westbound on the highway at 1:05 a.m. when three deer apparently ran in front of her vehicle near Mason School Road. She lost control of her 1985 Chevrolet Blazer when she swerved to miss the animals, and the truck crossed the centerline and the east-bound lane, hit an embankment off the shoulder, and rolled over.

Gank was later charged with DWI. A passenger, 39-year-old Mark Meyer of Oakland, refused medical treatment. The Gorman Volunteer Fire Department also responded to the scene.

A Wednesday morning accident along Garrett Highway south of Oakland was attributed to ice on the roadway, and no charges were filed.

Nancy Lee Ekholm, 55, Parsons, W. Va., was traveling north on the highway at 7:25 a.m. when her 1999 Suzuki Vitara skidded on a patch of ice near Jasper Riley Road. The vehicle hit an embankment and rolled over on its top. The Southern Rescue Squad transported Ekholm to Garrett Memorial, where she was treated for her injuries and released. The Oakland Volunteer Fire Department assisted on the scene.

The sheriff's office noted that at least six accidents over the past 48 hours were attributable to icy road conditions, although Ekholm's mishap was the only one to involve a treatable injury. Sheriff Dick Sanders cautioned all drivers to exercise extra care in navigating local roads when the threat of icing is evident.

Deputies Make Drug Arrests Tuesday Night

Garrett County sheriff's deputies patrolling the northern reaches of the county made three drug arrests Tuesday night in a pair of unrelated incidents.

Shortly after 10:30 p.m., DFC Robbie Zimmerman made a traffic stop of a vehicle he had observed weaving along Route 42 just north of Friendsville. The driver of the car, James Edward Herring, 35, Markleysburg, Pa., was arrested for driving while intoxicated (DWI).

A subsequent search revealed that Herring was carrying a bag containing suspected prescription medication, and a vehicle search uncovered a suspected burnt marijuana cigarette and several items of suspected drug paraphernalia. Additional charges of possession of marijuana and marijuana paraphernalia were filed against Herring and his passenger, Larry Allen Fisher Jr., 20, also of Markleysburg.

Both Herring and Fisher were subsequently released from the Garrett County Detention Center when each posted a $500 bond.

Earlier that same evening, Cpl. Mike Bittinger was called to a home along Old Morgantown Road shortly after 8 p.m. to speak with a subject who appeared to be acting in a suspicious manner. As he was interviewing Gary Lee James Coddington, 19, Friendsville, the deputy noted that Coddington was behaving in a way consistent with drug-related intoxication.

A second deputy observed, lying in plain view, a beer can in Coddington's room that appeared to have been modified into a marijuana smoking pipe. Further investigation led the deputies to arrest Coddington on charges of possession of marijuana and drug paraphernalia. He is currently being detained in a facility located in Allegany County on a $500 bond.

Morgantown Men Face GBI Charges Of Vehicle Theft

Two Morgantown, W.Va., men were arrested yesterday by Garrett Bureau of Investigation detectives in connection with a year-old vehicle theft in the Deep Creek Lake area.

Anthony Joseph Meredith, 20, and Christopher Adam Reil, 19, both face charges of auto theft, theft conspiracy, and three counts each of felony theft. The investigation resulted in allegations that the pair stole a vehicle and broke into several other vehicles parked along Lake Shore Drive last November.

Meredith was released from the Garrett County Detention Center after he posted a $5,000 bond, while Reil remains incarcerated on a $5,000 bond.

In other GBI news, two juveniles were arrested yesterday on charges involving two Friendsville-area burglaries that were reported to detectives on Monday. The youths, 16 and 15, are suspected of carrying out a burglary of the Friendsville Lions Club building during which $430 in property was stolen and $300 in damage was done to the facility. The second burglary involved an American flag valued at $75 and a Lions Club banner worth $50 that were removed from the stage at the Friendsville town park.

The juveniles face charges of two counts each of second degree burglary and misdemeanor theft, and one count of malicious destruction of property. Following the 16-year-old's arrest, he was released into the custody of a parent, and at last account the 15-year-old was still being detained in a juvenile holding facility until a date is set for trial. Both cases will be processed by the Department of Juvenile Justice.

Janie Lee Collins, 24, Oakland, was arrested by GBI detectives Tuesday on two counts of second degree assault stemming from a pair of domestic altercations dating back to this past September and May. After the suspected victim filed an application for charges, the ensuing investigation resulted in the issuing of an arrest warrant. Collins has been released from jail on his own recognizance.

Robert Lee Hutzell, 33, Salisbury, Pa., was arrested yesterday after a GBI investigation revealed that he was allegedly collecting welfare benefits from the state of Maryland while residing in Pennsylvania. After being processed at the jail on charges of welfare fraud, felony theft, and perjury, Hutzell was released on his own recognizance.

tant to them to obtain the ideas and opinions of the residents and business owners of the area.

In addition to the space immediately needed at the McHenry office, the representatives reported that a growth in business is expected at a rate of about 2% each year for the next several years. Currently there are 772 post office boxes at the facility, but Phyllis Vitez, postmaster, said that over 1,000 are needed.

The options will be discussed over the next several weeks, and O'Connor said with the best possible scenario, the entire process will take at least one year.

Commissioner Wendell Beitzel asked that the direction of the project design be in keeping with the surrounding buildings, and the postal officials said they would work to honor that request.

Beitzel also asked about the status of the Mountain Lake Park facility which has been in the planning stages for some time. The officials reported that several sites are now being considered for the new building.

Narcotics Task Force Arrests Two From W.Va.

Two residents of Bruce-ton Mills, W.Va., were arrested Monday on drug and handgun charges, according to Lisa Thayer Welch, state's attorney for Garrett County and spokesperson for the Garrett County Narcotics Task Force.

William Pegg, 36, and Heather Nicklow, 23, were arrested following a traffic stop while they were traveling on Route 219 near Oakland at about 7 a.m.

A K-9 scan of the vehicle reportedly resulted in a positive alert for a controlled dangerous substance. A search of the vehicle revealed a quantity of suspected marijuana and a loaded handgun.

Pegg was charged with possession of marijuana, possession of paraphernalia, and possession of a handgun in a vehicle. Nicklow was charged with possession of marijuana. Both were released by the district court commissioner on their personal recognizance after a bond hearing pending a district court trial date. Task Force personnel were assisted by the Garrett County Sheriff's Office.

MLP, Deer Park Awarded Block Grant Funding

Deer Park and Mountain Lake Park were among the communities to be awarded grants last week as part of the Department of Housing and Community Development's (DHCD) distribution of almost $4 million for 11 projects in smaller communities around Maryland. The state receives the funds for these grants through the Community Development Block Grant (CDBG) program, administered by the U.S. Department of Housing and Urban Development.

Deer Park will receive a grant of $82,000 to help connect 71 low- and moderate income home owners to a new water system.

Mountain Lake Park will receive a grant of $70,000 to help acquire a blighted property that the town will demolish.

Laker Women's Basketball Team Loaded With Experience, Promise

The 2000-2001 edition of the Garrett Community College women's basketball team looks a great deal like the previous year's model, as head coach Ann Wellham has eight Lakers returning from last year's 10-player roster. The GCC skipper was already thinking of this season when, at the conclusion of last year's campaign, she commented, "I've seen a lot of growth from several players. We ran out of time this year, but next year shows promise."

Garrett will start the march toward improving last season's 11-14 record with a season opener set for Tuesday night when CCAC-Allegany pays a visit. Tip-off time in McHenry is slated for 5 p.m.

Wellham and assistant coach Steve Willison concur that their program is on the upswing. "We have a lot of strong sophomores that have matured physically and mentally since last season, and a strong freshman class," remarked Willison. "We feel confident that if we put the two together we'll have a successful season."

After losing only two players, forward Tasha Blackmon and guard Amanda Larnard, the Lakers will bank on the experience and maturity referred to by the assistant coach. Last year's leading scorer, sophomore guard Donielle Gaines, will be among the top returnees. Gaines paced the Lakers with a 11.4 scoring average last season, was runner-up in assists with a total of 29, and her post-season performance earned her a berth on the Maryland JUCO All-Tournament Team.

Returning to the backcourt with Gaines will be fellow sophomore Shawntice McLaughlin, who dished out a team-high 111 assists last year. The nimble-handed guard recorded 70 steals, also a team benchmark, and averaged 5.2 points and 3.6 rebounds per outing on her way to JUCO All-Conference Honorable Mention status for the regular season.

Classmate Erica Henderson, also a JUCO All-Conference Honorable Mention selectee last season as a forward, returns with her 7.8 rebound average, good for second on the squad, and third-place average of 7.8 points per contest. Henderson also recorded totals of 30 steals and six blocked shots, both good for third place in the team tallies.

Center Tameka Graves hopes to continue the momentum she established during last year's post-season play. Graves had a career night with 22 points, 16 rebounds, and three steals during Garrett's 65-60 loss to Prince George's CC last March, which eliminated the unit from tournament play. Her numbers were rewarded, however, when she was named to the JUCO Region XX All-Tournament Second Team. The 6-1 standout led the Lakers with 16 blocked shots on the year, and averaged 8.4 points and 6.6 rebounds per game.

Gretchen Baker, a former standout for the Preston High Knights, will be back for her final season.

The guard who hails from nearby Aurora, W.Va., averaged 5.2 points and 2.7 rebounds per game last year, and also earned a spot on the GCC athletic department honor roll.

Second-year pivot player Sha'Ray Washington had a great night, along with fellow center Graves, during the season finale with PGCC by nabbing 13 rebounds and dishing out four assists. Washington brings her identical 5.0 averages in both the scoring and rebounding columns back to the McHenry court for another year.

Rounding out the sophomore class are a pair of backcourt players, guards

"New Lakers" Open Season With Three Straight Wins

There are few familiar faces on the 2000-01 Garrett Community College men's basketball team, but the Lakers opened their season like a veteran team this past week, winning their two games in their own Preview Tournament and another contest last night to give them a 3-0 start. Coach Dennis Gibson's squad crushed visiting Penn State Beaver in an opening round game of the Preview Tournament Friday, 108-57, defeated Potomac State in the tourney's title game Saturday night, 92-79, and then whipped Penn State McKeesport last night, 93-73, also on the Lakers' court.

Kortaa Hall, a 6-3 freshman, paced the Lakers in their easy win over Penn State Beaver on Friday by recording 23 points and 11 assists, with 15 of his points being scored from three-point range.

Garrett held a comfortable 50-32 advantage at halftime and then poured it on in the second half to win by 51. Also reaching double figures for the Lakers were Antonio Lappegard with 16 points, and Jontae Harrington and Ladon Garrett with 12 apiece.

John Stone was the only member of the Beaver team to reach double figures in scoring, as he recorded 16 points.

The tournament title game against Potomac State was far more evenly matched, as the Lakers trailed by three points, 42-39, at halftime, but came back to out-score the Catamounts in the second half by a 53-37 margin.

Kortaa Hall again led the offensive attack for GCC, as he pumped in 22 points, while Harrington was right behind with 20. Rob Hall and Lappegard each contributed 17 points in the balanced effort. The Lakers connected on 29 of 60 shots from the floor for just under 50% effectiveness, and also converted 26 of 33 free throws (78%).

Harrington connected on seven of 11 shots, made good on six of eight from the free throw line, and also pulled down a team-high eight rebounds.

Rob Hall, a 5-11 sophomore guard, also reached double figures in assists with a game-high 13, and had four steals.

Pacing the Catamounts in scoring were Martellus Braxton with a game-high 23 points, and Shannon Layton and Joe Hardin with 15 points each. Brandon Houghton pulled down eight rebounds.

The Lakers knotted the game at 46-46 on a three-point bucket by Kortaa Hall at the 15:57 mark. They took the lead for good on an eight-point run by Harrington and slowly pulled away. Harrington also had two key offensive rebounds in the final minute.

"This was a great win against a talented team," stated Coach Gibson. "We had a couple letdowns, but Rob Hall did a fine job getting us back on track by running our offense. Our consistent defensive effort really meant the difference though."

Potomac State earned a spot in the finals by defeating Rockingham, N.C., in the other opening game Friday night. Rockingham won the consolation game over Beaver, 95-80.

For the third time in as many games, Kortaa Hall led the Lakers last night against Penn State McKeesport, as he finished with 18 points and six steals. The Lakers recorded a total of 19 steals.

Garrett was on top by nine points, 45-36, at halftime and doubled the lead in the second half with strong play from many reserves. A dozen Lakers saw action in the contest.

"We had some early foul trouble, but our bench is pretty deep," Gibson said. "Lee Parris and Anthony Campbell stepped up and picked up the slack very well for us."

Also reaching double figures for the Lakers were Antonio Lappegard with 14 points and Ladon Garrett with 12. Campbell pulled a team-high seven rebounds to go with his nine points, and Rob Hall scored eight points and dished out six assists.

Spearheading McKeesport's offensive effort was Lawson with 23 points, while Anderson netted 10.

The Lakers will host their annual McDonald's Tournament this weekend. They will play Reading Area Community College in the second game on Friday, set to tip off at 7 p.m. Ocean County Community College and Dundalk Community College will meet in the first game, which will get under way at 5 p.m. The consolation and championship games will be played Saturday at 1 p.m. and 3 p.m., respectively.

The Lakers will host Penn State Fayette next Tuesday and then take a week off for the Thanksgiving holiday.

Former Laker Levi Making An Impact At CWV

Dexter Levi, a former standout on the Garrett Community College basketball team, is now attending the College of West Virginia, where he has been instrumental in the Cougars' 4-0 start and a victory over NAIA national power, Life College, Ga., in the championship game of the Life Tip-Off Tournament. Life College was ranked #1 in the national pre-season poll and has lost a total of three homes games in the past 10 years.

Levi recorded 14 points, five rebounds, and two blocked shots in the championship game. Overall, the 6-3 power forward is averaging just under 13 points per game and has connected on 22 of 35 shots from the floor for a 63.6 field goal percentage. He is also averaging just under six rebounds per game, while averaging just 19 minutes of playing time per contest.

"Dexter is a warrior!" stated CWV coach Bob Bolen. "We bring him off the bench behind 6-9 Ron Conway, and he gives us a huge boost with his intensity level and scoring."

"We have had great success with Garrett Lakers in our program," he added. "They are well prepared and know what is expected of them to compete on a national level."

Former Lakers Ronald Rhodes and Frank Winter also attend and play for the College of West Virginia.

Rams Dominate Huskies In Fumble-Riddled Final, 30-6

Coming into the 2000 high school football season it was believed by many area fans that Southern High School might not win more than two games, as the Rams were facing possibly their toughest schedule ever and were under new leadership with practically an entirely new coaching staff, including head coach Fred Gregg. However, the Rams surprised many people throughout the campaign, and capped their season Friday night at home with a big 30-6 victory over county rival Northern to finish with a 6-4 record. The playoff-bound Huskies came into Oakland with a 7-1 record, having lost only to Westmar, the other 1A team from the area that has qualified for the playoffs. Friday's contest was played in absolutely miserable conditions, which included a heavy drizzle, temperatures in the mid-30s, and gale force winds. The conditions made holding on to the ball difficult, but much more so for the Huskies, who had what is probably a single-game record of 13 fumbles, of which they lost only three to the Rams. Southern dropped the ball six times, losing it twice. "It was unbelievably frustrating," said Northern coach Phil Carr. "When you have two backs like Wolf and Dozier, both of whom can run with anybody, and you can't get the ball into their hands — it was really frustrating. We would make a nice gain on first down time and time again, but then a fumble or busted play would stall us out."

Because of the conditions there were only four passes, two by each team, and just one completion by the Huskies; however, Southern did complete a two-point conversion pass (not included in regular stats). The Rams amassed 329 yards rushing, while the Huskies' total was 116.

The Huskies possessed the ball first in the game, and marched all the way to the Rams' 21-yard line before turning the ball over on downs. The Rams' first drive was also stalled, but got another opportunity early in the second quarter when the Huskies coughed up the ball on their own 39 and Southern's James Preston recovered it.

It took only four plays for the Rams to put the first points on the board, as senior quarterback Josh

FOLLOWING HIS BUDDY through the defensive unit of the Northern Huskies in the above photo is Southern Ram Steve Skipper, as quarterback Josh Sharon (#16) runs interference for him. The Rams dominated the playoff-bound Huskies, 30-6, to claim Garrett County football bragging rights for the 2000 season. The contest was played on the Rams' field in miserable weather conditions, which directly caused or contributed to a total of 19 fumbles. Also identifiable in the photo are Southern's Brad Palmer (#54), and Northern's Thomas Menges (#78) and Elliot Perfolli (#85). The shot below was taken just after Southern's Jeremy Hayhurst (on the bottom of the stack at left) scored the Rams' fourth and final touchdown of the night. Making the tackle was Northern's Bill Rodeheaver (#30). Other Huskies in the photo are Aaron Mitchell (#11), Menges (#78), and Brandon Kamp (#15). Other Rams in the scene are Josh Fitzwater (#12) and John Hayhurst (#68). The win gave the Rams a final 6-4 record, and dropped the Huskies' regular-season mark to 7-2. The Huskies will meet Cambridge-South Dorchester, the top-ranked 1A team in the state, this Saturday in a state playoff game. Photos by John McEwen.

Sharon scored on an eight-yard run around the right side of the line with 8:21 remaining in the quarter. Because of the strong winds, Coach Gregg elected to go for a two-point conversion, and Steve Skipper scored the first one on a run to give Southern an 8-0 lead.

The Ram defense stopped the Huskies on their next drive and forced a punt. On a first-and-15 play, Sharon handed off to Jeremy Lear, who broke through the Husky line and raced 60 yards to the end zone. A pass from Sharon to Josh Fitzwater for the conversion gave the Rams a 16-0 advantage at the 5:30 mark of the first period, and the score remained that way until the fourth quarter.

The Rams maintained possession of the ball for 10:05 of the third quarter, eating up the clock with a 12-play, 65-yard scoring drive that was capped by a 16-yard touchdown run by Skipper just 22 seconds into the fourth period. The kick for the conversion by Jeremy Hayhurst was no good, leaving the Rams with a 22-0 lead.

It didn't take long for the Rams to stretch their lead farther, as the Huskies again turned the ball over via a fumble. Jeremy Hayhurst, who recovered the loose ball on Northern's 30, concluded the short ensuing drive with a five-yard touchdown run. A conversion run by Jay Tressler put the Rams up 30-0 with 8:57 remaining in the game.

The Huskies finally got on the board when quarterback Trey Brenneman scored on a three-yard run. The conversion attempt failed.

Hayhurst led a balanced rushing effort for the Rams by amassing 114 yards on 38 carries, while Skipper picked up 94 yards on 14 attempts. Lear had 62 yards on just three carries, and Sharon added 35 yards on 11 carries. Mark Wolf paced the Huskies' ground game with 65 yards on 10 carries.

"We were very happy with our kids' effort," Coach Gregg said. "We were anticipating a tough, close game, but their fumbles really hurt them. It probably would have been much closer on a dry field.

"Our goal each week is to take control of the line of scrimmage," he said, "and we were able to do that after their first drive."

"We're very disappointed in the outcome and the way we played," Coach Carr said. "All our players and our coaching staff think we didn't give our best effort. Fred (Gregg) and I both said beforehand that the team that made the fewest mistakes would win, and that turned out to be true."

"But I don't want to take anything away from Southern," he said. "The Rams were well prepared and gave a great effort. We said all year long that Westmar and Southern would be our two toughest games, and that's the way it was."

"Southern not only has good athletes and coaches, they are a class organization," Carr continued. "Their players were competitive athletes, but they showed excellent sportsmanship, which is a fine tribute to their coaching."

In reflecting on the 2000 season, Gregg described his team's 6-4 finish "a huge accomplishment."

"We told the kids that, when people 10 years from now look back at their record, unfortunately they won't realize what a tremendous effort this was," he said. "Our limited numbers, the strength of our schedule, and the fact that we had to make several long, difficult road trips make a 6-4 record a tremendous effort. Our goal was to have a winning season. We won all four of our home games, all four of our losses were to teams that are in the playoffs, and we defeated one playoff team (Northern). So we are quite pleased."

The Huskies will meet top-seeded Cambridge-South Dorchester this Saturday at 1 p.m. in Cambridge (see separate story). It appeared before Friday that the game would be the Huskies' home game, and thus played on the Rams' field since Northern's field is under renovation. However, a major upset in another 1A game elsewhere in the state changed the rankings slightly and put Northern on the road.

"We wish Coach Carr and the Huskies all the luck in the world in the playoffs this week," Coach Gregg said. "They are our county's representative, and we are behind them 100%."

Gregg said that, after a few weeks off, the Rams will begin their off-season training in the weight room. "We can use our success this year as a spring board for next season, but only if our guys really commit to working hard in the weight room during the winter and spring months," he said.

The Rams will be losing eight seniors to graduation, all of whom are either starters or saw a lot of action this year. "Our overall numbers probably won't improve a lot next year, but there are some very talented freshmen and sophomores who will move up next year."

American Alzheimer's Awareness Month

Alzheimer's disease is the most common form of dementia affecting older Americans. Scientists have discovered that parts of the brain degenerate. There are formations of abnormal tissues called senile plaques and neurofibrillary tangles. Destroyed brain cells can also reduce the responsiveness of remaining healthy cells.

Most of the drugs available for Alzheimer's work best if given during the early, mild stage of the disease. These medicines can improve symptoms slightly and may delay the need for nursing home care. Research has shown that use of the NSAIDs, particularly ibuprofen, may delay or prevent some of the brain damage associated with the degenerative disorder.

NHS Set To Begin Uphill Playoff Battle Down East In Cambridge

Despite stumbling in their last two outings of the regular season, tomorrow morning the Northern High School varsity football team will board a bus bound for Saturday's opening round of the Maryland Class 1A football playoffs. The 7-2 Huskies, who lost in consecutive fumble-marred debacles with Westmar and a tough Southern squad (see separate story for details of Friday night's 30-6 defeat in Oakland), enter post-season play seeded eighth in an eight-team tournament, and will take on 10-0 Cambridge-South Dorchester at 1 p.m. Saturday afternoon on the top-seeded Vikings' home field in Cambridge.

Northern enters the playoffs with the help of a major upset Saturday when 3-6 Williamsport, a 1A school like the Huskies, knocked off an undefeated 2A squad from Francis Scott Key High. "I was as shocked as anyone when the phone call came to our house on Sunday, because we thought we were on the verge of elimination after Southern beat us and Fort Hill beat Alle-gany," NHS skipper Phil Carr commented. "It was a real longshot for Williamsport to win, but we're glad they did. It gives us a chance to show what we're really capable of, which hasn't been evident over the past two games."

Upon learning of the playoff bid, Carr and his coaching staff immediately scrambled into action. The Huskies' braintrust huddled Sunday evening for a chalk session at the home of defensive guru Frank Ewing, who had only been released from the hospital the previous day following surgery on a broken leg he sustained during a freak sideline accident at the Lonaconing contest Nov. 3.

The Northern staff has decided to go with much of the same strategy that carried the program through seven consecutive wins earlier this season, and through 17 victories out of its last 20 outings. "We know our strengths and will work to use those to our best advantage," said Carr. "We don't need to bring anything new into the picture that could confuse our kids at this late stage of the game. Cambridge is a solid team, and we will have to do what we do best to pull off an upset."

"The first thing that stands out about Cambridge is their incredible team speed. They aren't the biggest team we've seen; they are just a little bit bigger than us but are much faster — they're even faster than Westmar. Cambridge does a lot of different things with their offense, running out of a pro-I set with a variety of slot and trip formations. They'll try to run first to use their speed against us; if we can shut down their running game and get them to throw the ball, things could go our way."

As the Huskies have all year, they will rely on their defensive ends to contain the corners of the line and prevent Cambridge's speedy quarterback, senior Trevon Stubbs (5-9, 160), from getting outside on option rollouts and turning upfield. "If Stubbs gets a step, he could be gone — he runs a 4.3 40-yard dash. Our fastest defenders are Mark Wolf and Rob Dozier, who clock in at 4.6-7 seconds in the 40. We'll be putting Trey Brennan at one defensive end position and alternate Joel Resh and Cheston Bachtel at the other DE spot. We think they'll be able to contain the line; they are good athletes and are psyched up for their assignments."

Viking fullback Darren Stafford (5-10, 185) is the squad's full-time running back. He stays in when the offense goes to a single back formation, and is a power runner who is used effectively up the middle on draw plays. The Cambridge line relies on its two biggest players, offensive guards Sam Brisco Jr. (6-1, 320) and Frankie Vega (6-3, 285), to blast holes up the middle when the Vikings go to straight-ahead running. Brisco and Vega will be matched head-to-head with NHS's Clydesdales of the defensive line, Toby Gilpin and Tommy Menges, in battles that might be felt miles away.

Cambridge's defense tends to line up in a 6-2 formation, one that Northern has seen numerous times this season. Carr said his troops' running option scheme has had a lot of success against the 6-2 so far, and if the Huskies get back to the basics of proper snap exchanges and pitch-outs, they could be in business once again. "We'll try to get the Vikings off balance with our option; if we can do that, and make them adjust to us — we'll have the upper hand."

"Their linebackers and cornerbacks are very quick, so we'll have to use our own offensive line's speed and intelligence to counter that aspect, but from what we've seen they don't have any hard hitters. If our runners can get up a head of steam, they ought to be able to break a few tackles and pick up some extra yardage." Cambridge's top defensive player, along with Brisco and Vega, appears to be tackle Marvis Robinson (5-11, 298).

Viking coach Dave Bromwell is in his first year at the top spot in the Cambridge program. A graduate of the school, Bromwell served as an assistant for several years prior to assuming the reins. Saturday's battle could be the opening salvo in a heated post-season rivalry, as the young Bromwell and Carr are approximately the same age, and given what they've each produced so far, they may be holding their jobs as long as they choose.

Carr isn't looking beyond Saturday, and is approaching the playoff contest as he does any other game. "We want our guys to relax and play ball the way they know how," the laid-back coach commented. "Last year the pressure was on us because we were undefeated and at home, and a loose Elkton squad came in and knocked us off. Now we're the ones with nothing to lose and everything to gain, so we've been preaching to the team that the pressure is on Cambridge, not us. We have what it takes to win; we just have to go out there and do it."

The coach expressed deep appreciation for the number of Husky fans that are planning to make the trip to Cambridge to support the squad, noting that the crowds of Northern faithful have grown steadily in size and spirit over the course of the season. "We'd love to see the stands filled with blue and white," he said. "Our last two games seemed almost like home games because of all the fans who turned out to cheer us on in Oakland and Lonaconing. The cheerleading squad is traveling to Cambridge too, and we're very thankful for that. We're going to do everything we can to put forth our best effort Saturday and pull off an upset."

"We're also very thankful for the numerous donations we've received to help defray the cost of the chartered bus and hotel rooms for the weekend. We feel our guys deserve a first-class trip because of all the hard work they've put in since day one of practice, as well as the off-season weightlifting. We're on our way downstate to represent Garrett County, and it's gratifying that the whole county has pulled behind us — Two of our biggest donations came from Sister Lumber and Mettiki Coal, both on the southern end. That's a real tribute to the county's spirit." Additional donations can be submitted on into next week via mail to Northern High School, c/o Phil Carr, 86 Pride Parkway, Accident, MD 21520, or dropped off at the school's front office.

The directions to the site of Saturday's 1 p.m. playoff showdown are as follows: Take the Bay Bridge and continue on U.S. Route 50 eastbound to Cambridge; cross the Choptank River Bridge, stay on Route 50 and go through four stoplights; at the fifth light, turn right onto Church Creek Road (Maryland Route 16); follow Church Creek Road for approximately 2 miles, and Cambridge-South Dorchester High School will be on the left at a stoplight; continue through the light and take the first left into the high school campus, which will be on the left after the turn (the vocational school will be on the right); the football stadium is situated between the two schools, and its parking lot will be on the right. Visitors are asked to park close to the school, near the driver's education tower.

Total one-way travel time from Garrett County to the football stadium will take from 4½ to 5 hours. Husky rooters interested in making the trip, and who are encouraged to decorate their car antennas with blue and white ribbon, may wish to reserve a hotel room for either Friday or Saturday night. Hotels located in Cambridge are booked full because of a weekend waterfowl convention, but as of this morning vacancies remained in hotels located in Easton, 20 minutes to the north.

Laker Women

JoEllen Kitt and Crystal Kimble. Kitt played only eight games last season before missing the last two-thirds of the season with a knee injury. During her limited sojourn Kitt averaged 5.8 points and 3.9 rebounds per outing, and accumulated totals of 15 assists and 15 steals. Statistical information for Kimble was not available.

Joining the Lakers for the first time this year are newcomers Nikki Johnson, Heather Nygent, Donna Lyles, and Christi Edgell. Johnson, a forward from Hinton, W.Va., had a stellar season last year at Summers County High. Her 10 point and 11 rebound per game averages helped Johnson earn accolades as an All-American Special Honorable Mention player and All-State team member, and a nod as First-Team All-Conference. She was named sectional Most Valuable Player and earned the Coal Classic Scholarship.

Nugent, familiar to area fans as one of the mainstays of the Northern High Huskies for the past four seasons, will be a new face in the backcourt. A guard, she was honored as NHS's Most Valuable Player in tenth grade, as well as the program's best offensive player

Ram JVs Defeat Husky Gridders In Finale, 24-8

The Southern High School junior varsity football team downed its Northern counterparts in Oakland last Thursday by a 24-8 margin in the season finale for both squads.

SHS's Zach Uphold led the way for the Rams with two first-half rushing touchdowns of 10 and 15 yards, which put his team up 12-0 at the half.

The second half got underway in fine fashion for Southern, as Billy Schmidt returned an early punt 57 yards for a touchdown. Northern struck back when Derrick Kamp returned a kickoff 75 yards to make the score 18-8. Southern scored its final touchdown when Michael McCartney rambled 75 yards on a kickoff return for a touchdown.

McCauley tallied a total of 84 yards rushing on seven carries, and was 2-for-4 in passing with 37 yards. Southern's JV unit finishes the year with a 6-4 record. Northern's junior varsity recorded an 0-8 mark.

Mountain Top League To Begin Season Sunday

The Mountain Top Basketball League will open its 2000-01 season with three games this Sunday. Games this season will be played in McHenry and Oakland because of the renovations at the Garrett Community College gym.

Condoerr will meet 84 Lumber at 1 p.m., 219 Motors will play Smiley's at 2 p.m., and Deep Creek Ready Mix will face Welding Rod at 3 p.m. Respective officials will be from 219 Motors, Condoerr, and Smiley's.

Each team is required to supply a clock operator and scorekeeper for all games. League fees are due by the second week of the season.

Durst Paces Runnin' Rams To Fourth Place In State Meet

Maryland All-State runner Melissa Durst led the Southern High School girls' cross country team to a fourth place team finish in the Maryland State 1A Championships, held Saturday at Hereford High School, as she captured second place individually with a time of 21 minutes, 9 seconds. The sophomore Runnin' Ram was 21 seconds behind the state champion, Carrie Selmer of Glenelg, who finished second last year to Allegany's Nory Sams and just one spot ahead of Durst, who was third.

The Rams, who were the defending 1A state champions, finished with a team score of 102, while Smithsburg won with 58 points, Glenelg was second with 60, and Williamsport was third with 76. Following Southern were Boonsboro with 108 points, Kent Island with 145, Brunswick with 185, Oakland Mills with 189, and Washington with 202. There were a number of other schools represented by individual runners in the state meet.

Joining Durst among the top 10 finishers and also winning All-State status was freshman teammate Natalie Domenick, who placed ninth with a time of 22:14 on the hilly, rigorous course.

The other runners for Southern were: senior Amber Stewart, who was 28th with a time of 24:23; sophomore Emily Cosner in 29th and just one second behind (24:24); sophomore Melissa Flanagan in 34th with a time of 25:04; senior Erin Lucas in 41st place with a time of 25:37; and freshman Laura Preston in 54th with a time of 28:12.

Each team consists of seven runners, with the top five finishers for each determining the team score.

The only member of the Southern boys' team to qualify for the state meet was junior Matt Frederick, who placed 25th. Oakland Mills, led by state champion Izudin Mehmedovic (5:28), won the team title with 64 points, followed closely by Glenelg (67), Poolesville (84), and Westmar (88). Westmar's Sid Bittinger placed fourth individually with a time of 5:41.

The Southern girls' team is coached by Louis Newcomb. The boys' team, which has five state titles to its credit, is coached by Carl Booth.

Ram Netters Take Mounties To Wire In Playoff Match

The Southern High School volleyball team put up a valiant battle with top-seeded Beall last Thursday night in a hard-fought Class 1A Regional semi-final playoff contest. The 3-2 loss closed out the Rams' season with a final 4-13 record, while Beall (11-5) went on to lose to Westmar in the region championship two nights later.

SHS jumped out to a big opening-game win Thursday in Oakland, thrashing Beall by a 15-9 score. The Mounties roared back to win 15-6 in the second contest, then Southern took Game 3 by a 15-10 margin. Beall took the final two games by scores of 15-7 and 15-9 to finish off the pesky Rams.

Laura Johnson led Southern with a team-high 15 points. The senior also recorded seven kills. Sophomore teammate Kristen Rollman added 13 points, and junior Hollie Harris had six kills. Senior Heather Boyce and sophomore Jessica Sharon each had five kills, and senior Aimee Parack contributed 10 assists to lead all Rams.

Beall was paced by Ashley Lease's 17 points and four kills, Sarah Dotson's 11 kills, Autumn Ritchie's 13 points, six aces, and six kills, and Courtney Kessel's 11 assists.

Golf Privilege Club Benefits Lung Association

A 2001 Lung Association Golf Privilege Club (GPC) membership features courses and driving ranges in Maryland, Delaware, Pennsylvania, and Washington, D.C. Members are entitled to free rounds of golf or other discounts at each participating location. (Some restrictions apply.)

In Garrett County, the Golf Club at Wisp, McHenry, is a participating sponsor of this year's Golf Privilege Club.

Golf Privilege Club books are available for $29.95, plus shipping and handling. Purchasers can also take advantage of the buy three, get one free deal for $89.85 (plus shipping and handling).

GPC members are also eligible to receive a free ticket to the 2001 State Farm Senior Classic when they purchase one ticket of equal or higher value. The

RUNNIN' RAMS A' RUNNIN' - The members of the Southern High School girls' cross country team were unsuccessful in their bid to defend their Maryland 1A championship at Hereford High School on Saturday, but they did emerge with a fourth-place team finish and a second-place individual finish by Melissa Durst. Four of the seven Runnin' Rams in the race were captured in the photo above. From left to right are Laura Preston, Emily Cosner, Erin Lucas, and Natalie Domenick. The other two runners who qualified for the event were Amber Stewart and Melissa Flanagan. Earning All-State honors along with Durst was Domenick, who finished ninth individually. The lone representative of the Southern boys' team was Matt Frederick, who is pictured below at far left. Frederick placed 25th. Photos by Ed Clemons.

Arsenal Club Tryouts Slated For December 2

Arsenal Football of Oakland will hold tryouts for the winter indoor and spring outdoor soccer seasons on Saturday, Dec. 2, at the National Guard Armory in Oakland. The schedule is as follows:

9 a.m. - U-12 girls, born Aug. 1, 1988, or thereafter (includes U-10 girls interested in playing U-12 or in creating a new U-10 team); 10 a.m. - U-14 girls, born Aug. 1, 1986, or thereafter; 11 a.m. - U-17 girls, born Aug. 1, 1983, or thereafter (includes players who are U-15 or U-16);

Noon - U-12 boys, born Aug. 1, 1988, or thereafter (includes U-10 boys interested in playing U-12 or in creating a new U-10 team); 1 p.m. - U-14 boys, born Aug. 1, 1986, or thereafter; 2 p.m. - U-18 boys, born Aug. 1, 1982, or thereafter (includes players who are U-15, U-16, or U-17).

All participants should bring indoor shoes, shorts, shin guards, and socks that cover the shin guards. Scrimmage practice jerseys will be provided to wear over a T-shirt. Soccer balls will be provided.

A parent/guardian must accompany each player to the tryout, as a waiver form must be completed before a child may participate in the tryout. Players who have not been Arsenal members in the past must bring a copy of their birth certificate for age verification and social security number, which must be kept by the club for future use. There is a $20 charge for the tryout which, if accepted to the program, covers the cost of registration with the Maryland State Youth Soccer Association. The fee will be refunded to players who are not accepted. The tryouts are limited to residents of Garrett and Allegany counties of Maryland, and Preston County, W. Va.

Arsenal members are expected to attend one or two 60- to 90-minute practice sessions per week, and games on Friday evenings, Saturdays, and/or Sundays during the winter, and Sunday afternoons during the spring. If a player is participating in another winter or spring sport, every effort will be made to coordinate practice schedules; however, attendance at at least one practice session per week will be required.

Because Arsenal Football teams play in a travel league, parents will be asked to assist in providing team travel to sometimes distant locations. There will be one-day tournaments during the winter months and, during the spring outdoor season, there will be home games and away games, with no away games farther than about 90 minutes driving time. The winter season will run through March, and the spring outdoor season will be from the first Sunday in April through the second Sunday in June.

For more information, persons are invited to telephone Mel Menker at 301-334-5906.

Southern Girls Voted Best Soccer Squad In The Area

Despite having a roster that featured only two seniors and a number of starting freshmen and sophomores, the Southern High School girls' varsity soccer team, in only its third year of existence, finished the 2000 season last week with an overall record of 12-2, won the 2000 Western Maryland Interscholastic League title, and was unanimously named last week as the Area Champion by a vote of area coaches.

In their 13 regular-season matches, the Rams allowed a total of only seven goals while scoring a total of 44 goals and setting a school record of 12 victories with an 11-match win streak. They finished with seven shutouts, and allowed one goal or fewer in 12 of the 13 matches. Their season was ended by Williamsport, 3-1, in the semifinals of the 1A West Region tournament.

Coach Ron Petrella and the Rams finished last season with a winning record (7-5-1), but lacked in overall goal production. That situation was changed this week with an inflow of talented freshmen, two of whom finished the season among the top five in scoring in the area.

Freshman Casey Taylor scored nine goals and had four assists to place fourth, while her classmate, Sabrina Scheffel, was fifth with eight goals and four assists. Placing eighth in the area in scoring was sophomore Brittany Naylor, who recorded six goals and four assists, while junior Gina Reeves finished in 10th place with six goals and one assist. Kristen Oxford, a junior, placed 12th with four goals, and Robbin Gregg, another freshman, was 19th with two goals and five assists.

Anchoring the midfield play for the Rams were Naylor, junior All-Area selection Megan Burner, and senior Charlena Reeves.

The Rams' outstanding defensive unit was paced by junior goalkeeper Becky Martin, an All-Area pick the past two years, and junior sweeper Miriam Sincell, who was last year's All-Area Defensive Player of the Year. They and full-backs Sarah Teets (senior), Alison Ulino (junior), and Laura Bonser (freshman), along with Oxford at stopper, made scoring extremely difficult for opponents.

Martin allowed just five goals and had 52 saves for a .912 save percentage. She finished with 5½ shutouts, and might have had even better numbers, but missed three matches because of an injury.

Gina Reeves moved into the goal for those three matches, where she recorded 20 saves and allowed only two goals.

"Gina was very unselfish and did a great job when Becky got hurt," Petrella said. "She's a real team player who could have scored more points, but accepted her role as our back-up keeper when we needed her."

Petrella said that one major reason his defensive unit was so effective was because it consisted basically of the same personnel as in the past two years.

"They are intelligent girls who have a lot of experience at those positions," Petrella said. "Becky is great in the goal, and Miriam is an outstanding sweeper with explosive speed. Alison has a strong foot, as does Kristen, and Sarah Teets, who gave up an offensive position, was one of our two senior team leaders."

"Offensively we were much better primarily because of the freshmen who came into the program, and who have been playing together in the youth league for many years," he said.

"I'm really proud of all 20 of our girls," he continued. "They came together and stayed together as a team."

The only regular-season loss was a 2-0 defeat early in the season by powerful

Southern Mat Club Wrestling Season Slated

The Southern Mat Club will be holding its annual sign-up night and informational meeting about the 2000-2001 season next Monday, Nov. 20, in the Southern Middle School cafeteria, beginning at 7 p.m. All interested children and their parents are encouraged to attend this meeting to meet the coaching staff and learn about the team and the upcoming season.

This will mark the 16th year the SMC has been teaching area youth wrestling skills, general athletic skills, sportsmanship, team concept, and the desire and dedication needed to compete, both on the mat and in life in general, according to Coach Dave Taylor. The club is open to all area youth in grades K-8, regardless of experience and/or athletic ability.

The club membership was 60 last year, Taylor said, and the accomplishments of that group included several first-, second-, and third-place team trophies at tournaments in Maryland, Pennsylvania, West Virginia, and Ohio. Individual members also won numerous championships at tournaments all over the eastern part of the nation, including at the Eastern National Championships.

"This season we hope to build on our past successes and continue as one of the premier youth wrestling programs in the East," Taylor said.

Persons desiring more information about the club or Monday's meeting may telephone Taylor at 301-334-3855 or SMC president Ed Wildesen at 301-334-8785.

RAMS AREA CHAMPIONS - The Southern High School girls' varsity soccer team captured the Area Championship last week by a unanimous vote of area coaches. The Rams, coached by Ron Petrella and Diana Ashby, finished the 2000 season with an overall record of 12-2, and also won the Western Maryland Interscholastic League title. Pictured in front is Becky Martin. Seated, from left, are: Laura Bonser, Brittany Naylor, Miriam Sincell, Suzanne Gilbert, Kristen Oxford, and Justine Pagenhardt. Kneeling, same order, are: Fallon Stutzman, Casey Taylor, Alison Ulino, Holly Sauder, Sarah Teets, Robbin Gregg, Gina Reeves, and Sabrina Scheffel. Standing are: Coach Petrella, Charlena Reeves, Alasha Rush, Ann Bicker, Jenny Hickman, Chelsea Remley, Megan Burner, and Coach Ashby.

Garrett County Outdoors

By Robert Yanke

Folks around Garrett County do take their deer hunting seriously. By folks we mean men and women as well as boys and girls. Too often, the reporting here mentions the men and boys we hear of taking deer. However, today I had a letter from Gary Steyer of Oakland reminding me that girls get their share of game too.

Gary informed me that his daughter (he didn't send her name) just turned 17 and has taken two bucks this fall with a bow. She harvested a nice 7-point on September 30 and a 5-point on October 14. Both deer were taken on the Steyer farm along White Church Road. Gary also said that she hunts with her friend, Billy Martin, who bagged an 8-point near Crellin.

Gary is interested in knowing of other female bowhunters and how they are doing this year. As we find out about them we will pass the info along.

Regarding other women hunters, Dan Milavec passed news about Judy Tasker of Bethlehem, who got a 4-point buck with a bow in the Lost Land area. Also on the female ledger, 12-year-old Brittany Boyce got a 4-point buck on our recent youth day, November 11.

Other youth hunters meeting success this past Saturday were Robert Upole, who got a 3-point buck off the Oakland-Sang Run Road; Scott Livengood, who got an 8-point buck in the Thousand Acres area; the young DeWitt boy, Donnie's son, who got a 4-point in the Deer Park area; and Donald Burns's son, who got a button buck on his grandparents' land near Friendsville.

Should we be surprised? Gary Whitacre got an 8-point with a bow.

MARYLAND REGULAR DEER FIREARMS SEASON OPENS NOVEMBER 25

Maryland's 2000-2001 Deer Firearms Season will open Nov. 25 for white-tailed and sika deer. Approximately 75,000 firearm deer hunters take to the forests and fields in pursuit of white-tailed deer.

Last year, firearm hunters in Maryland harvested 42,337 deer (41,382 white-tailed deer, 955 sika deer), during the two-week firearms season. This was a record year, with 20,147 antlered deer and 22,190 antlerless deer taken. The 10 leading 1999 two-week firearm deer harvest counties were: Frederick (3,898), Allegany (3,425), Washington (3,350), Garrett (2,949), Dorchester (2,612), Worcester (2,372), Carroll (2,217), Kent (1,956), Montgomery (1,800), and Baltimore (1,698).

Firearm deer hunters take 57 percent of the deer taken in all of Maryland's deer hunting seasons. Bow deer hunters bag 21 percent, and muzzleloader deer hunters take the remaining 22 percent.

Deer hunters manage deer populations by taking antlerless deer. The removal of female deer through regulated hunting reduces the number available to reproduce.

Maryland has four "Deer Management Regions." Independent deer bag limits have been established for each region. The number of deer that a firearm hunter can take in one region will not affect the hunter's bag limit in other regions during the two-week firearm deer season (Nov. 25 through Dec. 9).

Region A includes Allegany, Garrett, and Washington (Zone 2) counties. Bonus Antlerless Deer Stamps, previously known as "Antlerless Deer Permits," are no longer required in order to take antlerless deer in Deer Management Region A. In Region A, firearm deer hunters may take one deer. This deer must be antlered if taken from Nov. 25 through Dec. 7. This deer may be antlered or antlerless if taken Dec. 8-9. Hunters who purchase a Bonus Deer Stamp ($5 for residents, $25 for nonresidents) may take a second deer. The second deer must be antlered if taken from Nov. 25 through Dec. 7. The second deer may be antlered or antlerless if taken Dec. 8-9. The Combined Total Firearm Season Bag Limit for Region A is two deer. Firearm hunters may take only one antlerless deer within the Combined Total Deer Firearm Season Bag Limit in Region A.

Firearm hunters are reminded that only one deer may be taken per day in Deer Management Region A. In Deer Management Regions B, C, and D, there is no restriction that applies to the number of deer that may be taken per day with the season bag limits.

GARRETT COUNTY FLYFISHERS PLAN CHRISTMAS PARTY

The local flyfishers have planned a Christmas party for December 9 at McClive's Restaurant. Activities will begin at 6 p.m., with dinner at 7. Guest speaker will be Chuck Furimsky. Bob Lancaster, prime mover of the group, invites fly-fishers to celebrate the holidays with fellow fishermen. Costs for dinner are $20 for a single and $35 for a couple. RSVP to Bob by November 30. His address is 913 Spruce Circle, Oakland, MD 21550. Any questions, call 301-334-6124.

Maryland's 2000-2001 deer firearms season opens Saturday, Nov. 25, for white-tailed deer. Approximately 75,000 firearm deer hunters take to the forests and fields in pursuit of white-tailed deer each fall.

During the 1999 season, firearm hunters in Maryland harvested a record 42,337 deer during the two-week firearms season, 20,147 antlered deer and 22,190 antlerless deer. The 10 leading 1999 two-week firearm deer harvest counties were: Frederick, 3,898; Allegany, 3,425; Washington, 3,350; Garrett, 2,949; Dorchester, 2,612; Worcester, 2,372; Carroll, 2,217; Kent, 1,956; Montgomery, 1,800; and Baltimore, 1,698.

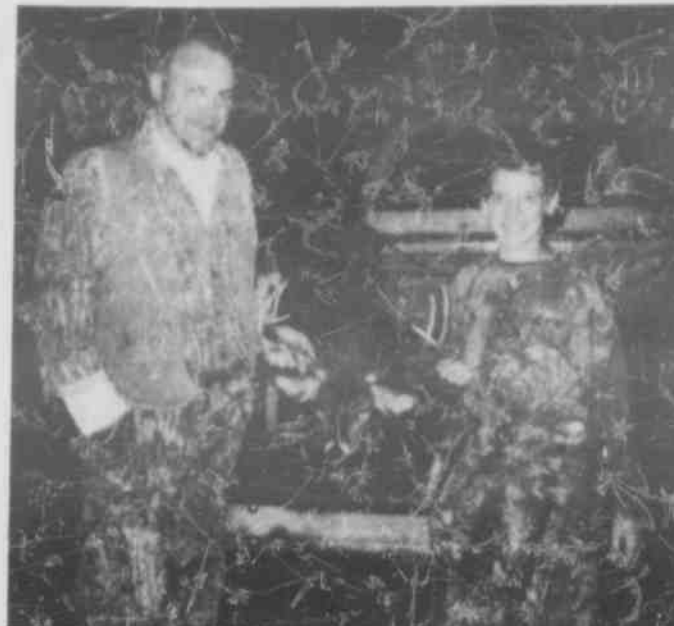

Firearm deer hunters take 57 percent of the deer taken in all of Maryland's deer hunting seasons. Bow deer hunters bag 21 percent and muzzleloader deer hunters take the remaining 22 percent. Firearm deer hunters spend 410,500 days hunting white-tailed deer.

Deer hunters manage deer populations by taking antlerless deer. The removal of female deer through regulated hunting reduces the number available to reproduce. A deer population comparison of hunted to non-hunted sections of DNR public lands within Montgomery County found five times fewer deer within the hunted section.

Maryland has four deer management regions. Independent deer bag limits have been established for each region. The number of deer that a firearm hunter can take in one region will not affect the hunter's bag limit in other regions during the two-week firearm deer season (Nov. 25 through Dec. 9).

Garrett County falls entirely within Region A, which also includes Allegany County and Zone 2 of Washington County. Bonus antlerless deer stamps, previously known as antlerless deer permits, are no longer required in order to take antlerless deer in Region A. Firearm deer hunters may take one deer in Region A, which must be antlered if taken from Nov. 25 through Dec. 7. This deer may be antlered or antlerless if taken on Dec. 8-9.

Hunters who purchase a bonus deer stamp ($5 for residents, $25 for nonresidents) may take a second deer. The second deer must be antlered if taken from Nov. 25 through Dec. 7. The second deer may be antlered or antlerless if taken on Dec. 8-9.

The combined total firearm season bag limit for Region A is two deer. Firearm hunters may take only one antlerless deer within the combined total deer firearm season bag limit in Region A.

Hunting remains one of the safest outdoor activities. Deer hunters are reminded to focus on safety by following the proper hunting procedures:

- Always wear a safety belt or harness when using a tree stand.
- Permanent tree stands should be inspected and repaired as necessary.
- Always use a hoist rope to get an unloaded firearm up and down trees.
- Identify and confirm all targets and know the terrain beyond.

For additional information regarding Maryland's deer hunting regulations, including requirements for wearing fluorescent orange clothing, hunters should consult the DNR publication Hunting and Trapping in Maryland 2000-2001. For information about hunting on Maryland's more than 750,000 acres of public lands, hunters can consult the Guide to Public Hunting Lands in Maryland 2000-2001.

Both publications are available at all DNR service centers and are issued to hunters when they purchase a 2000-2001 Maryland hunting license. The publications can be also be viewed online via the DNR web site at www.dnr.state.md.us/huntersguide/.

Moors' Book On Maya Indians Available Soon In Local Stores

Garrett County resident Marilyn Moors, a cultural anthropologist and educator, co-edited The Maya Diaspora — Guatemalan Roots, New American Lives, which was published last month by Temple University Press. The text chronicles the scattering of the Maya people in their attempt to escape suppression and enforced poverty, which had escalated into open warfare by the 1980s, Moors explained.

The Maya were fleeing the horrors of genocidal practices which included destroying 400-600 villages, shooting the men, and gathering the women into churches and burning them. The Maya Diaspora examines the lives of those who fled from the mountain villages to the cities and to other countries, and the psychological and social stress resulting from such cultural uprooting.

The Maya, native Indians of Guatemala, submitted to colonial government by the Spanish from 1624 to 1821. "By the 20th century, the Maya, who owned less and less land, were used virtually for slave labor to produce crops," Moors said. Attempts at self-rule and self-help by the Maya were met with a "closed fist" response. "In 1954 the CIA-induced coup toppled the democratically elected Guatemalan government, and the growing export market required more and more cheap labor," she added.

By the late 1970s, a campaign was in effect to put down any self-help initiatives for the Maya. Health workers, teachers, priests, and others helping the

MARILYN MOORS

Maya were killed or disappeared, Moors said.

But it was the direct targeting of the Maya by the military regime that finally drove so many from their homes, their families, and their culture.

Moors and co-editor James Loucky compiled the works of cultural anthropologists, historians, sociologists, and other scholars in this volume dealing with the impact of the diaspora experience and the struggle to maintain identity. By chapter, the book looks at Maya who fled to Mexico refugee camps, Mexico City, Belize, Canada, and the United States.

In her concluding chapter, Moors reflects on the challenge faced by the Maya and raises a question: "In their strength born of struggle, can they help us weave our way to a better society for all of us, one that respects differences and values family and community? It is fervently hoped so."

The epilogue of the book is a poem by a Maya who fled his homeland. A quotation follows:

I have rested my sorrowful head on the pillows of many towns that have given me rest and refuge, but even so I feel like a nomad, lonely, walking in my sleep in search of the brighter dawn.

— Victor D. Montejo

The Maya Diaspora will be available at the Book Market in Oakland and Main Street Books in Frostburg. Handwoven Maya products are available at www.weaverswork.com.

Moors is professor emerita from Montgomery College, national coordinator of the Guatemala Scholars Network, and an adjunct professor teaching anthropology and gender studies at Frostburg State University. Co-editor James Loucky is an associate professor teaching anthropology, Latin American studies, and international studies at Western Washington University.

Wilson Awarded AC Scholarship

Among nine Allegany College of Maryland students who were recently named beneficiaries of scholarships sponsored by a number of organizations is Holly Wilson, who received the John J. Leidy Foundation Inc. Scholarship.

Wilson, son of David and Mary Wilson, Swanton, is working toward an associate degree in respiratory therapy and is a dean's list student at the college, which is located in Cumberland. She is treasurer of the respiratory therapy students' organization. After graduation, her plan is to become a registered respiratory therapist with a specialty in neonatology.

Wilson is a 1997 graduate of Southern High School.

Local Student Returns From Study In Ecuador

Erin Browning, 18, of Accident recently returned from a month-long study of environmental issues in Ecuador. She is currently a junior at Salisbury State University, where she is a dual-degree major in biology and environmental marine science. She is the daughter of Linda Sherwood, Accident, and Robert Browning, McHenry.

The group she traveled with consisted of students and instructors from SSU and Frostburg State, Towson, and St. Ambrose universities. Courses included Spanish, women's issues in Ecuador, social work, and environmental issues in Ecuador (biology).

As a group, they visited Quito (the capital), Baños, Ingapirca (Incan ruins), and various museums, as well as a Panama hat factory. They also lived with an Ecuadorian family in the city of Cuenca, where they went to school, conversed with the local people (in Spanish), and "had lots of fun," said Browning.

Browning's class, biology, was "the group that never sat still," she said. Every weekend they visited the countryside. During their trips they visited the coastal region, where they rode through mangroves, visited a banana plantation, and hiked from sea level to 3,500 feet to a mountain cloud forest. Another weekend they backpacked and camped high in the Andes Mountains at 14,000 feet above sea level. Their final day of that rugged terrain took eight hours to complete.

"This was a challenge, and I am glad I accomplished it. Just getting used to the altitude was tough enough," said Browning.

They also had day trips to an animal rescue center, orchid collection, and other museums. Their final challenge, while the other classes returned home to the United States, was to survive four nights and three days deep in the tropical rainforest/jungle region of Ecuador. Here they hiked, swam, went piranha fishing, caiman (like an alligator) hunting, and learned to survive in the rainforest.

"I think I enjoyed the excitement of catching my first piranha, hunting for anacondas, and looking for caimans in the middle of the night with just a boat and a flashlight the most. An experience I will never forget was swallowing my pride, as well as a branch full of ants. They tasted like lemons," she said.

To learn more about the studies, and obtain more information and pictures from her trip, Browning has created a web site on the Internet at: www.geocities.com/TheTropics/Lagoon/9352/.

GCC Sets On-Line Courses For Spring

Garrett Community College will offer several courses on-line this coming spring semester, according to a recently published schedule of credit classes. Students who register for on-line courses will have the flexibility of taking the courses at any time they choose to log onto the Internet.

The six scheduled on-line offerings are: Principles of Accounting II (ACC 112); Introduction to Business Management (BUS 160); Principles of Economics II (ECON 202); Medical Terminology (OT 130); and Human Growth and Development (PSY 102).

The college has also slated a televised course, Pre-Calculus Math (MAT 110), which will be carried Tuesdays and Thursdays from 8 to 10 a.m. on local cable channel 99. Math department chairperson Dr. Nancy Priselac will be the course presenter.

Persons interested in further information on any of these distance learning offerings may contact Sally Staley at 301-387-3102.

Board Scholarship Deadline Nearing

The Garrett County Administrators and Supervisors Association will again be sponsoring a scholarship for Garrett County Board of Education employees. The purpose is to assist and encourage current employees to pursue a degree or certification in administration or supervision.

The first recipient of the A & S scholarship was Yolanda Michelle Harman. She is currently teaching biology at Northern High School and recently earned her national board certification. She started her graduate program in administration at Frostburg State University this fall.

Any current board of education employee may apply. Applications are available in the schools, and the deadline is December 1.

Eight students who took 4.0 GPAs from Garrett to FSU maintained their perfect averages while at Frostburg, and nearly nine percent earned a higher GPA at the four-year university than they had at GCC. Approximately 25 percent earned a GPA of only .5 below their Garrett GPA, while 65 percent earned comparable GPAs at Frostburg.

the Estonian fifth graders will receive English language instruction during this school year, and that the pen pal letters will serve to give them extra practice in addition to providing information on the U.S.

As part of his remarks, Beachy presented a slide show program on his and McCain's visit to Estonia, the same slide show that had been shown to the Grantsville Elementary fifth graders. McCain will be making a similar slide presentation to students at Dennett Road Elementary School to help introduce them to Valga City, Oakland's partner city. Beachy also noted that the Grantsville-Torva Partnership proclamation was signed before the Grantsville Elementary fifth graders, who had the opportunity to ask questions of the visiting dignitaries.

Beachy stated that he and McCain are interested in furthering the cultural exchange process, including entertainment native to western Maryland and Estonia. He has approached Men of Accord, a barber-shop singing group that performed at the Grantsville pig roast held in honor of the visiting delegation, to see if they would be interested in traveling to Estonia. The members of Men of Accord agree that they would like to pursue such a venture if available, while at the same time a proposal would be pursued to have Estonian folk dancers visit and perform in Maryland.

Auditor's Report

The college's FY 2000 financial report was presented by Jim Murray of Rodeheaver and Associates, who noted that his report was an unqualified opinion on the financial statements and that there were no instances of non-compliance or any material weaknesses to report. Murray's report, which covered the fiscal year ending this past June 30, is phase one of a two-phase engagement, and he said he expected to have the single audit of federal programs completed shortly before or after the first of the year.

Murray and Herman both expressed their appreciation for the efforts of dean Michael Kilgus, who is managing the college's accounts. Kilgus's investments have been generating a high level of earnings for the college, noted Herman, and the institution has not had to resort to short-term borrowing in several years. The cash forecast remains strong for the foreseeable future, a success Herman attributed to Kilgus's management skills and the strong relationship he has helped continue to foster with Rodeheaver and Associates.

Financial Report

Kilgus followed up on Murray's FY 2000 presentation by sharing the current state of financial affairs at the college. Under current budget, expenditures, and encumbrances as of Sept. 30, overall spending is 23.9 percent, under the even spending estimate of 25 percent.

As mentioned previously, the operating cash forecast is strong. Kilgus reported a $7,500 return on an August/Sept. investment of $500,000, and said he hopes to invest the same amount in November. No short-term borrowing need is anticipated for the remainder of FY 2001.

Academic Report

The academic report, presented by Dr. Lillian Mitchell, dean of academic affairs, was mixed. The fall 2000 semester headcount is the same as that of last year, at 686, but the FTE figure is down by 13. Herman noted that with just a few exceptions community college enrollments are down significantly across the state, and expressed hope that some new programs introduced by the college recently will counteract any trend in a downward direction.

The transfer success rate of GCC graduates was brighter news, Mitchell told the trustees. A study of the 10-year period from 1988 to 1998 revealed that of the 343 GCC students who have continued their studies at Frostburg State University, 85.5 percent maintained a minimum of a 2.0 grade feels very positive about the success rate statistics, and that GCC will endeavor to further improve those figures. "Many people believe that four-year colleges provide a better education," Herman told the trustees. "If you look at the data, GCC students who transfer into Frostburg for their junior year do as well as or better than the native population. We can take pride in the education we are offering our students at a greatly reduced cost."

GIEC Project

The bid packages for the Garrett Information Enterprise Center should be out by the end of the month, Herman said. He expressed his hope that a builder can be secured after the college's most recent efforts to tighten the bid language to ensure that bids come in under budget.

LUTHERAN
St. John's Lutheran Church, Red House, Rev. Wm. V. Connelly,

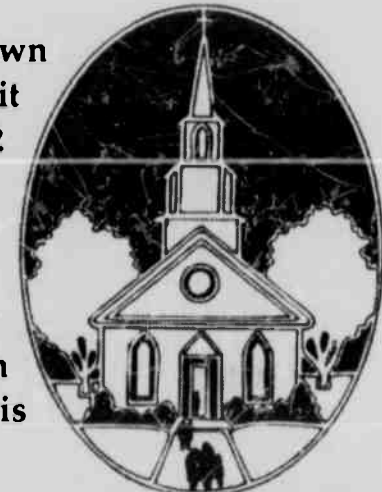

"What a lovely vase! It matches Mom's crystal. I must pack it carefully so it will arrive unbroken. Much can happen in transit. I will write 'Handle With Care' in red letters on this package and cushion it well. There! That should protect Mom's fragile gift from some of the inevitable bumps along the way."

As with the crystal vase, each of our lives is precious and fragile. The question is... how can we protect our spirit from breaking from the hard knocks and bumps along the long road that is our life?

The Psalmist David certainly had a life that was strewn with trouble, much of it his own doing. When his spirit was nearly broken, he came to know God. In Psalm 18:2 David joyfully proclaimed..."The Lord is my rock, and my fortress, and my deliverer; my God, my strength, in whom I will trust."

Learn to know God. Visit His House each week. Talk to God and He will help you to cushion the blows in your life. Indeed, your spirit is fragile and your life is precious to Him. Remember to handle it with prayer.

Local Resident Authors National Magazine Articles

Garrett County resident Roger A. Skipper has written two articles on widely divergent topics that have appeared in nationally published magazines recently. The articles provide Skipper's insights into two of his favorite activities, wood-working and ginseng collecting ("sang hunting").

The current issue (Dec. 2000) of Fine Woodworking, a bimonthly magazine, carries Skipper's article titled "From Rough to Ready." The six-page article features a number of photographs of Skipper at work in his woodshop as he demonstrates his one-man, time-saving system for dressing more rough lumber into finished stock in less time. His text details proper planing of lumber, including bowed and crooked lumber, and the construction and use of homemade accessories such as a go/no-go gauge, ripping sled, and rolling carts.

Earlier this summer, the August 2000 issue of Fur Fish-Game, a monthly magazine "for practical outdoorsmen," featured Skipper's "Find Wild Ginseng . . . Where Others Have Already Looked." The article describes the success Skipper has had in locating wild ginseng in wooded areas thought to be already picked clean by other ginseng hunters. While the main topic of the article is improving one's ability to locate wild ginseng, Skipper also provides his personal observations regarding the value of spending time in the woods.

FAMILY VIOLENCE COALITION OFFICERS NAMED — New officers were elected recently by the members of the Garrett County Family Violence Coalition. Coalition members discuss issues of family violence and work toward a coordinated community response to family violence with the goal of zero tolerance in Garrett County. The group holds public meetings the second Tuesday of each month at 9 a.m. at the Department of Social Services. For further information interested persons may contact Peggy Nelson, Family Violence Coalition coordinator, at 301-533-3033. The new officers, shown above from the left, are secretary Phyllis Trickett, chairman Jim Hovis of the Maryland State Police, and Garrett County state's attorney Lisa Thayer Welch.

A lumber processor, construction consultant, and instrument maker, in addition to author and ginseng hunter, Skipper is currently majoring in English at Frostburg State University. He resides along Bray Hill Lane with his wife Connie.

Big Brothers, Big Sisters Meeting Slated

Big Brothers, Big Sisters, Big Couples, board members, supporters, and those wanting to learn more about Garrett County Big Brothers Big Sisters are invited to attend the annual meeting of the agency on Tuesday, Nov. 21, to be held in Conference Room A, adjacent to Garrett County Memorial Hospital. A brief executive board meeting will begin at 6:30 p.m., with the public annual meeting starting at 7 p.m.

Mike Logsdon, board president, will open the annual meeting with welcome and introductions. Agency Mission and Overview will be stated by Karen Johnson, executive director of Big Brothers Big Sisters of the Alleghenies, followed by a State of the Agency address by Garrett County coordinator JoAnn Fletcher. Jerry Herpel, Personnel/Nominating Committee chairperson, will conduct the election of officers. The regular business meeting will be the final item on the agenda before adjournment. Refreshments will be served after the meeting.

GCC Schedules Tax Tips Class

The Small Business Development Center at Garrett Community College is offering a Tax Tips seminar for individuals seeking information as tax season nears. Clay Garland, CPA, will facilitate the course. The focus of the seminar will be new tax laws for 2000 and changes in existing laws. Time will be allotted for questions and discussion.

The seminar will meet on Wednesday, Nov. 29, 6:30-9:30 p.m. at GCC. The fee for this seminar is $20. For registration information, persons may contact the GCC Small Business Development Center at 301-387-3080.

Wishnick, Silkey, Skipper Added To Partnership Staff

Susan Athey-Oxford, president and CEO of the Garrett County Partnership for Children and Families Inc., has announced the following additions to its staff: Fran Wishnick as special projects coordinator — Healthy Families Garrett County Self-Study; Evelyn Silkey, special projects coordinator — Local Management Board ONLINE Community Information File; and Lou Ellen Skipper, Infants and Toddlers Program coordinator.

Fran Wishnick is a graduate of Texas A&M University with a master's degree in urban and regional planning and a bachelor's degree in political science from Brooklyn College. She has served as a city planner as well as health planner. She has also held elected offices on both Oakland Mills Village board and Columbia Council, and was a co-founder of a number of groups in Howard County, including the Howard County Conservancy (land trust) and People for Accountability in the School System (PASS). Wishnick resides in Accident with husband Ken and their two children, Lindsay and Craig.

Evelyn Silkey is a graduate of Pratt Institute, Brooklyn, N.Y., with a master's degree in fine arts and a bachelor of fine arts and education degree, also from Pratt Institute. She and her family recently relocated to Garrett County. Prior to joining GC PCF, she was employed at the National Institutes of Health, National Institute of Allergy and Infectious Diseases, providing word processing, graphics, forms design, basic HTML, data entry, and other technical assistance. Silkey also taught fine art in grades K-12, as well as adult education classes. She and her husband Phillip reside in Swanton.

Lou Ellen Skipper is a graduate of Messiah College, Grantham, Pa., with a bachelor of arts degree. She has previously held positions such as family care coordinator at Garrett County Partnership for Children and Families from 1993 to 1995, early childhood educator at Terndale Christian School, and child protective service worker with the Garrett County Department of Social Services. She resides in Oakland with husband Richard and son Jesse.

The Partnership for Children and Families is the local management board (LMB) and a governing body that unites child-serving agencies, child providers, clients of services, and community representatives to improve and maintain the well-being of children and families in Garrett County. The partnership ensures the implementation of the local interagency human service delivery system for children, youth, and families.

The board of directors for the partnership consists of 13 members appointed by the Garrett County commissioners. The permanent members include the superintendent of Garrett County public schools, the county health officer, the local director of social services, the county supervisor of the Department of Juvenile Justice, the president of Garrett County Community Action, and a county commissioner or his/her designated representative. At-large community members represented on the local management board are parents and representatives of the Child Care Administration, group homes, and the business community.

The local partnership office has a negotiated five-year partnership with the state and county to improve results for children and families. By using the Managing for Results Process to monitor programs, the partnership is able to focus planning and development on achieving the approved overall results for children, Athey-Oxford said. During the last decade the work and relationships with other county agencies have saved the Garrett County taxpayers hundreds of thousand dollars, she added.

Road Runners Annual Turkey Give-Away Set

The Crellin Community Building will be the site of the Road Runners' annual turkey give-away on Saturday, Nov. 18, 2-4 p.m. This pre-Thanksgiving event will also feature "pumpkin pie walks," games such as Who Wants to be Millionaire? and free refreshments.

All residents of Rosedale, Hutton, and Crellin are invited to attend this activity, which is coordinated by the Road Runners, Crellin's community planning group, which is funded through a mini-grant from the Garrett County Health Department. RUDDELL HONORED — Gary Ruddell, president of Hobby House Press, Grantsville, was presented a community service award by the Maryland Salem Children's Trust for his "benevolence and outstanding leadership" in the OutSpokin' for Maryland Kids Campaign 2000. The award was presented at Salem's open house last month. Ruddell served with nine other committee members on Salem's community relations committee, which organized the annual OutSpokin' fund-raising banquet and silent auction held at the Cumberland Country Club. "Ruddell's enthusiasm and creativity in planning for OutSpokin' was instrumental in the success of the event which raised $20,000 for the children receiving care at Salem," said a spokesperson for Salem. Pictured with Ruddell is Louise Richards, executive director of the Maryland Salem Children's Trust.

Thank You!

Garrett County Partnership for Children and Families, Inc., would like to express its appreciation to the nearly 2,000 who volunteered their time after voting to complete the Garrett County Resources Survey 2000. This survey was conducted by the Partnership for Children and Families, Inc., which is a management collaborative consisting of the major service organizations in the county including the Garrett County Board of Education, Garrett County Health Department, Garrett County Community Action, Garrett County Department of Juvenile Justice and Garrett County Department of Social Services. The results of the survey will be used for planning and grant writing for services related to children and families in Garrett County. The survey result will be posted online at <http://garrettpartnership.org/cit/> no later than January 30, 2001.

In Loving Memory of
'DeReck Adam DeWitt'
1982-1999

Today we lit a candle and said a humble prayer, For Dereck Adam DeWitt, and to friends and family
He left behind one year ago today.
God must have needed a brilliant leader with a gentle hand,
A shining, smiling face and a big, bright heart
To show us the way when it's time for us to depart.
We'll see DeReck again
We do not know when.
Our hearts will finally mend.
We'll no longer have to cry
And then and only then We'll understand why.

We Love & Sadly Miss You
Your Best of Friends,
Cabe, Travis, David & Gregg

Let's Get Decorator's Nook Down To Business!

This is a feature of The Republican to better acquaint our readers with various area business establishments.

Decorator's Nook

Sheila Reeves Menchaca has revamped the Decorator's Nook at 216 East Water Street in Oakland. Now instead of just a retail establishment, the house is more of a studio where clients can actually see and feel all the new products the store has to offer for home and garden decoration.

In the decorator business for 25 years, Sheila has been at the Water Street location for the last 4½ years. She and three employees, Vicki Duckworth, Debra Georg, and Linda Severe, approach each job as a "one of a kind" project. Sheila explained that even though the technical aspects of a job are basically the same—i.e., a bedroom, bath, the living room, or a kitchen, people want their ideas to come out, but with a decorator's touch. "At Decorator's Nook we strive to give the customers more than they expect and always with personalized attention," she said.

One of the comments heard most often at the store is "I can't believe we have such similar taste!" Sheila said this is taken as a compliment because they listen to what their clients have to say, and do everything in their power to bring their ideas to life.

"We have spent years accessing resources that have different items rather than the same old tried and true," Sheila said. "Not that we don't use the standard companies, but every season we find new items at the markets. Things like embellishments for the walls and ceilings, special wall coverings and window treatments, as well as specialty rugs and prints. While we do not stock all these items, there are samples to see and touch. We work with various artists in the area to create special pieces in iron, wood, fabrics, paintings and florals. All are very particular about their work, which suits us to a T. We also specialize in faux painting and murals."

They have revamped the Decorator's Nook in such a way that each window in the house has one or two different treatments, and there are over 15,000 fabric samples to choose from. "We like to think of accessories as the icing on the cake; we carry a nice selection in the store and are happy to order anything the customer may request," Sheila said.

At Decorator's Nook the wallcovering books are hand selected, and they carry what Sheila believes is the largest and most unique selection of patterns in the area. "Little areas have been created in the store to sit down and look for that just right wallpaper pattern, custom blinds, fabric for window treatments, draperies, upholstery, outdoor patio furniture, or custom bedding." Customers are invited to take their time searching. "We will even provide a drink or snack to help the process along," Sheila said. In-home design services are also available.

Sheila explained that a common misconception is that hiring a decorator to help with making selections for the home is strictly for the wealthy. "We not only work with many first-time homeowners, but those on strict budgets as well."

"In today's busy world most people are very involved in their careers and families. They know what they want; they're just not sure how to get there. That is where we come in," Sheila concluded. The Decorator's Nook can be reached by calling 301-334-5747.

Notes from Bittinger

by Joan Sussman

The birthday binge is still going on in Bittinger. Pastor Pat Pittsogle's husband Kevin turned the big 4-0 on Thursday of last week. Pat visited him at Gettysburg Seminary to help him celebrate. Then on Saturday, the 11th, Ferne (she declined to tell me how old) met with her family from downstate in LaVale for lunch at D'Atri's, along with Cindy Stanton, who enjoyed the reunion with Mary Ellen Presgraves, who also brought Cindy's daughter Lea, up from Towson. Phyllis Mazer, Dave Beachy, and Sally Poholsky were unable to attend. However, they made up for it on Sunday when they celebrated with Ferne at Penn Alps for lunch. Present were Dave and Nancy Beachy, Sally, Lenny, and Torrey Poholsky, and Sam, Cindy, and Aaron Stanton.

Ferne Beachy and Sally and Torrey Poholsky also visited Paul and Ruby Orendorf and Bill and June Green of LaVale on Tuesday. June and Bill Green are celebrating their 64th wedding anniversary. We send our congratulations to the Greens.

Last Saturday Nancy Garlitz and Sheila Southerly visited Ruth Biggs at Frostburg Village Nursing Care Center. Sheila and Nancy were boarders of Ruth while attending college and business school in Cumberland. Ruth will celebrate her 100th birthday on December 31.

Joyce Brennenman suffered a heart attack over the weekend and will undergo heart surgery today, Tuesday, at Monongalia General Hospital in Morgantown.

Sunday was the birthday for both Virginia Brennenman and Joyce Brennenman. Hopefully, it wasn't the birthday that sent Joyce to the hospital. We all wish Joyce a quick recovery.

Rodney and Marci Glatfelter, and members of my family, Lloyd, Caitlin, and Meredith, drove the long trip to Scranton, Pa., for the big band show on Sunday evening. They returned this afternoon exhausted from the two days in a row of driving. In fact, Mere's teacher at Accident Elementary School, Mrs. Stewart, also attended her daughter's performance with the Allegany High School Band in Cumberland. She looked pretty beat at our teacher-parent conference Monday evening.

Northern placed 11th overall out of a field of 25 bands in their division. They won the Best Windwoods and were fourth in the drum major category. They also placed fourth in the bass section. You can't always win, especially in shows that include the best high school bands from the East Coast. Lloyd said they did a fine job and he was very proud of them. They still work very hard to raise funds for their trip to Las Vegas in the spring.

Speaking of trips to Nevada, the Whittemore family was away for a long weekend to attend Lesa's and David's nephew's wedding in Reno. Luckily, Maddy was, of course, the flower girl. She is so perfect for that job, as she is so cute and has so much confidence. Greg's knee was good enough to allow him to play in the football game against Southern on Friday night. As most people already know, the Huskies lost to the Rams. The next morning it was on the plane for Greg to attend the wedding. Lesa and the kids got home Tuesday morning just in time for school. She sounded pretty exhausted.

The general story around this part of Bittinger is exhaustion. I am too tired from just missing my family to chase any more news down this week.

Along with a cold rainy day on Friday, we also got some frozen precipitation. Winter is just around the corner. We had too many clouds on Friday night to see the "Northern Lights" or "Aurora Borealis." I only saw them one time, but that was unforgettable. Lloyd pointed out that night that it was not just cloudy, but he faced the blowing, freezing rain at the Northern-Southern game. Claire insisted they attend the ball game with her buddy, Lacy Slagle. He took them, but he did not enjoy the evening. I doubt that even Southern fans enjoyed that ugly Friday evening weather.

The Bittinger 411 Club will hold its annual buck wheat cake and pancake dinner at the fire hall on this Friday evening, Nov. 17, from 4:30 to 7 p.m. Cost of the dinner for adults is $4.50, with children 12 and under $2.50. Children under 5 eat free. Plan to attend and get these raised old-fashioned buckwheat cakes. If you prefer you can have the pancakes.

Sausage and real Garrett County maple syrup will be served, along with drink of your choice.

Bittinger Lutheran Parish will have a joint Thanksgiving service on Tuesday, November 21, at 7 p.m. at Emmanuel. Donations of canned goods and non-perishable food items are being collected for the Bittinger Food Pantry.

As I look out the window today the snow is coming down; however, I don't think it will amount to too much, but who knows.

Jeff and Shelli (Bittinger) Gray, Hanover, announce the birth of their second daughter, Abigail Estelle, on Wednesday, Nov. 9, weighing 8 lbs. The Grays also have another daughter, Ashlin McKenzie Gray, who will be 3 on January 13. Paternal grandparents are

David and Pamela Gray, Jonestown, Pa. Maternal grandparents are Michael Bittinger, New Jersey, and Linda Oester, Salisbury, Pa. Paternal great-grandparents are Lorraine and Betty Bittinger, and maternal great-grandparents are Jim and Donna Glatfelter. Paternal great-great-grandparents are Kermit and Estella Bittinger, and maternal great-great-grandmother is Ida Leckner, all residents of the local area. Visiting the Grays in Hanover on Sunday were Jim, Donna, and Tom Glatfelter, accompanied by Lisa and Amanda Platter, of Smithsburg.

Adam Platter successfully bagged a deer on the farm of his grandfather, Jim Glatfelter, during Youth Hunt Day on Saturday.

Oakland Update

by Mayor Asa McCain

We're changing the name, but the event is the same, only bigger... "Fresh Air Christmas" is going to be "Christmas on Main Street" and we'll have music, entertainment, Santa Claus, a parade, and food vendors ushering in the Christmas season on Friday, Dec. 1, from 4 to 8 p.m. The Christmas tree lighting this year will take place in front of the train station at 6:30 p.m. The celebration continues on Saturday from 10 a.m. to 1 p.m., with Santa also available on that day to take wish requests from youngsters.

And speaking of Christmas... What could be a better present than buying a brick in honor of or in memory of a loved one? If you haven't seen our sidewalk where many of the bricks are already in place, stop in front of the Garrett County Historical Society and read the names of those who have already had a brick placed. It's become quite a pastime for residents and visitors alike to find the names of people and businesses they recognize. If you have some names you want to add to become a permanent part of our community, you can pick up a form at City Hall or at the Book Market on Second Street and at the museum right next door. Or you can download a form from our web site at www.oaklandmd.com and mail it in with your check.

We're also looking for names to place on our list of volunteers to act as hosts for the train station either on Saturdays from 10 a.m. to 2 p.m. or on Sundays from noon until 4 p.m. That's when the station will be open for tours to the general public. Thousands of people have already been through the building, and Scott Atwill's model train is on display beneath a painted facade of Oakland. We'll supply you with everything you need to know to answer questions about the building.

We're also looking for any historic items relating to either the station or the B&O railroad to be displayed in the building. If you're interested in either volunteering or in donating or lending items for display, please give me a call at City Hall at 301-334-2691.

A final note about the station... It's scheduled on the Red Cross House Tour Friday evening, Dec. 1, from 4 to 9 p.m. and December 2 from 10 a.m. until 3 p.m.

Thank You

The family of Foster S. Sisler would like to thank the staff of Cuppett & Weeks Nursing Home for their care and kindness during his stay there and following his death. Thanks to Rev. Rob Fraley and wife Shirley, also Newman Funeral Home, and to everyone who sent food, flowers, cards, or came by to express their sympathy.

Thank you all very much.

SUPPORT GIVEN TO HOUSE OF HOPE - Larry's Bluea Callar at the Silver Tree Center hosted a Halloween bash last month to raise money for the House of Hope. In the photo above, representatives from the Deep Creek Investment and Management Company, on behalf of the Silver Tree Center, presented a check for $1,654 to House of Hope personnel. RAM Notes

There is no school in Garrett County tomorrow, Friday, Nov. 17.

Juniors who have a cumulative GPA of 2.75 or higher may apply for the Discover Card Tribute Award Scholarship. This program encourages applicants who are multi-talented, who take leadership roles, who overcome obstacles, and who are making life better for those around them. These awards range from $1,000 to $2,500, and can be used at technical schools, as well as, two- and four-year colleges and universities. Students may pick up the applications in the guidance office and should allow about two to three weeks to prepare the application correctly. Don't wait until the last minute. Application packets are due back in the guidance office by Wednesday, Jan. 3, 2001.

A financial aid workshop has been scheduled at Southern High School on Monday, Nov. 20, at 7 p.m. in the cafeteria. Margie Robison, financial aid officer at Frostburg State University, will explain how to complete the Free Application for Federal Student Aid (FAFSA) form as well as answer specific questions about the financial aid process. Persons may call Beverly Sincell at 301-334-1660 for more information.

ASVAB tests were given to all sophomores and some juniors on November 14 and 15.

Senior panoramic pictures will be taken on Thursday, Nov. 16, during advisory period.

MOUNTAINEERS MEET

by Sara Lewis, reporter

On Tuesday evening, Nov. 7, while others followed the elections, a group of area 4-H'ers went bowling. The Eglog Mountaineer 4-H Club found 15 members and nine adults interested in the trip including Ashley Bachtel, Greg Barker, Dana Feather, Kari and Tyler Harsh, Sara Lewis, Josh Mullenax, Craig Rembold, Caitlin Roth, Bridgette Strawser, Kim Moats, and Lindsey Teets. Adults who attended were Susie Harsh, Renee Mullenax, Kevin and Sue Corbin, Allen and Charlotte Strawser, Diana Bachtel, Shawn Rembold, and Linda Lewis.

Although it had been a long time since some had bowled, for others it was the first time, and along with a lot of laughter (and gutter balls), it was reportedly a fun night for everyone. This activity was planned in lieu of the regular annual achievement night, and at the conclusion of the evening, Linda Lewis, organizational leader, distributed new project books.

Lewis also displayed to the group the gold ribbon won by the club for its work during the 1999-2000 club year, and also the certificates for having highest meeting attendance and 100% project completion in the small club category. The treasurer's and secretary's books also received blue ribbons. Winning county 4-H project medals were Dana Feather in beef and Josh Mullenax for gardening and horticulture, and for sheep. Kevin Corbin received recognition for being a first-year leader, and Renee Mullenax earned her silver clover pin for five years as leader. The Bruce Teets family of Eglog won a front quarter of beef in the Preston County 4-H Foundation raffle.

These awards were made at the Nov. 5 Preston County Officers' Training and Achievement event. Eglog Mountaineers had all of their officers present for that occasion, including Dana Feather, president; Lindsey Teets, vice president; Kari Harsh, secretary; Maria Harsh, treasurer; Sara Lewis, reporter; Craig Rembold, recreation; and Tracy Teets, music.

SENIORS TOUR WHEELING LIGHTS

The Preston County Senior Citizens made a trip to Oglebay Park at Wheeling on Wednesday, Nov. 8, to tour the mansion that is decorated for Christmas, and went to the glass museum, where they watched a glass blower make an object. They also attended Fantasyland Laser Show, the zoo, and crafts. Prior to the tour of the light display, they had a buffet dinner at Wilson Lodge.

Making the trip from the Aurora area were Bea Ball, Marie Mullenax, Lela Slaubaugh, Juanita Stemple, Mary Calcamp, and Eugene and Bernadine Bachtel; and from Terra Alta, Glen and Mary Ruth Ball, plus others from the county, for a total of 24.

PERSONAL MENTION

Lionie Bentley of Sunny-side is recuperating from a double bypass surgery on Friday at Monongalia General Hospital in Morgantown.

David Layman was able to return to Eglog in time to cast his vote last Tuesday, after being a patient at Ruby Memorial Hospital.

Mr. and Mrs. Tom Lewis and Sara were weekend visitors with their daughter, Emily Lewis, at Martinsburg. They returned to Eglog Sunday evening.

Claude and Jean Winters of Eglog visited in Manassas, Va., this weekend with their son and daughter-in-law, Carl and Nancy Winters.

Visiting this weekend with Claud and Eldean Poling were Eldean's daughters and family from Ohio, including Charlie and Darlene Boyett, their son Chuck, his daughters Alexis and Aubrey, and Gloria Harsh.

New Md. Ag License Plate Unveiled

Maryland's new agricultural license plate was unveiled Nov. 2 at Michael's Eighth Avenue in Glen Burnie in a flurry of hoopla at the annual dinner of the Maryland Agricultural Education Foundation (MAEF).

The first five tags were auctioned, raising $9,300 for the foundation.

The license plates, decorated with a colorful farm scene, and the slogan "Our Farms, Our Future," will be available to the public early 2001. (To see the new ag tag in color, go to The Republican's web site at www.therepublicannews.com.) The license plate, designed by MAEF graphic artist Laurie Adelhardt, will join the Chesapeake Bay Trust's "blue heron" tag in honoring the state's treasures. The ag tag was approved by the legislature and Gov. Parris Glendening earlier this year.

Key sponsors for the legislation included Cecil County state senator Walter Baker and Lower Shore delegate Norman H. Conway. Baker and other lawmakers were honored at the MAEF dinner for their work on the legislation, as was former Maryland Farm Bureau lobbyist Jack Miller, who also worked on the bill.

Funds from sales of the ag tag will support the Maryland Agricultural Education Foundation (MAEF), created by the legislature in 1989 to promote agriculture in the state's schools.

Former Garrett County resident Karen Hamilton Engel was a member of the Ag in the Classroom committee that made recommendations to elected officials in Annapolis for that 1989 legislation.

MAEF currently operates several mobile ag education labs, which travel around the state for use at elementary schools.

The foundation has trained some 550 Maryland teachers through its workshops, and it provides grants to teachers who use agriculture as a teaching tool in an innovative manner.

Lt. Gov. Kathleen Kennedy Townsend called the ag license plate a "win-win for Maryland."

Townsend said, "These license plates will generate revenue that will allow thousands of Maryland students to learn about the important role that agriculture plays in the life of our state."

"This license plate is a great way to pay tribute to our agricultural roots while educating our state's future leaders."

MAEF's president, Cecil County farmer Ewing McDowell, said the event is a crowning moment for Maryland's ag community.

Motor Vehicle Administration's Anne S. Ferrosaid, "The Motor Vehicle Administration is delighted to produce a special license plate for customers who are interested in fostering agricultural education programs in Maryland."

"We are proud to offer special plates that support our environment: from the Chesapeake Bay to the state's largest industry, farming."

Maryland's secretary of agriculture, Dr. Henry A. Virts, said the ag tag will remind Marylanders of the important role farming plays in their daily lives.

Virts said, "At the same time, the funds generated by the ag tag will help bring the message about agriculture to children and their parents through MAEF's outstanding efforts."

"We deeply appreciate the support of Gov. Glendening and the General Assembly in making this program possible."

"The ag tag gives farmers the recognition they deserve as one of Maryland's leading industries," said Stephen Weber, Baltimore County farmer and Maryland Farm Bureau president. "The new tag will give all citizens in the state the opportunity to celebrate and take pride in our farming heritage."

Five more ag tags will be auctioned to the highest bidders at the Maryland Farm Bureau Convention at Ocean City Dec. 3 to 6. The proceeds from those sales will also benefit MAEF.

The ag tag will be available through the Motor Vehicle Administration to anyone who registers a vehicle

Maryland Dividends—with its motto "Statewide Dividends through Research"—features 173 current and ongoing projects by 109 faculty members from AGNR and the College of Life Sciences. Anyone with an Internet connection can access the web site, which shares similarities with sites maintained by about 10 other land-grant institutions.

Graduate students and faculty on campus and at other universities are the most common current users. Fretz indicated he would like to see increased use by legislators, their staff members, and government agency staff—federal and state.

In addition to searching the site by hot topics—two other examples are "Climate Change" and "Good Health"—users can search by name of individual researcher or by general topic, such as environment and production.

As a "living" publication, Maryland Dividends will be updated approximately once every two years to add new projects and reflect progress in current research.

Does It Pay To Raise Your Dairy Heifers?
One of the larger expenses incurred on the dairy is replacement heifer rearing. Replacement rearing is second only to feed cost for the lactating cows. In surveys of dairy expenditures, this item accounts for 9% to 20% of the total expenses on the farm. Heifers will not return on your investment (approximately $1000 to $1300 per heifer at 24 months of age) until they are in lactation. Projections range from a loss of $1.50 to $3.00 for every day in excess of 24 months of age that calving is delayed, therefore, delays in age to first calving will add approximately $50 per heifer per month to the expenses incurred in raising heifers. A herd of 100 lactating cows with a culling rate of 33% will need to calve 38 heifers per 12 months (5 extra heifers to allow for an additional 15% culling of the first calf heifers). If the average heifer calving age is 30 months, the increase in expenses is approximately $300 per heifer for those 6 months over goal. This translates to an $11,400 (38 x $300) loss per year in excess labor, feed, facilities, fuel, etc. Several specific items can reduce expenses while increasing the dairy's profitability and produce heifers that will milk to their potential: (1) the early development period - colostrum is critical to a healthy heifer, (2) rations specifically formulated for weight gains during strategic times of development - over-feeding prior to puberty can be detrimental to milk production, (3) Holstein heifers weigh 775 to 800 pounds at 14 to 15 months for breeding to calve at 24 to 25 months, (4) Holstein heifers average gain of 1.8 pounds per day of age to calve at 24 months weighing 1350 pounds, (5) use of superior AI sires on replacement heifers for breeding - first calf heifers represent 33% of the contribution of calves to the replacement pool, (6) weight is more critical than age at calving in relation to milk production, (7) a system to monitor weight, height, and body condition score during heifer development and at calving, along with milk production at start-up (day 1 - 40), peak (day 41 - 100), and mature equivalents as indicators of good heifer development. Heifers can be adequately developed to calve at 24 months, while decreasing expenses and increasing profits.

Hunter's Pledge Is a Reminder Of Challenges and Rewards

Hunting is a part of many families' holiday traditions. And, the tradition of being a responsible hunter is handed down through generations.

The Hunter's Pledge, written by hunting and fishing organizations, helps define what hunters can do to keep that tradition alive. It lists what hunters can do to enjoy the sport themselves while being responsible to the public and protecting the environment.

Respect the environment and wildlife. Responsible hunters don't engage in activities that destroy or degrade natural resources. They avoid unnecessarily wounding animals.

Respect property and landowners. Those who hunt on land of others abide by the landowners' rules, remove all trash and pick up any litter left behind by other, less considerate users. They close and fasten any gates they open; do not frighten the owner's livestock or domestic animals and are considerate of adjoining property owners' rights and safety concerns.

Show consideration for non-hunters. Recognize that not everyone shares in the same beliefs and traditions that hunters do. Listen to the concerns of non-hunters and gain better understanding of the attitudes of individuals who choose not to hunt. At the same time, be prepared to thoughtfully, clearly, and concisely convey why you enjoy and support this recreational opportunity.

Hunt safely. Let others know where you are hunting and what your trip plans are so that you can be found in the event of an emergency; wear clothing appropriate to expected weather conditions; abide by all proper firearm handling guidelines; wear blaze orange where and when required.

Know and obey the law. Review current regulations that pertain to the type of hunt you intend to pursue before heading into the field. Recognize that open seasons and bag limits can and often do change frequently — and abide by those limits.

Support wildlife and habitat conservation. Become active in the promotion of sound land management efforts, whether through a recognized conservation organization, a local civic or hunt club, or on your own property. Efforts you make to improve habitat quality now may return benefits later so work with the state wildlife management agency to achieve management objectives.

Pass on an ethical hunting tradition. Take and pass a certified hunter education course. Recognize that the manner in which you conduct yourself while hunting will have an effect on other hunters in the future — become a good role model for others, especially children and young adults who represent the future of this recreational pursuit.

Strive to improve your outdoor skills and understanding of wildlife. In general, your enjoyment of the overall hunting experience and time spent afield, and, for some, the ultimate success in taking an animal, is related directly to one's knowledge of the environment in which these activities occur - the more you understand about wildlife and how they interact with their environment, the more rewarding your time afield will be.

Hunt only with ethical hunters. Do not tolerate improper behavior or actions of others that have the potential to denigrate the sport. Report illegal, unethical, and unsafe hunting activities to proper authorities as a means to protect the reputation of law-abiding, safe, and ethical hunters.

hatched during the week was 82%. Average hatchability is calculated by dividing chicks hatched during the week by eggs set three weeks earlier.

Broiler growers in the 15-state weekly program placed 138 million chicks for meat production during the week ending Oct. 28. Placements were up 4% from the comparable week in 1999. Cumulative placements from Jan. 2 through Oct. 28 were 6.23 billion, up 1% from the same period a year earlier.

The MACCA exams are part of the International Certified Crop Adviser (ICCA) program, which is a nationally recognized, voluntary certification program developed through the collaborative efforts of the public sector and the agricultural industry to ensure high standards for crop advisers. Local programs are administered by state or regional boards in association with the American Society of Agronomy, which handles similar programs for specialists in agronomy, crop consulting, weed science and other agricultural disciplines. It is intended for anyone who makes nutrient, pesticide, crop, or environmental recommendations to producers, including dealers, distributors, applicators, consultants, manufacturers, allied industries, and state and federal agency personnel. To date 236 individuals have passed the rigorous 6 hours of exams and become certified in the Mid-Atlantic region.

Ashby & Sons Truck Repair Willard "Spanky" & Billie Jo Ashby, Owners

Truck owners and large trucking companies in this area know that well-maintained trucks are essential so that delays due to repair stops are not a problem. The people at Ashby & Sons Truck Repair, located in Oakland at 316 East Pennington Street, phone (301) 359-3010, realize that your truck is one of the most important and expensive tools you own. Modern trucks are built to last, but that doesn't mean that periodic servicing should be forgotten or ignored.

This business was established in the 1960s by Joseph Ashby, Sr., and is now owned by Willard "Spanky" and Billy Jo Ashby. Ashby & Sons Truck Repair specializes in preventive maintenance and all types of repairs and service for truck owners, specializing in medium duty trucks. They keep a large inventory of parts in stock in order to serve you quickly and economically. Their experienced mechanics, which are certified Telsta mechanics as well as certified Cnan generator mechanics, can keep your investment in top running condition and can advise you on important maintenance procedures that will help prevent costly breakdowns. From scheduled maintenance and third-member repair to transmissions and diesel engine overhauls, they do it all. They believe in personal service, and they are fully insured for your protection.

For expert preventive maintenance and repair services, truck fleet owners can confidently depend on Ashby & Sons Truck Repair. Their prompt, reliable work is your assurance of satisfaction enabling you to "keep on trucking."

YOUGH GLADES KIDS HELP KIDS — For the last three years, students at Yough Glades Elementary School have participated in the Kids Helping Kids Harvest for the Hungry program by collecting food for distribution to needy families through the Community Action food bank. A total of 2,368 food items were collected by the student body over a three-week period recently, and Mrs. Anna Buckingham's kindergarten class, pictured above, collected 332 items, the most of any class. From the left in the front row are Emma Liller, Wisteria Smith, Michaela Bosley, Jenny Jones, Grace Slaughbaugh, Steve Royce, Katlyn Moon, and Trent McManus. In the second row are Justin Sanders, Charlie Harvey, Austin Halbig, Emily Kianer, Summer Butler, and Chelsea Hensley. In the back row are Chase Slater, P.J. Lloyd, Timmy Tichner, Audrey Bowser, Nic Sines, Courtney Tasker, Matthew Hebb, Elliott DiGirola, Brian Pessini, Austin Skewerle, and Nevin White. Kindergarten Audrey Bowser, shown below with the items she collected, reached her own personal goal of collecting five boxes full of food items with the assistance of the Markleysburg Church of the Brethren. Bowser read a letter to the congregation that she and her mother had drafted, and their fellow church members responded most generously.

Nevin Umbel.

Choir practice is held every Wednesday at 6 p.m., with Bible study beginning at 7 p.m.

Chair dancing exercises are being held every Wednesday at 9 a.m. at the Sand Spring social hall. Everyone is welcome to attend.

SENIOR CITIZEN NEWS

Chair exercise is held every Monday at 10 a.m., with Brenda Frazee as the leader.

A thank-you was received from Cindy Daniels for the Campbell soup labels, Betty Crocker box tops, and Foodland receipts collected for the Accident Elementary School by the senior citizens.

Chellie Broadwater and JoAnn Harsh presented a program on Monday, Nov.

13, on the topic of assisted living for Alzheimer patients.

The senior citizens will have their annual Thanksgiving dinner on Monday, Nov. 20, at the center. Any senior interested is reminded to call for a reservation.

CRIME WATCH MEETING

The next Crime Watch meeting will be held Tuesday, Nov. 21, at the Friendsville Elementary School cafeteria from 7 to 8:45 p.m. The meeting scheduled for Tuesday, Nov. 28, has been canceled. For more information, persons may contact JoAnn Ross at 301-746-4210.

SCHOOL NEWS

The Friendsville Elementary School is celebrating Spirit Week this week, Nov. 13-16. Monday was Blue and Gold Day, Tuesday was Dress-Up Day, Wednesday was PJ Day, and Thursday was Wild Day.

The students celebrated Giving Day Thursday, Nov. 9, by making a craft to be distributed to the homeless.

on Friday, Nov. 17, because of parent conferences.

School will be dismissed at noon on Wednesday, Nov. 22, for the Thanksgiving holiday and will resume Tuesday, Nov. 28.

HOLIDAY LIGHT UP NIGHT

The annual Holiday Light-Up Night and activities sponsored by the mayor and town council are scheduled for Friday, Dec. 1, at the town hall. Santa will arrive for the 6:30 p.m. light-up, and treats will be distributed to children after the tree lighting. Townwide hayrides for carolers will be provided. Other entertainment is being planned as well. Local churches, organizations, and individuals are encouraged to set up tables to sell refreshments and crafts along Chestnut Street in front of the town hall. Any group or individual willing to provide entertainment is also welcome. For additional information, persons may contact Frani King at 301-746-4441 or Shirley Metheny at 301-746-5207.

PERSONAL MENTION

Jessie Sines of Friendsville has been discharged from Garrett County Memorial Hospital and is now receiving therapy and recuperating at the Cuppett-Weeks Nursing Home in Oakland. Her address is Cuppett-Weeks Nursing Home, Level 1, 706 E. Alder Street, Oakland, MD 21550.

Teen Pregnancy Council Offers Mini-Grants

The Garrett County Teen Pregnancy Prevention Coalition (TPPC) is now accepting proposals for the mini-grant program for fiscal year 2001 with funding available until June 30, 2001. The funds are made possible through a grant from the Governor's Council on Adolescent Pregnancy.

The mini-grant award program is designed to aid community-based organizations to increase awareness of factors leading to and consequences of early childbearing, as well as to develop and implement strategies to reduce teen pregnancy in Garrett County.

Non-profit and governmental groups may receive up to $500 to start or enhance existing projects that are consistent with the Teen Pregnancy Prevention Coalition's core beliefs and values.

There will be no school

BROAD FORD STUDENTS SET PLAY — The second grade students at Broad Ford Elementary School will present a public performance of The First Thanksgiving at the school at 7 p.m. Tuesday, Nov. 21. Proceeds from the fund-raising event will benefit the Garrett County chapter of the American Cancer Society, and the suggested donation amount is $5 per person. The three actors pictured, from the left, are pilgrim Hunter Haskell, native American Jakob Scheffel, and pilgrim wife Julie Hall.

Previous grant participants have included the Crellin United Brethren in Christ Church high school outreach class, the Crellin United Brethren youth group, and the Kitzmiller Empowerment Group. For further information, persons may call Lisa Martin or Kendra Todd at the Garrett County Health Department at 301-533-0113.

TO THE RESIDENTS OF LOCH LYNN

We would like to respond to yet another issue which has arisen from a few of the residents of Loch Lynn.

The Board of Education turned the former Loch Lynn School over to the Town of Loch Lynn when it became vacant for use as a community building. The first renter is St. Mark's Lutheran Church, which opened a Christian Day Care Center. We have been criticized for renting one room for $300 per month. This decision was made in light of the following information.

The St. Mark's Lutheran Church, at its own expense, installed a smoke alarm system for the school, repainted and carpeted the room it is renting and also fenced in the playground. All of these improvements were to help the building as a whole, not just for its own use.

The St. Mark's Lutheran Church staff are teaching these children to work together and pray together, an example of which we all should take from their lead.

The thing that impressed me the most was when I stopped by the school one day and they were teaching the little children to pray. If you would have seen the expressions on their little faces you would also be proud to be part of the reason they are there.

We are proud to be able to help such worthwhile organizations as the St. Mark's Lutheran Church.

Sincerely,
Charles H. Tressler

CARDS OF HOPE, a collection of 12 full-color Christmas greeting cards designed by young cancer patients and family members, includes the two original works shown here created by Becky and Steven Diller of Dry Run Road. Proceeds raised by sales through the annual U.S. Cellular Cards of Hope project benefit the Children's Cancer Care and Research Fund, a joint project of the Mary Babb Randolph Center and West Virginia University Children's Hospital in Morgantown. "Santa's Helper," above, is 8-year-old Becky's drawing of a horse with a Santa's hat and a bell, bears the inscription "Ring in the holiday season with joy and love." Steven, 11, designed "Three Kings," shown below, which carries the message "Wishing you all the true gifts of the Christmas season." A Cards of Hope spokesperson commented that "the optimism expressed in their artwork can be inspirational, giving us a glimpse of the childlike hope in each of us." The cards are $12.50 per box of 20, and may be viewed on-line at www.hsc.wvu.edu/mbrcc/coh. See story for complete details on purchasing the cards, and on a special dinner/magic show/auction event slated for tomorrow evening in Morgantown.

Children's Cancer Center To Benefit From Card Sales

A pair of original Christmas greeting cards designed by two Garrett County children were selected for a collection of a dozen cards being sold through the annual U.S. Cellular Cards of Hope project, which raises money for comprehensive children's cancer therapies. The Cards of Hope project benefits the Children's Cancer Care and Research Fund, a joint project of the Mary Babb Randolph Cancer Center and West Virginia University Children's Hospital in Morgantown.

Becky and Steven Diller, who along with their brother Ben are the children of Marilyn and John Diller of Dry Run Road, submitted "Santa's Helper" and "Three Kings," respectively. (See adjacent card reproductions.) Six-year-old Becky's recovery from leukemia has been made possible by a bone marrow donation from Steven, 11. The two siblings were among nearly 100 pediatric cancer patients and their family members who designed Christmas cards for the project. Each participating family resides in western Maryland and the north-central portion of West Virginia.

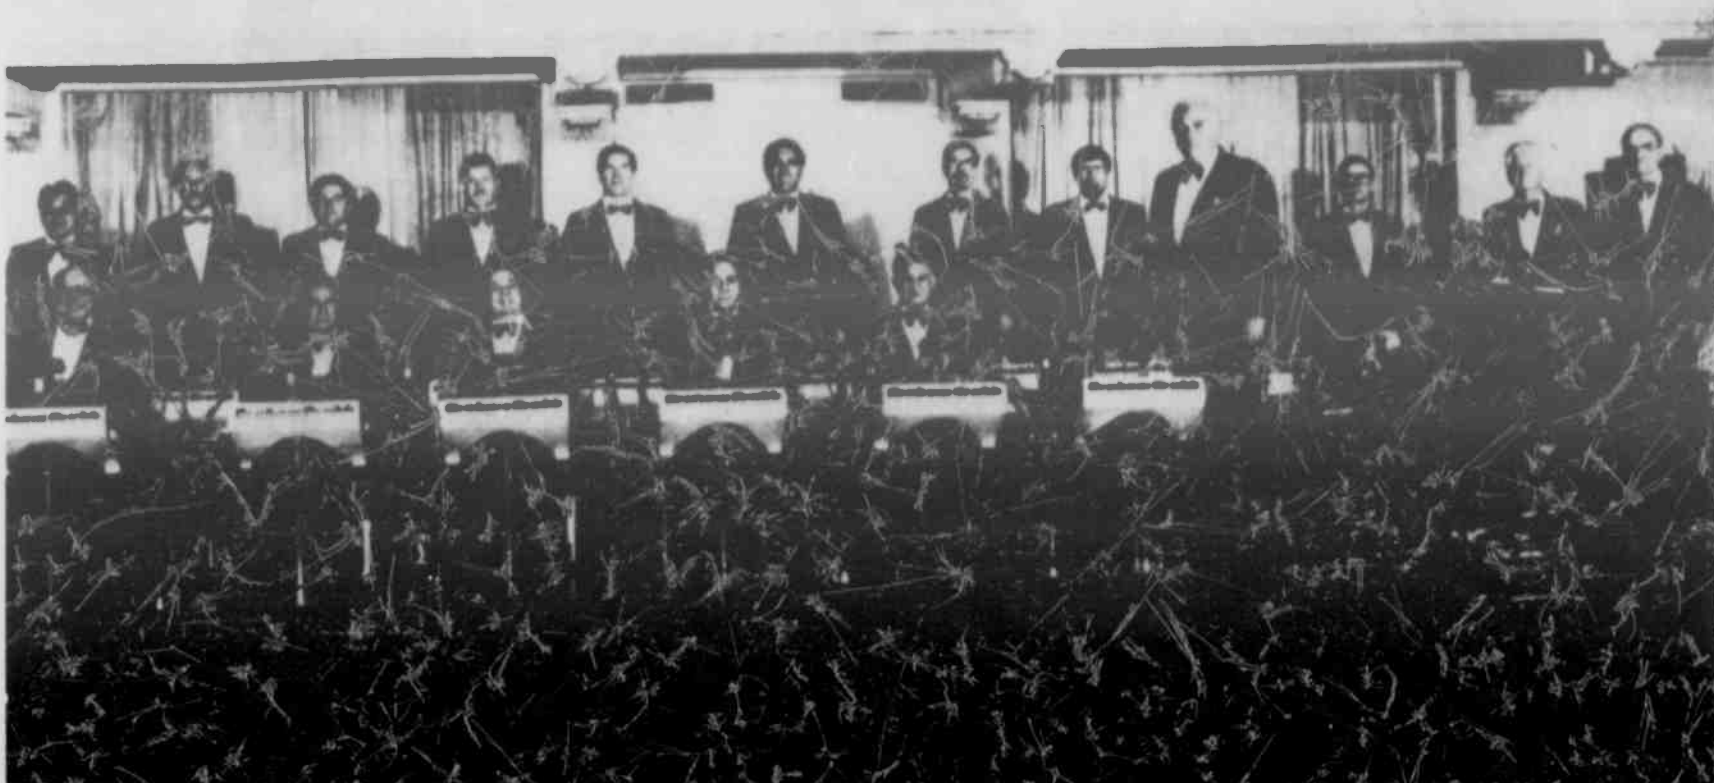

Ten cards were selected

MUSICAL MILKSHAKES
It's morning in the diner.
The waitress lives on a merry-go-round.
Each rotation is one day.
Same customers. Same orders.
Flashie her blue eyes
Smiling with her Candy Apple Red lips.
Serving coffee and Snapping bubble gum.

1:30
Lunch break in the back room.
From a red vinyl purse,
She pulls a tattered menu.
Hidden inside, sheet music of her three favorites.
Bach, Brahms, Beethoven.
She props one on a napkin holder.
Long, delicate fingers
Play along on an imaginary piano,
The side of a discarded jukebox.

After supper in the diner,
The waitresses waste their meager tips.
The jukebox,
A pack of Marlboros,
A lottery ticket.
They sit on rust stained porcelain sinks
In the women's room.
Touching up makeup,
Gossiping.
Fantasizing about their trucker of the day,
Swaying to the desperate tunes.
But one waitress hears only Minuet in G.

"IT DON'T MEAN A THING, . . ." — The sounds of swing music will highlight the upcoming Christmas Big Band Gala at the Oakland Elks Lodge, set to begin at 7:30 p.m. Saturday, Dec. 2. The public is invited to take part in the annual fund-raising event, which will feature music by the Graham Grubb Orchestra of Greensburg, Pa., near Pittsburgh. Grubb's 13-piece (plus vocalist) orchestra has been cranking out the timeless sounds of swing for the past 20 years, and its extensive repertoire includes selections made famous by Big Band leaders such as Glenn Miller, Benny Goodman, and Tommy Dorsey. "The style really requires a full-sized band if you truly want the sound that swings," commented Grubb. The $100 per couple price of admission for the formal/semi-formal affair includes a full-course dinner catered by McClive's Restaurant, open bar from 7:30 p.m. to midnight, and dancing to the Grubb Orchestra. Proceeds will benefit the Garrett County United Way, which supports local charities. Tickets are currently available at the Oakland Elks Lodge, and interested persons may call 301-334-1119 for further information. (. . . "If it ain't got swing.")

Fletcher, McGee Will Perform At "Bach's Lunch"

JOANN FLETCHER

The next offering of the weekly series known as "Bach's Lunch" will feature a concert of contemporary gospel songs by local vocalist JoAnn Fletcher, accompanied by organist Jerry McGee. The free concert will be held Wednesday, Nov. 22, at St. Matthew's Episcopal Church in Oakland, beginning at noon. The series is being held in commemoration of the 250th anniversary of the death of composer Johann Sebastian Bach. Those attending are encouraged to stay after the concert for a boxed lunch.

Mrs. Fletcher's public appearances began early, singing with her two sisters as a gospel trio at the age of 5. She has performed locally in community theatre, as the opening act for Janis Ian in the Little Yough Music Festival, as an opening act for Chautauqua, for various churches and groups (most recently the Garrett County Historical Society), with the Garrett Choral Society, and as a soloist and choir member at First Church of the Nazarene, Cumberland. Some of her more memorable stage roles were as Anna in The King and I, Marion the Librarian in The Music Man, Fairy Godmother in Cinderella, Nancy in Oliver!, and Miss Hannigan in Annie.

Remaining performances scheduled in the series, which continues through advent are: Organ Music of Advent, Nov. 29; Music for Bagpipes and Organ, Dec. 6; Music for Tenor and Organ, Dec. 13; and Organ Noels of Southern France, Dec. 20.

Christmas House Tour Scheduled In Addison, Pa.

The Old Petersburg-Addison Historical Society will hold its Christmas House Tour on Saturday, Dec. 9, from 10 a.m. until 5 p.m. in the village of Addison, Pa.

There will be five homes on the tour, plus the museum and the Lutheran and the Methodist churches. Pianist and well-known artist/carer Tom Douglass will be featured at some of the homes.

Shops located in the village will also be open. They include Somewhere In Time, the Addison Craft Shop, and Wright's Antiques. Lunch will be available at the Methodist church. Tour tickets will also be sold at the Methodist Church at a cost of $10 for adults and $3 for children. Christmas greenery will be sold on the deck of the Augustine home opposite the church.

For more information, persons may telephone 814-395-5584 or -3649.

COVE

The Cove Kids 4-H Club met Tuesday evening at the St. John's Lutheran Church fellowship hall. The guest speaker for the evening was Sharon Custer from the Garrett County Health Department. She talked to the group about nutrition. Elected officers for 2001 were: president, Leah Biser; vice president, Megan Margroff; secretary, Michelle Bender; treasurer, Beth Long; reporter, Michael Bender; and photographer, Rachel Margroff. The Christmas dinner will be held December 12 at 6 p.m. in the church fellowship hall. Matthew Margroff and Michelle Bender are in charge of Christmas decorations for the Christmas dinner.

The Northern High School Band traveled to Scranton, Pa., on Sunday and competed for Atlantic Coast Championship. The group took 11th place and won for best woodwinds. The band was accompanied by band director Bill Robinson and wife Rita, as well as many band parents and friends.

Monday visitors of Mr. and Mrs. Harold Schmidt were Mr. and Mrs. Scott Schmidt, Springs, Pa.

Mrs. Rosalie Piper met with Mr. and Mrs. Jack Sowell, Berryville, Va., in Cumberland on Saturday and had lunch and visited.

Adorable Adoptables

SAD EYES, WARM HEART — This sad-eyed yellow Lab may bear a woeful countenance, but like a true "dog Quixote" he is not going to relinquish his quest for a loving home. The friendly, lovable, and intelligent male is available for adoption at the Garrett County Animal Shelter, located along Oakland Sang Run Road just north of the Oakland Golf Club. Open every day except Sunday, the shelter may be reached by calling 301-334-3553. Photo by Dab Hetrick.

Sunday supper guests of Mrs. Alfreda Friend were Mr. and Mrs. George Fint, Aurora, W.Va., and Elmer Hanft.

Mrs. Esther Margroff was admitted to Sacred Heart Hospital on Tuesday and remains a patient there. Family and friends have visited with her each day.

Santanna Harman, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Gerald Harman, was a surgical outpatient at Memorial Hospital in Cumberland on Monday, Nov. 6, where she had her tonsils and adenoids removed. She is recuperating at her home.

Mr. and Mrs. John Sherwood and son, Miss Heather Bell, Mt. Nebo, W.Va., and Mrs. Walter Hanft went to the National 4-H Center, Chevy Chase, on Tuesday, where Heather remained to spend the week attending the National Young Leaders' Conference and touring the nation's capital. The Sherwoods and Mrs. Hanft were overnight guests of Mr. and Mrs. Charles Needer, Timonium, and Wednesday evening visitors of Mr. and Mrs. Fred Higson, Cumberland. The Sherwoods were overnight guests of Mrs. Hanft and returned to their home on Thursday.

Mrs. Virginia Fike, Medina, Ohio, Mrs. Fred Higson, Cumberland, Elmer Hanft, Mrs. Alfreda Friend, and Mrs. Myrtle Hanft were Friday overnight visitors of Mr. and Mrs. Robert Goessler, Brunswick, Ohio. Other evening visitors were Mr. and Mrs. David Goessler, also of Brunswick. The group visited with Mrs. Virginia Fike at the Medina Dialysis Center on Saturday and later at her apartment at Outlook Pointe Assisted Living Community, Medina. They all returned to their homes Saturday evening.

Mrs. Dorothy Resh and Mrs. Myrtle Hanft were Sunday afternoon visitors of Mrs. Betty Richter at Cherry Hill Assisted Living, Accident, and also visited with Mrs. Genevieve Glover, Town Hill Village, Accident.

Mr. and Mrs. Dennis Margroff attended the Association of Fairs and Shows in Hagerstown this weekend.

Cohen and Charles F. Dodge, Jr., Substitute Trustees for the purpose of foreclosure, by instrument duly executed, acknowledged and recorded among the Land Records of the County aforesaid, default having occurred under the terms of said Deed of Trust and at the request of the party secured thereby, the undersigned Substitute Trustees will offer for sale at public auction on the premises on:

at 12:00 NOON

ALL that certain piece or parcel of land situate, lying and being in Election District No. 14 in Garrett County, Maryland, lying on the east side of Deep Creek Lake, and along the west side of the Lake Shore County Road; adjoining the property of Pennsylvania Electric Company, between Smith's Run and Bee Tree Hollow and being part of the 44.09 acre tract that was conveyed by Fulcher O. Smith and Marie S. Smith, his wife, to Ann Blakeslee Smith, by deed dated July 2, 1948, and recorded in Liber 153, folio 442, one of the Land Records of Garrett County, Maryland, the part hereby intended to be conveyed is part of the subdivision of the tract of land formerly known as the Stella Roy Tract and is more fully described as follows:

BEGINNING at a concrete monument marked "N-192"; said monument being a corner of Pennsylvania Electric Company and being the fourth corner of the 44.32 acre tract that is described as TRACT No. 6 in the deed from Eastern Land Corporation to Youghiogheny Hydro-Electric Corporation, dated October 1, 1925, and recorded in Liber 91, folio 448, one of the Land Records of Garrett County, Maryland, said monument also being the 8th corner of the 44.09 acre tract hereinbefore referred to, and running thence from said monument with the line of Pennsylvania Electric Company, North 1 degree 47 minutes East 112.6 feet to an iron pipe; thence South 88 degrees 13 minutes East 163.50 feet to an iron pipe; thence South 66 degrees 59 minutes West 174.77 feet to an iron pipe in the line of Pennsylvania Electric Company; thence with the line of said Company, North 34 degrees 47 minutes West 13.92 feet to the beginning, containing thirty-four hundredths (0.34) of an acre, more or less.

BEING the same property as was conveyed to the Grantors by deed from Chester W. Spicher, Jr. and Gertrude H. Spicher, husband and wife, dated August 25, 1980, and recorded in Liber 411, folio 449, one of the Land Records of Garrett County, Maryland.

SUBJECT to covenants and restrictions as set forth in the above referenced deed from Chester W. Spicher, Jr., et ux, to the Grantors.

SUBJECT to a reservation of all coal, gas, oil and other minerals underlying to the subject property, together with the rights and privileges incident thereto.

DESCRIPTION OF PROPERTY: The property is believed to be improved by a frame, "Ranch Style" home situated in the most desirable waterfront area of "Deep Creek Lake." The property affords a "Magnificent" view of the lake and is believed to contain approximately 126+/- feet of water frontage and a 1A Dock Permit which allows for 3 boat slips.

TERMS OF SALE: A deposit of $15,000.00, payable in cash or certified check, will be required of the Purchaser(s) at the time and place of sale. The balance of the purchase price shall be due upon settlement, which shall occur within twenty (20) days following the final ratification of the sale by the Circuit Court for Garrett County, Maryland. Time is of the essence. The Substitute Trustees reserve the right to reject any and all bids.

Interest shall be paid by the Purchaser(s) on the unpaid purchase money at the rate of ten percent (10%) per annum from the day of sale to the date of settlement. In the event the Lender or an affiliate of the Lender is the successful bidder at the sale, the Lender or said affiliate will not be required to make a deposit or to pay interest on the unpaid purchase money. All taxes (including, without limitation, any taxes due and owing as a result of any tax sale(s), personal property taxes or otherwise), water rent and all other municipal charges and liens shall be adjusted to the date of sale and paid thereafter by the Purchaser(s). In addition, all other charges, expenses and liens owed against the Property including, but not limited to, all public charges and assessments owed against the Property and payable on an annual basis, such as sanitary and/or metropolitan district charges, if any, shall also be adjusted to the date of sale and paid thereafter by the Purchaser(s). The cost of all documentary stamps, recordation taxes, document preparation and transfer taxes shall be paid by the Purchaser(s).

The Property will be sold subject to all easements, conditions, liens, restrictions, rights of redemption, covenants, encumbrances, such state of facts that an accurate survey or physical inspection of the Property might disclose, agreements of record affecting the same, if any. The Property will also be sold subject to all existing housing, building and zoning code violations, subject to all environmental problems or violations which may exist on or about the Property, subject to all applicable rules, obligations, easements, equitable servitudes and regulations, subject to all matters and restrictions of record affecting the same, if any, and subject to all rights having priority over the Deed of Trust, if any. The Property will also be sold in an "AS IS" condition and without any warranties or representations, either express or implied, as to the nature, condition or description of the Property or the improvements thereon. The Purchaser(s) at the foreclosure sale shall assume the risk of loss for the Property immediately after the sale takes place.

In the event the Purchaser(s) fail to go to settlement as required, the aforementioned deposit shall be forfeited and the Property shall be re-sold at the Purchaser(s)' risk and expense.

If the Substitute Trustees are unable to convey the Property as described above, the Purchaser(s)' sole remedy at law or in equity shall be limited to the refund of the aforementioned deposit. Upon such refund of the deposit to the Purchaser(s), the sale shall be void and of no effect, and the Purchaser(s) shall have no further claim against the Substitute Trustees or the Lender.

The information contained herein was obtained from sources deemed to be reliable, but is offered for informational purposes only. The Auctioneer, the Lender and the Substitute Trustees do not make any representations or warranties with respect to the accuracy of this information. STANDING TIMBER FOR SALE

The Maryland State Forest and Park Service is offering for sale the following timber on 14 acres of Compartment #72 of Savage River State Forest. This sale is estimated to cut 99,020 D.F.T. of live hardwood sawtimber according to the International Saw Log Rule (F.C. 7B), and 50 cords of hardwood pulpwood, more or less. All tallied trees 11" D.B.H. and larger with at least the 16' log to an 8" top D.I.B. with less than 50% defect were tallied as sawtimber.

Timber is located on the east side of New Germany Road approximately one mile south of the intersection with Big Run Road. Timber is offered for sale subject to the following conditions:

1. Timber will be shown at 9:00 a.m. on Friday, November 7, 2000. Anyone interested in seeing this sawtimber may meet at the Shooting Range parking lot at the above time and date.
2. Contract/Bid Forms will be available at the showing or from Savage River State Forest Headquarters, 349 Headquarters Lane, Grantsville, MD 21536 or phone 301-895-5759.
3. A Security Bond in the amount of 10% of the bid submitted must be posted upon submission of the bid to the Maryland State Forest & Park Service.
4. The operator must be a registered Forest Product Operator in Maryland for the current year and hold a Certificate of Erosion and Sediment Control (Green/Gold Card) training to be awarded successful bidding.
5. A Performance Bond in the amount of 10% of the bid submitted must be posted upon acceptance of the contract by the State of Maryland. The Security Bond may be applied to cover the Performance Bond.
6. All timber volumes noted in this offering are estimates. Parties bidding on this timber should determine such volumes to their own satisfaction. NO adjustments on the basis of volumes will be made with buyers.
7. Bidder may pay 50% of bid price on acceptance of the contract, with the remaining 50% payable within 90 calendar days from bid acceptance. If buyer selects this option, the delayed payment must be covered by a payment surety bond in form acceptable to the State.
8. Bids will be received up until 1:00 p.m. on Monday, December 4, 2000.

Jennings ELCA Women Convene

Women of the ELCA, Zion Lutheran Church, Jennings, held their monthly meeting in the church on November 9.

The annual ingathering of the thank offerings was observed with a service, "With Thankful Hearts," consisting of a litany of thanksgiving and the hymn "Lord, With Glowing Heart I'd Praise Thee."

The study, "Gathered and Scattered," was led by Leota Baker. The chief endeavors of the lesson were to study the experiences of the early Christians being scattered by persecution, and to discuss how persecution can be transformed into opportunity for mission.

Devotions closed with a prayer for All Saints' Day and the hymn "For All Your Saints, O Lord."

A birthday offering was received from Mrs. Dorothy

Buraw. Total birthday offerings received from members during the year will be used for social ministry in the local area.

A thank-you letter was received from the National Lutheran Home in Rockville for support of its stamp club. The continuation of saving canceled postage stamps was encouraged, and the process of preparing the stamps for sale was explained.

A letter was received from Our Savior's Lutheran Church, Box Elder, Mont., expressing gratitude for the packages containing 20 sweaters, eight baby quilts, and three hand-knit cap and scarf sets. These items were sent by Zion's unit for its clothing give-away and layette ministry on the Rocky Boy Indian Reservation.

Tribute to the memory of Norman Baker was made through a gift offering, which is being forwarded to Women of the ELCA-Churchwide, designated for the specific ministry Outreach With The Gospel.

Plans were made to pack several Christmas baskets this year.

The meeting adjourned with the missionary benediction, and Judy Stanton presented those present with a gift of fruit.

Video Tour Of U.S. Capitol Set For Educators

A one-hour video tour of the U.S. Capitol building, designed for an audience of public school teachers and school administrators, will be offered Tuesday, Nov. 21, beginning at 3:50 p.m. in Room 1145 of Southern High School. Sponsored by Pleasant View Baptist Church, the video is described as focusing on the Capitol's spiritual heritage.

Educators attending the event will be eligible to win one of several door prizes ranging from $10 to $25 in value at local stores, restaurants, and service-oriented businesses. A minimum of eight door prizes will be offered.

The video was produced by historian David Barton. Mark Watkins, youth pastor at Pleasant View Baptist Church, will serve as facilitator for the viewing. Interested persons may contact Watkins at 301-334-8515 for further information.

Audit Report Shows County Is "Fiscally Sound"

The Board of Garrett County Commissioners has announced that Rodeheaver & Associates, P.C., have completed the audit of the financial statements of Garrett County for the year ending June 30, 2000. According to Jim Murray, CPA and general partner with Rodeheaver & Associates, the county remains in "sound fiscal condition."

According to a statement prepared by Lamont Pagenhardt, county administrator, fiscal year 2000 operations reflected an increase of $441,583 in fund balances over that of fiscal year 1999. The general fund reflects a total fund equity (on June 30) of $4,187,879. The commissioners approved $486,472 in designations from the unreserved surplus for the year ending June 30 to be spent in the current year. These designations include $200,000 for various capital projects that were initially approved to be financed with debt obligations. The fiscal year 2000 unreserved fund balance reflects an increase of $549,455 over that of fiscal year 1999, Pagenhardt reported.

Long-term debt was reduced by over $1,500,000 from total debt obligations

ClosetMaid Coming To Garrett County; Will Hire Hundreds

"We truly have something to be thankful about here in Garrett County," said Commissioner chairman Wendell Beitzel this week as he, the commissioner board, and Delegate George Edwards announced that ClosetMaid, a subsidiary of Emerson Electric, has chosen Garrett County as the site for a new manufacturing and distribution facility. The company has plans to employ as many as 800 people in the next five years, and to build a facility as large as 700,000 to 1,000,000 square feet. The building will be in the Northern Garrett Industrial Park.

"I believe this is clear evidence that Garrett County is on the move," Beitzel said. "The company's decision to move here is almost too good to be true. It was like the stars were in the right alignment when they visited us some time ago."

ClosetMaid officials were looking at sites in Ohio, Pennsylvania, and Allegany, Harford, and Cecil counties, as well as in Garrett. "I think when they first came here, it was almost just a courtesy call. I don't think they had any intention of seriously considering our area," Beitzel said. "But when Jim Hinebaugh [director of the county's economic development office] began his presentation about what we have to offer, they took notice. They left that day with a completely different perspective."

The company manufactures and distributes closet shelving made of plastic-coated wire. The Home Depot stores are driving the expansion of ClosetMaid, which is based in Ocala, Fla. Because ClosetMaid distributes its product to the northeast and midwest markets, a site along an east-west corridor was being sought. Access to I-68 was noted as a key selling point. But the congratulations and appreciation expressed at the press conference Tuesday was more aimed at several local individuals, as well as the state of Maryland's Department of Business and Economic Development (DBED).

"This was a team effort in a big way," Hinebaugh said. "If I try to list everyone, I'll leave someone out, I know. But I do want to thank DBED. The deputy secretary [David S. Lannucci] said he is more excited about this than any other project right now. The state people wanted western Maryland to succeed in its bid, and they helped us every step of the way."

Hinebaugh also commended the commissioners, who he said have been very supportive of the project. "This validates a lot of our previous actions in developing infrastructure to our industrial parks," Hinebaugh said. He also thanked Delegate Edwards. "George has been so involved in this that my kids know his voice on the phone before he even Edwards, Hafer Slate Annual Pre-Session Mtg.

The annual pre-session public meeting with Delegate George Edwards and Senator John Hafer will be held on Monday, Dec. 4, at 7 p.m. in the auditorium of Garrett Community College. The Garrett County delegation will update residents on current General Assembly issues, listen to concerns, and answer questions.

This annual meeting, held approximately six weeks before the opening of the General Assembly, has traditionally been held on a Saturday morning, but Edwards said this week that he felt the evening time might be more convenient for members of the public to attend.

Early Morning Accident Near Swanton Kills Frostburg Man

Frostburg resident James George Hollis III, 22, died early Friday morning, Nov. 17, as a result of a single-vehicle accident on Green Glade Road. David Charles Norris, 22, Tall Timbers, who was driving the 1989 Ford Bronco at the time of the fatal crash, has been charged by Maryland State Police at the McHenry barracks with negligent homicide by causing death while under the influence of alcohol. He was also charged with driving while intoxicated and reckless driving.

The 2 a.m. accident was investigated by Tfc. B.A. Broadwater and Sgt. T.J. Burke, who reported that the vehicle, operated by Norris, traveled off the roadway and struck a tree. Norris was transported to Garrett Memorial Hospital by Southern Rescue Squad, where he was admitted in "stable" condition. Hollis was pronounced dead at the scene.

Norris was released on $15,000 bond and is awaiting trial. Deer Park Community Volunteer Fire Department also responded to the scene of the accident.

"Christmas On Main Street" Set In Oakland

"Christmas on Main Street" is a community event, will be held in downtown Oakland on Dec. 1 and 2. A parade for Santa Claus, a Christmas tree lighting, music, food, and live reindeer will all be features of the official holiday season opening.

The festivities are to begin at 4 p.m. on Friday, Dec. 1, with food vendors and carolers. Local choirs and the Southern Middle School hand-bell group will perform, beginning at 5:30, followed at 6:30 by the tree lighting and Santa parade. Santa will then take requests from children. A live radio broadcast will be provided by WKID to "mceee" the event.

Persons will also be able to see the scene of the accident.

Accidental Fire Destroys Mobile Home Thursday

A fire believed to have been caused by an electrical problem destroyed a mobile home and all of its contents last Thursday night. Volunteer firefighters from Oakland, Terra Alta, Deer Park, and Gorman departments were summoned at 7:53 p.m. to respond to the home of Shawn and Cheryl Corby and their three children, located along Dinky Track Road in Hutton.

Flames were coming from the mobile home when firefighters arrived; however, all five members of the family escaped uninjured. The Corbys reported that they and their children were in the living room when they heard a noise in the bedroom area. Upon investigation, they found the bedroom in flames.

The family lost all of their possessions in the blaze, and they had no insurance on their property.

The fire reportedly originated in the area of a water heater and appeared to have been caused by an electrical problem, according to Tom Swiger, chief of the Oakland VFD. Firefighters remained at the scene for about 2½ hours. Also responding was the county air cascade unit, which is housed at the Deep Creek VFC, and the Southern Rescue Squad. There were no injuries reported.

The Corby family is currently residing with relatives in the area. Donations of clothing and household items are being sought. Persons who wish to assist in any way are asked to telephone 301-334-2822, or may bring items to a family member's home, located at 277 Dinky Track Road, off Hutton Road. The children include Tesla Marie, age 5; Christopher Alexander, age 3; and Jasmine Eilene, age 2.

MUCH THANKSGIVING has already been heard among school children this week, who, because of a rather early snowstorm, have been able to take to the hillsides with their sleds instead of pushing their pencils in class. School was canceled Tuesday and Wednesday because of blizzard conditions that resulted in more than a foot of snow in some areas. The temperatures have been frigid, too, so the young ones can stay out only for short romps before coming back inside to warm up with hot chocolate. The children are home free now, as their Thanksgiving vacation has kicked in, and they will not return to the classroom until next Tuesday. A great deal of snow play will surely ensue between now and then. Happy turkey day to all.

Garrett Co. To Receive $12,000+ From MDOT

The Maryland Department of Transportation's Job Access and Reserve Program, designed to help residents make the transition from welfare to work by providing transportation services, has announced an allotment of $12,267 to Garrett County. The money is to be used to provide transportation to employment in Grantsville for persons residing in the southern end of the county, according to a press release from Senators Barbara Mikulski and Paul Sarbanes.

This transportation is a new service, according to the senators, targeting local persons who are trying to return to the work force and for whom transportation difficulty is a barrier to that effort.

A total of over $198,000 is being allotted to four western Maryland counties for similar improvements. Frederick, Allegany, and Washington will also be receiving money in the respective amounts of $66,342, $61,500, and $58,450. These funds are also to be used for improved employment transportation.

According to the senators, the money is to be used for improved employment transportation.

Rotary Christmas Tree Project Kicks Off In Grantsville Area

The Rotary clubs of Garrett County (Oakland and Grantsville) announced the kick-off of their annual effort to collect items to be distributed to the needy for Christmas. Last year, through this effort more than 40,000 lbs. of food as well as gifts of clothing and toys were distributed to over 400 families countywide.

Gifts and toys are to be for children age 12 and below. Doug Riley of the Oakland club, which is the primary sponsor, explained that these 400 families were divided equally throughout the county, with one-third in the southern part of the county, one-third in the central part of the county, and one-third in the northern section.

The primary method of obtaining gifts and food for these families is through donations. Displays or trees are placed in businesses, churches, and other places throughout the community, which have a number of tags included indicating what is needed. A person may remove a tag, purchase the item, attach the tag to the gift, and then place it under the tree from which the tag was removed.

Tags are also provided on all Rotary trees in Grantsville as a reminder that dollars are also needed to purchase food. Food costs last year ran about $17,000 with only $7,000 received in donations. The remaining amount was provided from the clubs' general funds.

The Rotary clubs will pick up the item and arrange delivery.

Garrett Transit Slates Several County Meetings

The Garrett County Community Action Committee (GCCAC), which operates public transit in the county as Garrett Transit Service/People Movers, will hold a series of public meetings to discuss community transportation needs and services in and around Garrett County.

GCCAC is currently working on a transportation development plan that will guide the direction of Garrett Transit services for the next five years. The plan is required by the Maryland Mass Transit Administration, which provides grant assistance to Garrett Transit. The purpose of the public meetings is to solicit public opinion concerning community transportation needs in the county.

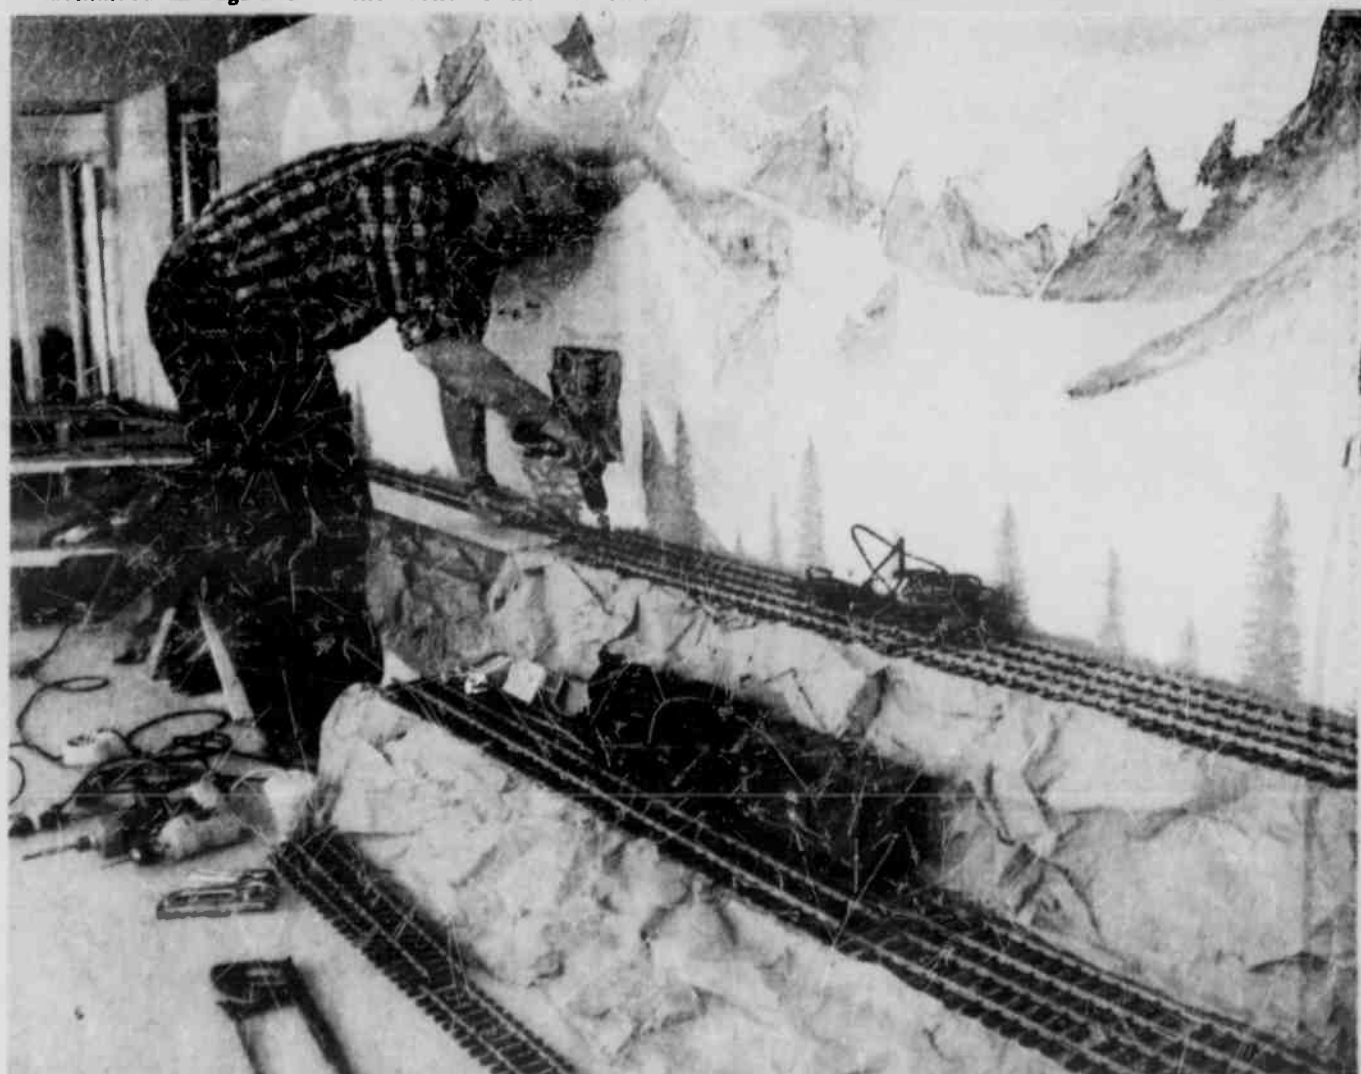

The meetings will be held at the following locations and dates: Friendsville Senior Center, Nov. 29, at 6 p.m.; old Loch Lynn School, Nov. 30, 6:30 p.m.; Kitzmiller Community Building, Dec. 6, 5 p.m.; Mary Browning Senior Center, Dec. 7, 9 a.m. - 3 p.m.; and Grantsville Senior Center, Dec. 7, 6 p.m.

The transportation development plan is being prepared by the KFH Group, a community transportation planning consulting firm. The study was initiated in October, and is expected to be completed by May 2001, according to a spokesperson.

Free transportation is available to the meetings. Rides can be arranged by calling Garrett Transit at 301-334-9431.

DOVE CENTER GETS "BIG" DONATION - The Western Maryland Truck held in the early fall raised money to help support the work accomplished by the Dove Center on behalf of victims of domestic violence and sexual assault. Recently the truck show organizers presented the Dove Center a "bigger than life" replica of the $3,196 contribution check given previously. The money will be used to help defray costs of staffing through the Americans program. In the photo above from left are truck show organizers Carson "Trucker" Yoder and Sherry Pope, from the Dove Center Patsy McKendze and executive director Linda Spaall, and truck show coordinator Jim McFarland.

UNDER CONSTRUCTION - Passers-by are already lingering by the Oakland storefront on Second Street where Scott Atwill is once again constructing his holiday model train display. This is the fifth year he has built the popular exhibit, which includes a scenic, snowy background, at least two trains, and a complete miniature city. Atwill and his wife Helen work on the display almost year-round, often hours with every young, from design to construction," Atwill said. He spends much of his year drawing and comparing different designs. "Sometimes something comes to you in the middle of the night," he said. Atwill, who works with G-scale trains, said he is interested in other trains being set up alongside his sometime in the future. He said he would be willing to share the storefront with others, including those who use different scales. "I think it would be interesting for people to see the different sizes running together," he said. Atwill noted his thanks to Bill Grant, first United Bank a trust for the use of the storefront display will be ready for Christmas On Main Street, for Dec. 1 and 2.

Cantata To Be Performed In Friendsville

The Friendsville Community Choir will perform a Christmas cantata, King of Kings, for one night only on Sunday, Dec. 17, beginning at 7 p.m. at the Friendsville United Methodist Church.

This recent musical version of the Christmas story, written by Mosie Lister, will be performed under the direction of Lindy Moebis. Mary Friend will narrate the production and Matt Hary will provide the piano accompaniment.

Solos will be performed by adults and children, whose voices will also blend in chorus. Featured soloists will be Moebis, Roger Sines, Dan Manges, Sherry Pike, Dave Thomas, and Carol Frazee. The children who will perform are Raina Sines, Hannah Pike, Emily Manges, and Megan Sines.

Other members of the Friendsville Community Choir who will contribute to the cantata are Jane Fox, Geni Sines, Sarah Pletcher, Robin Sines, Nancy Thomas, Fred Fox, Tom Sines, Jim Fox, Bill Emory, and Buddy Umbel.

says who's calling. He has been in there fighting for this from the beginning."

He noted the helpful input of the planning and zoning office in preparing site maps and demographic information, the finance office in examining funding issues, and the department of human resources, namely Lloyd Day, in conducting tours for ClosetMaid officials to interview local employers and workers.

The One Maryland program, an initiative by Speaker of the House Casper Taylor, provided a key element in the county's success with ClosetMaid as well. Because the legislation provides for more incentives for businesses to locate in economically depressed areas, Garrett County was able to offer a better financial package to ClosetMaid than other Maryland counties.

"DBED directed the company to Garrett County, and some important phone calls were made," the delegate said Tuesday. "And then our economic development office really put the time in — Jim, Meg [Ellis], and Peg [Jamison] provided the needed demographic information and convinced ClosetMaid that we definitely have the required workforce. The commissioners put in a lot of time and effort, too, attending meetings, making calls, and going on site visits. The town of Grantsville worked hard, too, and should be commended. This is definitely a good Thanksgiving for Garrett County."

BEALL VISITS SALEM - Former U.S. Senator J. Glenn Beall (right) was among the many guests at the Maryland Salem Children's Trust's recent open house. Seen talking with Salem board president, Hal Forsyth, Sen. Beall and his wife Nancy said they enjoyed a horseback riding demonstration and tour of the children's homes following a brief presentation in the gymnasium. Salem serves children who are unable to live with their own families. For more information about the Maryland Salem Children's Trust, persons may call 301-689-8176.

ClosetMaid officials hope to break ground in the early spring for the first of three construction phases. The first phase will include a 207,000 square foot facility, to be open, tentatively, by late summer 2001. The next phase will add about 200,300 square feet, and the third, 200,000 square feet. The entire building is to be finished in five years. About 73 acres are being set aside for the construction.

Hiring will begin with about 130 people, followed by an average of about 150 each year of the five-year plan. The starting pay for many of the employees will be approximately $9.70 per hour, with benefits.

"This is the kind of business that will provide the opportunity for local people to stay here and earn good pay," Edwards said. Hinebaugh said the pay offered by ClosetMaid could result in better pay rates in the rest of the county.

"When you have a big company like this paying a lot of people well, other businesses have to compete to keep their own workforces. We have long had the goal in economic development to raise the quality of life for all Garrett Countians, and we hope this will help do that," Hinebaugh said.

The officials are estimating that about 65 to 70 percent of the workforce at ClosetMaid will be local residents. The rest will come from Preston and Allegany counties, and perhaps from nearby Pennsylvania. ClosetMaid will bring in three to four people of its own, but the rest will be local/area hires.

"ClosetMaid's decision to locate in the Northern Garrett Industrial Park is a real shot in the arm for the economy," said Commissioner Fred Holliday. "And it's not just the direct impact we should consider. There is the 'spin-off' of such a company. The better jobs in Garrett County have almost always been government positions. Now that will change."

Commissioner Ernest Gregg said the county landed the deal because everyone was prepared. "Our infrastructure, our support from the state, and the open-mindedness of the ClosetMaid officials all helped. I am confident that ClosetMaid will be not only an excellent employer, but a great corporate citizen as well. It is a great week to be thankful."

The officials also noted that ClosetMaid works with the assistance of three "feeder" businesses, or companies that manufacture parts needed in ClosetMaid's product. These feeder companies will most likely locate in the general area as well in the next few years. Officials are working to get one or all in Garrett County, or at least in Allegany. They will each hire about 125 people, Edwards said. He noted that the county's incentive package will be strengthened dramatically by the fact that a renowned company such as Emerson Electric has already decided to move to the area. "When other companies see that Emerson Electric is here, they'll be much more likely to give us a second look," the delegate said.

Hinebaugh said his impression of the company is that it is "people-oriented." The president, Rob Clements, used to drive a truck for the company, but rose through the ranks to the top position. He said in a statement from Governor Parris Glendening's office that the state did an "outstanding job" in making its bid. "The professionalism of the state economic development department, combined with One Maryland, was what attracted us."

Hinebaugh said the development is a "win-win."

"Garrett County wins in getting such a company to locate here, and I believe ClosetMaid wins because of the people and the place. We have a fine workforce here, and a wonderful home. I'm sure they are going to find that it's a great place."

Grantsville club said that gift tag trees for that area will be in the Grantsville library, First United Bank & Trust, M&T Bank, and the Holiday Inn of Grantsville. A food tag tree is located at Foodland in the Grantsville Plaza.

Bender noted that all tags in the Grantsville area are for families in Northern Garrett County. Persons unable to get to one of the above northern Garrett county locations to obtain a tag may call Bender at 814-662-4366 and he will see that a tag is provided.

Bender also said that monetary donations would be greatly appreciated and accepted. Checks payable to the Grantsville Rotary Christmas Project may be mailed to Grantsville Rotary, P.O. Box 358, Grants-ville, MD 21536 or dropped off at any Rotary tree location.

"The collection period runs only through December 12 (approximately 3 weeks), therefore, those interested should act now," Bender said. Collections throughout the county are then assembled and sorted into family units on December 15, with delivery to the homes scheduled for December 16.

Popular Student Teacher Leaves Fond Memories Throughout Area

by David Foster

The sudden death of popular student teacher Jimmy Hollis in a Swanton-area car accident Friday has left students, faculty, and staff on both ends of the county devastated. Hollis was nearing the completion of his fall semester student teaching assignment at Southern Middle School, and shared six weeks of a student teaching experience with children at Grantsville Elementary School during the past spring semester.

"The kids have been distraught," SMS principal Jack Rickman said yesterday. "Jimmy was our 'Pied Piper.' He was an excellent teacher and role model, and had a great rapport with students of all levels and backgrounds."

"Jimmy had a natural ability to work with all kids," Grantsville Elementary fourth grade teacher Mike Warne remarked, "and he had a special talent to draw in kids who had a hard time relating to school. We had counselors come in to talk to the kids Monday; a number of them were very upset. I was so distraught that I couldn't even bring myself to talk about what had happened."

The son of a pair of St. Mary's County's educators who also maintain a cabin residence in the Sky Valley area of Swanton, Hollis joined Southern Middle's faculty only three months ago for his student teaching assignment with seventh- and eighth grade science classes. The Frostburg State University student was to receive his degree next month, and had already accepted a teaching position in St. Mary's County that would have had him working with middle school students there before the Christmas break began.

"Jimmy was the kind of person you'd take on as a new teacher and build a staff around him," commented Rickman. "He was exceptional in working with students in the classroom and in the community, and very giving with his time. He was working on bringing his Frostburg State fraternity brothers to the school one night a week to play basketball and work out with the kids, which would have given them some other good role models."

Warne said that Hollis's love of life was infectious. "Jimmy was a real positive guy, and had lots of hobbies. He loved hunting, fishing, and the outdoors, and used his interests to draw kids in who would otherwise be hard to reach. He did a lot of outdoors work with the kids, including planting trees with them in our outdoor nature center here at the school. "Jimmy grew up just off the Chesapeake Bay, and had a real love for the Bay that he wanted to pass on to the kids," recalled Warne. "He brought a blue crab to the classroom that he and the kids made a home for in a salt-water aquarium. The kids loved watching and feeding the crab, who they named 'Chester,' and who lived in the classroom for a number of weeks. When he died the kids and Jimmy made a casket for him, and buried him in the nature center under a cross."

A LOVE FOR LIFE characterized Garrett County student teacher Jimmy Hollis, who was killed Friday in an automobile accident along Green Glade Road. The popular young man, who taught at Grantsville Elementary School last spring and was currently teaching at Southern Middle School, is shown in these photos taken at Frostburg State University recently. Hollis was slated to graduate with his teaching degree in elementary/middle school education, with a concentration in environmental science, just next month, and assume a teaching position in St. Mary's County prior to the Christmas break. Hollis was the son of Mary and James Hollis Jr. of Hollywood, themselves St. Mary's County educators, who maintain a part-time residence in the Swanton area.

"Jimmy was so full of life," assistant SMS principal Bill Ewing remarked. "The kids flocked to him, because he shared a lot of their interests — basketball, hunting, fishing, and anything outdoors. Anything a youngster was interested in, he was interested in."

"When students were outside waiting for a late bus, he'd take a frisbee out and start tossing it around with them, and before you know it there would be a large group playing catch and laughing. During his free period he'd go down to the gym to play basketball with the kids, and they loved that too. It was neat to watch him interact with the students; he was a real people person." Hollis was also a fixture as a popular chaperon at school dances, Rickman added.

School system counselors were also at Southern Middle on Monday to help provide an outlet for students in dealing with the tragic loss. SMS teacher Jolene Scofield, Hollis's classroom mentor this fall, has traveled to St. Mary's County this week to be with Hollis's family and friends as they grieve, and in representing the school she carried with her a number of letters written by students to the Hollis family. Warne and several other Garrett County and Frostburg area educators made the trip to pay their respects as well.

"The students wanted Jimmy's parents to know what he meant to them," SMS's Rickman explained. Fellow teacher Sue Peterson added that "many of the kids are still putting their thoughts and feelings about Jimmy on paper, and they are putting them into a scrapbook that will be sent to the family, too. The students are also planning on holding a dance to raise money for the Jimmy Hollis Memorial Teaching Scholarship Fund." (See obituary for information on how to donate memorial contributions.)

"Everyone was attracted to Jimmy's very outgoing personality," Peterson remarked. "He embraced people and life, and the kids could sense that. They also respected him because he set high expectations for them to live up to, and in doing so he was able to get them to succeed. They thrived on his attention, and vice-versa.

"It's a tragic and seemingly meaningless loss," said Peterson.

A search for meaning in a loss such as this could prove fruitless; however, as a good parent touches the lives of his or her children, a good teacher touches the lives of many children. In the life of Jimmy Hollis, a life cut short long before its time, there is much, much meaning to be found.

GGBA To Hear Report On New Apt. Complex

The Greater Grantsville Business Association will host guest speaker Jeremy Thayer from Garrettland Realty at its next meeting slated next Wednesday, Nov. 29. Thayer will discuss the 36-unit apartment complex to be built adjacent to the Grantsville Community Park.

The GGBA meeting will be held at Penn Alps Restaurant beginning at 8:30 a.m.

Former Resident Among Honored School Staff

Northern High School graduate and former Garrett County resident Bonnie McElroy was among those accepting a national education award on behalf of South Carroll High School in Sykesville. The school earned the 2000 National School of Character award from the Character by Character Education Partnership. South Carroll was the only school in nation to receive this award.

McElroy, as chair of the school improvement team, represented the school, along with several school administrators and staff members, at a conference in Philadelphia last month, where a $2,000 cash prize and banner were presented.

McElroy is the daughter of Kenneth and Harriet Buckel, Grantsville.

Friends were received at the Brimfield Funeral Home, Leonardtown. A Mass of Christian Burial was celebrated Wednesday afternoon at St. John's Francis Regis Catholic Church, Hollywood, with the Rev. Msgr. Martin Harris as celebrant. Interment followed in the church cemetery.

Memorial contributions may be made to the Jimmy Hollis Teaching Scholarship Fund, First National Bank of St. Mary's, P.O. Box 655, Leonardtown, MD 20650.

Man Injured As Vehicle Flips On Icy Bridge

Icy road conditions were noted as a factor in an accident last night on I-68 near the 4-mile marker. According to Maryland State Police at the McHenry barack, Jong Kyu Kwak, 39, Gaithersburg, was east-bound on the Interstate when he lost control on an icy bridge, struck a metal guardrail on the right side and spun across the east-bound lanes into the median. The vehicle then struck another guardrail in the median and overturned.

Kwak was transported to Ruby Memorial Hospital by Northern Rescue Squad. Friendsville VFD also responded to the scene.

Weather-Related Accident Tuesday Injures Women

Two women were injured Tuesday morning in a single-vehicle accident attributable to a snow-covered roadway, according to the Garrett County Sheriff's Office. Both were released from Garrett County Memorial Hospital that same day after being treated for minor injuries.

Tonya Lynn Smiley, 26, Swanton, was operating a 1994 Chevrolet truck north-bound on Route 135 shortly before 8:30 a.m., when she lost control of the vehicle on the approach to Altamont Road. The truck skidded on a patch of snow, left the roadway, and hit a tree.

Both Smiley and her passenger, Jeanna O'Haver, 24, Westernport, were taken to the hospital by the Southern Garrett Rescue Squad. Emergency personnel from the Deer Park and Kitzmiller volunteer fire departments also responded.

Giving Thanks, and More...

Giving thanks, or at least being appreciative of what we have, is something that each of us should do every single day of our lives, certainly not just on the fourth Thursday of November. But most of us do not make this a daily routine. We are too busy, we take much for granted, we focus instead on the things that we don't have, and in some cases our lives are in such turmoil we do not feel like we have much for which to be thankful. But sometimes all it takes to help us resume a feeling of gratefulness is an opportunity to put our lives and our particular situations into perspective.

The following column was written by Jack Kelly, foreign affairs editor for USA Today, while working in war-ravaged East Africa:

"We were in Mogadishu, the capital of Somalia, during a famine. It was so bad we walked into one village and everybody was dead. We saw this little boy... you could tell he had worms and was malnourished; his stomach was protruding. When a child is extremely malnourished, the hair turns a reddish color, and the skin becomes crinkled as though he was 100 years old."

"Our photographer had a grapefruit, which he gave to the boy. The boy was so weak he didn't have the strength to open it, so we cut it in half for him. The boy picked it up, looked at us as if to say thanks, and began to walk back towards his village."

"We walked behind him so that he couldn't see us. When he entered the village, there on the ground was a little boy I thought was dead. It turned out to be his younger brother. The older brother knelt down next to his younger brother, bit off a piece of grapefruit, and chewed it. Then he opened up his younger brother's mouth, put the grapefruit in, and worked his brother's jaw up and down. We learned that the older brother had been doing this for his younger brother for two weeks."

"A couple of days later the older brother died of malnutrition, but the younger brother survived. I remember driving back that night thinking, 'I wonder if this is what Jesus meant when he said that we are to love our neighbor as ourselves, for this is worth more than any burnt offering or sacrifice.'"

Not only does the above put things back into perspective for most of us, but it poignantly reminds us that the giving of thanks is not enough. We can only completely and truly give appropriate thanks by taking every opportunity to share our blessings with others in need. Those blessings include not only material possessions, but our time, our talents, and basic courtesy and kindness.

So, may each of us give thanks... and give. Happy Thanksgiving.

(Appreciation is expressed to Fr. Don Parsons of St. Peter's Catholic Church for sharing the Kelly article.)

Letters to the Editor

To the Editor:

I am writing regarding Christian Crossing. Recently my brother was released from Garrett County Jail. The only thing he had was his clothes on his back. Thanks to Dale Vance at Garrett County Mental Health Dept. and Christian Crossing, my brother got things that he needed.

A big "Thank You" to those people, and we would like to thank that lovely lady at Mission Attic. We think it is great that these people can help those in need, and with no questions asked. So if now, or at any time, we could volunteer our time to any of these people mentioned, we would love to do so.

Thank you,
Patty Chapman

To the Editor:

With all the intransigent things going on in our world, to read Mary Sincell McEwen's life story of Louie and his wife Lola is a piece of lovely revelation. Likewise, the story of veteran Dick Friend by David Foster last week.

I love to read of such people, and I am so thankful for the lives they have lived and are living now.

With so much in our world today that we cannot especially be pleased with, it is so uplifting to be able to look up to such examples as these people truly are!

Thanking you for sharing their lives with us. It makes my day!

Sincerely,
Louise V. Harvey

Editor's note: Accompanying Ms. Harvey's letter was a donation for Mr. Stouffer.

To the Editor:

The announcement that Joset Maid is locating in Garrett County is one of historic proportion. The choice of the Grantsville site is the result of some remarkable efforts by a number of persons.

Jim Hinebaugh and the staff in the Economic Development Office prepared and made presentations that changed the direction of the path the company was headed. The quality and quantity of their effort was first class. Delegate George Edwards and the county commissioners had the vision needed to put into place a truly competitive plan. Speaker of the House Casper Taylor placed important strategic barriers to closing the deal. The business community and other county offices played a direct role in the recruitment process. These individuals deserve congratulations and our appreciation.

From the perspective of not having any direct responsibility or involvement, but being close enough to observe the process first hand, I can say that Garrett County can be proud with the product and outcome. The work that was done will make a real difference in the quality of life for many persons in our community.

Sincerely,
Duane Yoder

To the Editor:

This letter is concerning the Fort Hill-Southern freshman football game on Thursday, November 2, in Cumberland. The game was played well by both teams, but the behavior of many of the (adult) fans of Fort Hill, and the announcer, left much to be desired. Some of the parents, family, and friends of Fort Hill showed extremely poor judgment and a complete lack of consideration by booing Southern's team. Adults should be teaching children good sportsmanship, as well as good manners and consideration of other people. How is one supposed to teach these values when it is obvious that many adults don't have them?

Secondly, I have never heard such poor announcing as I did that night. Fort Hill's team was announced after half-time something like "now let's give a warm welcome to your own Fort Hill Sentinels" and Southern's team was not announced at all. His whole tone of voice was positive toward Fort Hill and negative toward Southern. I'm surprised he bothered to announce Southern's plays at all. During the fourth quarter when Southern had the ball, the announcer used the PA system to cheer Fort Hill on. This may not be against any rules, but I believe the announcer should do this job impartially in order to be fair to all players, and not be disrespectful. The reason I wrote this letter was to make everyone aware of inappropriate behavior in the hopes that spectators will be more considerate, especially when it concerns high school games involving teenagers.

On a final note, one of Southern's players has had his name mispronounced at the games at times, and misspelled in the newspapers various times. The name is Billy Schmidt. Please take note because this is a name that will be spoken, and written, often.

Sincerely,
Shannon M. Sanders

To the Editor:

Why is it today that there are drug dealers and pedophiles in our community who will take the time to mentor and befriend our Garrett County youth, but there is a lack of honest, caring Garrett County men who will take an hour or so a week to mentor and be a friend to our children? Everyone has an excuse and yet we all complain when we see children get into trouble. Big Brothers Big Sisters has been active in Garrett County since 1990, but has always struggled to gain support of the males in the community. At the present time there are 16 young girls matched with adult buddies, but only seven young boys. Unfortunately, there are 20 boys waiting to be matched. I know of one boy who desperately wants an older good male buddy, but is about to quit school. There appears to be no male in his area who cares or of whom Big Brothers Big Sisters is aware.

I am proud to be a Big Brother. I'm retired and I am older, but my buddy and I have loads of fun together. We do a little work, a little studying, a little playing, some goofing off, and just plain talking. We do whatever I have to do at the time. Even when I was working and raising seven children, there was still time to become involved with youth. My oldest son became a Big Brother when he was in college. It not only changed his little friend's life, but his own as well — to the good. It has been shown nationally that, after a year with a Big Brother or Big Sister, the "Little's" chance of using alcohol falls by 27%, of using drugs by 46%, and of skipping school by 52%.

Big Brothers Big Sisters needs adults — male, female, or couples over the age of 18 — to be friends with and an example for Garrett County youth between the ages of 6 and 16. It doesn't take much time or money, only caring. Be their friend before the drug dealer or pedophile is.

Sincerely,
Ed Hill

To the Editor:

First, I would like to congratulate the Northern Huskies on an outstanding victory against the best IA team in Maryland. Great job, and good luck against Elkton.

Nearly everyone has an opinion concerning the presidential election. The mess in Florida, with everyone filing lawsuits against everyone, for everything, would not be happening if we did not use the electoral college.

We elect every other office by direct popular vote; why not the president? The electoral college needs eliminated. We are using an 18th century process in the 21st century. That doesn't make much sense.

If we used a direct vote, every vote truly would count. A majority of Garrett Countians voted for George W. Bush, but those votes really didn't count, because Al Gore won Maryland, and therefore got the electoral college. It would seem to me that the rural vs. urban fears would be eliminated if we used a direct vote. We could vote for whom we wanted, and it would actually count toward the final resolution.

I would like to briefly comment on the Palm Beach ballot issue. First, the ballot used was clearly illegal. Florida law is, the party of the governor is first on the ballot, followed by the other parties, in order of number of votes received. Al Gore should have been the second punch hole, not Pat Buchanan. It is only fair that the Palm Beach election be thrown out, and the voters get a chance to vote again, on a legal ballot.

Thankfully, we have an excellent ballot and voting system here in Garrett County. I was disturbed to have read in the Sunday Cumberland paper that Allegany County is seriously considering switching to punch card ballots (which is what was used in Palm Beach).

It really doesn't matter who winds up the winner. Our nation is probably more divided now (along partisan lines) than at any time since the Civil War. Do not look for any of the promises George W. or Al promised to become reality. Until we end the "my party is right" attitude, Congress will get nothing accomplished.

Respectfully submitted,
Lester Lewis

To the Editor:

Following is a partial answer to those who telephoned me wanting to know why I called the Adventure Sports Center a "boondoggle" (to do the work of little or no practical value: Webster's).

On Jan. 20, 1998, Dick Friend and I had a two-hour meeting, with Jim Hinebaugh, director, Office of Economic Development, to discuss the feasibility study for the ASC that had been conducted by PKF Consulting and released in December 1997. We believed that the conclusions of the study (83 pages) clearly show that it is economically unworkable. The project makes that "black hole known as Rocky Gap" look like a winner by comparison. The only way that it can sustain itself is with huge amounts of "well-fare," otherwise known as taxpayer subsidies.

And that begs the question: "Why don't the taxpayers have any say in the matter?" The answer to that, of course, is because of the arrogance of politicians and government bureaucrats. When asked if the public would have an opportunity for input, Mr. Hinebaugh stated that neither his department nor any other government organization would be having meetings for the people to have a say (in how their tax dollars are spent).

Some of the proposed activities include; windsurfing (at the top of a mountain with no body of water or Deep Creek Lake, which really doesn't lend itself to good windsurfing?), virtual reality machines (now there's an outdoor adventure), paintball (almost an adventure), another golf course (at $50 plus a pop), scuba diving (yeah, like I want to pop out of the water at DCL, especially on a weekend), to name just a few.

In its present form, this idea (the National Adventure Sports Center and Hall of Fame and Museum) is a very bad idea that will only benefit a few already wealthy people at the expense of those who can least afford it. The idea itself could be worked in a way that would benefit all of the people, but that would require real leadership and an attitude of inclusion, things that are sorely lacking in this county.

Local officials have had three years since the feasibility study was released to solicit input and ideas from the people, but they have done nothing. Shame on them!

George Falter Jr. P.S. Instead of "trickle down" economics, how about a little "trickle up" economics; i.e., helping people get a leg up in this economy so they can participate in these kinds of projects instead of becoming minimum wage servants?

To the Editor:

Positive words; wouldn't that have been much more appropriate than what we read in the letter to the editor from Mrs. L. Preston. After writing such nice things about our Southern High School football team, Mrs. Preston then for some reason took issue with another very dedicated group of young people, their parents, and advisors. Unfortunately, her subsequent statement causes insult to those who have worked so hard these past months on behalf of the football teams, in addition to both the boys' and girls' soccer programs.

At times, the varsity and JV cheerleaders were each seen rooting for the sports teams as many as three nights per week, per squad. This was done in addition to holding practices and fulfilling other commitments. The group was involved with decorating the school facilities, including lockers, bulletin boards, hallways, and stadium stands, and they helped to

THANKSGIVING

While moderating a church meeting 40 miles from home, I leaned over to the person sitting beside me, who happened to have been my own pastor for 23 years. "I did some grocery shopping while I was up this way," I boasted, "and did I ever get some great deals!" I then recounted how I had bought heads of cabbage that I could hardly carry for 50 cents a piece and an entire grocery bag of broccoli for $4.75.

"Where did you go?" he asked. I told him about a farmer who sold his excess at near wholesale prices, and described the location. He smiled, nodded, and said, "I was there myself, this afternoon."

That evening I blanched broccoli to be frozen. A few days later I made four gallons of sauerkraut, and still had cabbage left over. The leftovers I shared with family members.

That enterprise is not the same, nor as good as raising everything myself, but it was several steps nearer to raising it than if I had bought the same food at the grocery store, even if bought fresh. I'm a farmer to eater is one step. The usual procedure is farmer to broker to packer to processor to wholesaler to distributor to grocer. In the case of prepared foods, another step is added since the food has to be cooked into a final meal form.

I am not trying to take anything away from the local grocer, who provides a valuable service. The practice of local grocers also suggests that they too recognize that people are losing patience with the increasingly longer supply lines. At the grocery store I bought a sweet head of broccoli the week before my fresh-from-the-farm purchases. That head was marked "local" as, evidently, preferable to broccoli from California, Florida, or even Central America.

The distance is great between us and those Plymouth Pilgrims whose first harvest had no steps between farmer and eater, only the steps between the fields and the pots over fires. Even when a family has a big garden, and puts by enough fruits and vegetables to tide them over for a year, the distance is still great.

The Pilgrims' fields stood between them and death by starvation. The family-sufficient garden of today stands only between a hungry family and the grocery store or, at worst, a charitable agency which gives out food or even cooked meals. The same crops planted and harvested in the same ground in 1621 and today were a necessity then and are a luxury today.

There is virtue in both that particular necessity and that particular luxury. Comparing the two makes clear how different even identical actions are when done in two different circumstances. It is a difference very like that between the Civil War and a Civil War re-enactment. One can reenact actions, but not motivations and not emotions.

As I shred cabbage for sauerkraut, I can never feel the relief that someone would have felt who made sauerkraut as a means of ensuring life and nutrition which might not be otherwise possible. Making sauerkraut today gives a person certain bragging rights in some circles, and brands the person as an eccentric in other circles. The boast and the brand arise from the same circumstance that starvation is not real danger.

So it is that in America today even the poor suffer from obesity.

We have this great national feast of Thanksgiving, our American descendant of the ancient harvest home festival. As we contemplate the state of the nation, there seems to be little enough giving of thanks. Filling a church for a Thanksgiving worship service is difficult. I should be glad to hear from someone that it is possible. Filling a stadium for a football game is an easier enterprise. Filling malls with shoppers is also feasible.

Is it possible that, without the threat of starvation or, at least, of material privation, giving thanks becomes an act of mere personal piety and an impossibility as a communal act? I hope that is not the case, but ready evidence is not at hand to defeat the argument easily.

Sitting down to a groaning board tomorrow provides an opportunity for families, at least, to be communities of giving thanks. It is not only a matter of being grateful as a personal characteristic or of giving thanks for specific blessings. The matter is to plumb the depths of dependence upon a divine and omnipotent provider, to realize that he has yielded into our hands great power to create and to destroy.

This national feast ought to be of humility as much as of thanksgiving. Perhaps it is only as we ground ourselves in humility that giving thanks in any enduring way is possible.

Maryland May Standardize The Voting Process Across State

By Amy T. Silva
Capital News Service
ANNAPOLIS — With leases of voting equipment in most of the Maryland's jurisdictions ending within the next four years, the state is in an excellent position to go for a standardized statewide voting system, said election officials.

This comes amid the continuing controversy over unclear and questionable ballots in some jurisdictions in Florida that used a punch card voting system similar to that used in Montgomery County. This debate has delayed Florida's final vote total and the result of the presidential election between Republican George W. Bush and Democrat Al Gore.

and accuracy.

"We're in a perfect position to perhaps implement such a system," said Linda H. Lamone, the state administrator of elections.

While it would be up to the General Assembly to implement a statewide voting system, the members of the Board of Elections "would probably support legislation that would create a statewide system," said Lamone.

Maryland should have a standard voting system, said Senate President Thomas V. Mike Miller Jr., D-Prince George's. But it's unlikely that the local boards of elections will give up their authority and allow the state to take over the funding and oversight of the elections.

"In terms of getting to uniform, I think we're going to have to get a blue-ribbon committee . . . and go about selling the counties on why we need to make a change," said Miller.

State elections officials would argue that a statewide system would be more cost efficient and make voting simpler for Marylanders who move between jurisdictions, said Lamone.

"The voters would not be faced with having to learn different voting systems," said Lamone.

In the last few years, there has been a push for more computerized and fewer mechanical voting systems in Maryland to help make the results of the election known in a quicker, more accurate fashion, said Donna J. Duncan, Maryland Board of Elections director.

Another advantage of some of the new technologies in voting systems is that they are more adaptable to the disabled community, said Lamone. In 1996, Baltimore replaced its mechanical lever voting machines with electronic touch-screen voting machines, at a cost of $6.5 million. These touch-screen machines allow voters to view the whole ballot on a computer screen and choose a candidate by touching next to the candidate's name to light up the selection.

"The computer was the way to go," said Lolita Fales, Baltimore City Board of Elections deputy director. Such machines make sure that voters can't choose two candidates for the same office, a detriment of the punch card ballot voting system used in Montgomery County that causes ballots to be invalidated each election.

Miller said he too thinks the voting system needs to be computerized.

"That's where we need to be. This Florida election fiasco has, I believe, proved my point," said Miller.

In 1999, the General Assembly passed a bill sponsored by Miller that makes the mechanical lever machines illegal six months before the 2002 election.

Mechanical lever machines have been in use in Maryland since the 1950s, Duncan said. But most jurisdictions use an optical scan ballot system, where voters use a pen or pencil to mark their selection then read and counted by a computer.

Lamone said some of the new voting equipment will be presented to the Maryland Board of Elections for review this winter or spring.

Ruling From High Court Prompts Regents To Modify Tuition Policy

by Aadel Blakely
Capital News Service
ANNAPOLIS — The University System of Maryland's Board of Regents next month is expected to change the policy on out-of-state tuition in response to a Monday Court of Appeals opinion, a system spokesman said.

The Board of Regents will make the law conform to the ruling as soon as possible, said Chris Hart, university system spokesman.

The Maryland Court of Appeals ruled that in some cases, students living in Maryland could receive financial support from an out-of-state source and still receive in-state tuition rates. An estimate of students impacted by the policy change is still being gathered, said George Cathcart, spokesman for the University of Maryland College Park.

"We get petitions every semester making a case of residency and tuition," he said. "It is not a matter of being unfair to people from out of state. It is a matter of being fair to people in state."

No decision has been made on whether previous claims would be reconsidered or compensated, he said, because the court failed to specify how to obtain relief.

Tuition for University of Maryland College Park out-of-state undergraduate students is $6,334 per semester, compared to $2,568 per semester for in-state undergraduates.

The university system is made up of 11 colleges and universities throughout the state that use the same tuition policy.

In 1998, 24,000 of 107,000 total students had out-of-state residency, with about 11,000 from the College Park campus.

The case decided by the high court involved Jeremy R. Frankel, who grew up in Maryland. When his parents divorced, he moved to Rhode Island with his mother. Upon choosing the University of Maryland, he established residency with a driver's license and voter registration. But, his tuition was partially paid by his out-of-state parents. The school denied his in-state tuition request.

"Theoretically it is still possible that (Frankel) will not qualify for residency," said Cathcart.

Now, for an out-of-state student to qualify for in-state tuition rates, that student must establish financial independence and provide proofs of residency, including place of residence, voter registration, property ownership, the state to which income taxes are paid, driver's license, motor vehicle registration, public assistance, and legal ability to reside in Maryland.

The case has a wide impact. The ruling sets Maryland apart from many other states that have similar policies regarding out-of-state tuition, Cathcart said.

SWANTON

Recent Saturday visitors of Dotty and Melvin Beckman were Jack and Marlene Cornwell of Highview, W.Va., and Mary Rodeheaver of Oakland.

Orval Teets attended the Retired Railroaders' breakfast last Thursday at the Shrine Club in Cumberland.

Dotty and Melvin Beckman spent some time last week with Harold and Peggy Friend in Warren, Ohio. While there they visited their son Leslie in the Metro Health Medical Center in Cleveland. Leslie has undergone surgery for injuries received in an automobile accident on Friday, Nov. 10.

Arthur and Lenore Davis, Linda and John Fleming, and Marcia and Orval Teets visited Lucinda, Steve, Amber, and Jacob Davis in Augusta, W.Va. on Sunday. They celebrated Steve's birthday while there. Maxine and Meredith Ball visited Maxine's sister and other relatives in Elkins, W.Va., on Monday.

OTTERBEIN UM CHURCH

The Brotherhood met at Swanton on Tuesday, Nov. 14. Brian Schofield was the speaker. There will be no Brotherhood breakfast in November or December, and no regular meeting in December. An announcement of the next meeting will be made shortly after Christmas.

The Hymn Sing, planned by Pastor Ball, Maxine Ball, Carl Lee, Richard Schofield, and Ray and Carol Sweitzer, was held Friday, at Otterbein. Participating groups were: Fountain Valley Gospel Bluegrass, with Ralph Bever, his wife Patty, his son Jeff, and his son Robin, soloist, all of Chestnut Grove U.M. Church, Richie Miller, LaVale; Richard Sharpless and Walter Dixon of Ft. Ashby; the Gospel Melody Boys, including Jack Smith, Lonaconing, Bill Fazenbaker, Barton, Jim Klepstein, Midland, and soloist Stanley Skidmore, Vale Summit; and Judy Bennett, soloist, Keyser, W.Va., member of Reese's Chapel at New Creek, W.Va. Gospel singers Jim Miller and Marty Duncan, Frostburg, were joined by Ray and Carol Sweitzer of Otterbein. Other members of the local congregation who sang were David Schofield and friends from Frostburg State University; Jim Lonn, solo; and Mary June Harvey, Marcia, and Orval Teets, a trio.

The Swanton Kitzmiller Charge Conference will be held Monday, Nov. 27, at 7 p.m. at Kitzmiller.

Choir practice will be Tuesday, Nov. 28, at the church.

A group from Otterbein will sing at the Goodwill Mennonite Nursing Home, Grantsville, on Nov. 29, at 6:30 p.m.

Those from Otterbein who attended the Union Thanksgiving service and dinner at the Assembly of God Church in Kitzmiller last Sunday were Ray and Carol Sweitzer, and Rev. Meredith and Maxine Ball.

make signs that were also placed at various locations. These young people, along with their parent group, also assembled candy packets for team members before the games, and they put together an impressive football program that displayed team information as well as ads from various community groups and individuals. This year's Southern High School Homecoming festivities were second to none, and the girls, I have been told, coordinated a very impressive "Spirit Week" at Southern High just three weeks ago! The tailgate party that was spoken of in last week's letter was sponsored and coordinated by the Cheerleaders' Parent Group along with the cooperation and welcomed participation of several of the football parents. This was conducted with reasonably good attendance, despite some very cold, wet, and windy weather conditions.

All of the Southern High fall sports programs were successful this year. My understanding is that the purpose of the bonfire was to honor each of these groups, including the Southern High School Marching Band. The young people are very much deserving of praise for their accomplishments. I would suggest that we all should spend more time and energy supporting and uplifting our young people as opposed to finger pointing or griping about what might have been. I personally know from my sister, who is a member of the varsity squad, that no group was more disappointed about the cancellation of the bonfire activity than the cheerleaders. Unfortunately, the circumstances that caused the activity to be stopped were unforeseeable and beyond the control or authority of the squad's leadership. Rather than to dwell on the negative aspects, let's give praise and encouragement to the various teams, coaches, and parent groups for the fine work that was accomplished these past few months.

Sincerely,
Shelly Crofts

HOW THE GRINCH
STOLE CHRISTMAS

Rated PG - Running Time: 1:38 - Released 11/17/00

After flirting with quasi-serious roles over the last few years, Jim Carrey returns to his high-energy, high-impact, heavy make-up, bouncing-off-the-wall comic schtick in Ron Howard's How The Grinch Stole Christmas, a tribute to the classic book and TV special about those non-human Christians, the Whos, by the legendary children's author Ted Geisel, a.k.a. Dr. Seuss. Carrey is in top form, and although the screenplay by Jeffrey Price and Peter S. Seaman (the team behind Who Framed Roger Rabbit and Wild Wild West) adds some questionable, character-changing material to the story, and Howard's directing and all the supporting performances are designed basically to just stay out of Carrey's way, it's still a hysterically funny film.

Narrated almost directly out of the book by the disembodied voice of Anthony Hopkins and featuring a host of actors made up in freakish Who style, Grinch begins with some backstory involving the Grinch's past in Whoville, in which he is played by 8-year-old Josh Ryan Evans. This section culminates with a return to the present, when the Grinch is nominated for this year's 'Christmas Cheermeister' by little Cindy-Lou Who (Taylor Momsen). Though everyone from the town's mayor (Jeffrey Tambor) to Cindy-Lou's parents (Bill Irwin, Molly Shannon) to the Grinch himself is surprised and shocked by the girl's suggestion, Cindy-Lou explains that it is in the spirit of Christmas that everyone forgive and forget. After traveling to the Grinch's home at the top of Mount Crumpit, she convinces him to attend, reminding him of the lasting affection held for him by his old flame, the stylish and beautiful Martha May Who-vier (Christine Baranski). Things go well (and hilariously) at first, but a dubious gift from the mayor brings back an old grudge, and the Grinch goes on a rampage, destroying most of the town's decorations before returning home.

From this point on, the film follows the original story, with the Grinch plotting to stop Christmas altogether, creeping into town under cover of night using his unwilling dog Max as a makeshift reindeer, and stealing everything — only to realize at morning's light that the lack of material possessions has not altered the Whos' celebration at all.

Howard and his writers have made some interesting choices in bringing one of the most well-known American Christmas cartoons to life on the big screen. It is clear that without Jim Carrey, this film would go nowhere; the entire structure of the film is designed to showcase his off-the-wall style (and it does so effectively), but there are times when it seems like a lot of footage is being devoted to just that, allowing him to prance around and act silly for 5, 10, or 15 minutes at a time...without moving the plot forward one iota. Also, the characters are somewhat different. The original Grinch (and Boris Karloff's TV interpretation) was just plain evil, but in this version, he gets flustered by attention, he tries to please, he gets hurt feelings — he just seems much more...um...Who-man. The real villain here is the mayor, who plots to regain the town's affections for himself while the Grinch and Cindy-Lou watch horrified at the materialism around them. Purists may find these alterations of character unsettling, but Carrey works much better as a bumbling nice-guy at heart than a true villain.

The make-up is quite astounding in this film, as one would expect; I will be surprised if Toni G (department head), Kazuhiro Tsuji (Grinch make-up), Rick Baker (special effects makeup), and their staff are not nominated for Oscars all around. While the Grinch himself is padded, furry, and caked with even more green paste than he wore in The Mask, the Whos are almost frightening in their appearance, with their faces pinched forward and their noses built up like that of holiday-bedecked rodents. The set for Whoville is also impressive, as is the music, featuring the classic number "You're A Mean One, Mr. Grinch" sung by Carrey himself.

How The Grinch Stole Christmas could possibly be renamed How Jim Carrey Stole The Grinch, but his performance is so hysterical, and Howard's direction so appreciative of that, that all can be forgiven. That is the spirit of Christmas, after all. *****

BOUNCE

Rated PG-13 - Running Time: 1:45 - Released 11/17/00

As most folks know, Gwyneth Paltrow and Ben Affleck were once a couple. Perhaps this makes it easier for them to do a romance film together; they can just act like they used to...with three cameras, 20 lighting and sound instruments, and 75 people in the room. We've all done that. Whether it was easy or not, they seem to have pulled it off in Bounce, a film written and directed by Don Roos (The Opposite of Sex) about a man who helps a woman recover from the death of her husband, even though he is indirectly responsible for the man's death.

Affleck plays Buddy Amaral, a stereotypically crass advertising agent with a stewardess in every terminal, who recently closed a lucrative deal with a major airline. Just before boarding his flight home, he trades tickets with another man (Tony Goldwyn) so that he can spend the night with an attractive woman he met in the airport lounge (Natasha Henstridge). A few hours later, the plane he was supposed to be on crashes and kills all on board. As a result of this, he sinks into an alcoholic abyss that nearly costs him his job, but eventually seeks help and joins A.A. As one of the 12 steps of his recovery program, he must make amends to everyone he has hurt, so he seeks out the widow of the man with whom he exchanged airline tickets that fateful night. It has been a year since the crash and Abby (Paltrow) has begun to pick up the pieces of her life, but her son Scott (Alex D. Linz) is still bitter. Upon meeting, the two hit it off and their friendship develops into romance, with Buddy helping to bring Scott out of his shell. The only trouble is, Buddy hasn't told Abby yet why he came into her life.

This is very much a Hollywood formula romance, resembling (but not nearly as improbable as) last year's Harrison Ford/Kristin Scott Thomas vehicle Random Hearts. While Roos's story is full of clichés (the big secret, the boy who can't accept the new man in his mom's life, the woman who complains of being treated differently since the tragedy, etc., etc.), his understated dialogue helps to counteract this, and Paltrow and Affleck are obviously comfortable together and easily able to make us believe everything about what they're doing. Roos sees and capitalizes on their chemistry, even to the point of sending much of the supporting actors' work to the cutting room floor. Some nice acting is done by Joe Morton and Johnny Galecki as Buddy's boss and insubordinate fellow alcoholic employee, respectively, but if you blink you might miss them. Roos knows how popular his two leads are right now, and he's not going to deprive his audience of one second of their screen time, even if the result is a slightly undersupported story.

Bounce is an example of how the right couple of actors can take a mediocre story and make it into a truly enjoyable film. ****

THE 6TH DAY

Rated PG-13 - Running Time: 2:04 - Released 11/17/00

The idea of human cloning has become quite a fertile field for science fiction ever since Dolly the sheep emerged from her test tube. It is a daunting consideration that people could be copied using a microscopic sample of their DNA, a blood sample, a hair, a bit of sloughed off skin — and it should make for a fascinating film. But the combination of director Roger Spottiswoode's frenetic action-pic style (remember, he directed the high-tech, low-touch 1997 James Bond film Tomorrow Never Dies) and the tendencies of writing team Cormac and Marianne Wibberley and star Arnold Schwarzenegger in the same direction, sacrificing believable action for one-liners and gunfire, make The 6th Day simply another fiery, loud shoot-em-up with overblown villains, over-the-top heroics, and lapses in simple logic. I ask you: why would a man who claims to be genetically perfect require glasses?

The opening readout of The 6th Day states that its story takes place in "the near future — closer than you think." I can only assume from the cautionary nature of this message that the film is intended to warn viewers of the moral dangers of human cloning, something that could become a possibility in the near future. Schwarzenegger plays Adam Gibson, a man who lives in a world where dead pets can be reborn, sick people can have a brand spanking new liver if need be, and nacho bananas are readily available. Adam is a pilot who runs an air taxi company, flying these nifty, futuristic helicopter/jets for wealthy people who need to get somewhere expensively. One day after being asked to take a routine drug and eye test at work, Adam comes home to find himself already there, enjoying his birthday party with his wife and kids. Watching through the window, he soon begins to wonder what kind of other stuff this guy's doing with his wife. And then some people show up and say, "Sorry, but we're going to have to kill you." Very unsettling.

As it turns out, the thugs at the door (Sarah Wynter, Michael Rooker) work for the wealthy, powerful Drucker (Tony Goldwyn), the myopic superman mentioned above who is also chairman of the multibillion-dollar cloning company responsible for everything listed above except the bananas. It seems that despite the "6th Day Law" banning the Xeroxing of human beings, Adam has indeed been copied after Drucker's people mistakenly thought he had been killed while transporting Drucker in his helicopter. Now, since there are two Adams, one must go.

The 6th Day tries to present an intelligent statement on the ethical considerations of cloning, but since Spottiswoode sees everything through Bond-colored glasses, too many details are glossed over in favor of high-speed Cadillac chases and red-orange explosions. Even the inclusion of heavyweight Robert Duvall as the conflicted scientific genius behind it all can't make this movie any smarter. Too bad — I was thinking about investing in a mini-mine. ***

RUGRATS IN PARIS: THE MOVIE

Rated G - Running Time: 1:17 - Released 11/17/00

What's the holiday season without rugrats? With unsettling expedience, the Nickelodeon-based, Klasky-Csupo-created babies are at it again, forging ahead in their second big-screen adventure, directed by Stig Bergqvist and Paul Demeyer (both from the Duckman TV series, but with no rats experience), and this time they're in Paris. Joining in the trip over the water are the familiar and wealthy voices of regulars Elizabeth Daily (as Tommy), Christine Cavanaugh (Chuckie), Cheryl Chase (Angelica), and Kath Soucie (Phil & Lil), with a few big-name additions like Susan Sarandon and John Lithgow. The film is written by David N. Weiss and J. David Stem, who penned the first feature, with help from newcomers Jill Gorey, Barbara Herndon, and Kate Boutilier.

As it was with The Rugrats Movie in 1998, Rugrats In Paris is surprisingly unspectacular, seeming like little more than a longer version of the TV show with music. The fact that most of it takes place in the City of Light doesn't change this, as we barely see anything remotely resembling Paris. The setting is Eurorepterland, a French amusement park based on the Godzilla-style "Reptar" creature of Japanese origin, so most of the décor is Japanese. The rats reason for being there is that Tommy's inventor father Stu (Jack Riley), who designed the huge mechanical reptile that is the centerpiece for the park, is the only one who can fix it when it breaks. But as the story unfolds, we learn of a much more exciting effect of the trip: Chuckie finds a mom.

Ever since Chuckie Finster's mother died, his dad, the shy and unassuming Chas (Michael Bell) has been alone. This may have been the cause of Chuckie's overanxious personality; at any rate, he wishes for a mother who would love him and tuck him in at night. Likewise, Chas would welcome a woman's company, but his introverted style has prevented any prospects. When the group arrives in Paris, however, he meets Stu's crafty and matrimony-seeking Parisian employer, Coco LaBouche (Sarandon), who has learned that her appointment as CEO of Repterland depends on her ability to project a family-friendly image. Although Chas appreciates Coco's attentions, the kids see right through her, and when he announces their plans to marry, they must endeavor to expose Coco for what she is even if it means fighting off her stuffy henchman, Jean-Claude (Lithgow).

The production values for Rugrats leave something to be desired. As simplistically animated as The Simpsons but without nearly the wit, the franchise seems willing and able to make major cash off the least necessary creative expenditure. The writing team is adept at childish malapropisms and the skewed perspective of 5-year-olds, but the characterizations and plot lines are witheringly simplistic, underscored by the techno-trash background music by the one-time avant-garde Mark Mothersbaugh, formerly of Devo. The film also provides yet another vehicle for the Baha Men song "Who Let The Dogs Out?" — as much a reason to avoid it as any other.

Rugrats, along with most of its Nickelodeon successors, relies on the depressing fact that kids will suck up whatever they are given in the cartoon field. One can't blame its producers for making a buck, but it would be nice if they put a little more heart into it. ****

Team Reviews Agency Reports In HotSpot Area

The Garrett County HotSpot team held its regular monthly meeting at Grantsville Town Hall this week to review projects and progress in the multi-agency crime prevention efforts.

Bill Perry of the state's attorney's office reported that through the Community Prosecution project, a representative of his office is in the Grantsville Town Hall each Thursday, 1-6 p.m., to respond to residents' questions. He noted that more people from the Grantsville area will call him in his Oakland office than in the Grantsville location (301-746-7407).

Perry also gave an update on the Community Mobilization free fly-tying class for children and adults. "We have a good class this year with more participants than before. We meet each Thursday at the elementary school from 4 to 6 p.m.," he said.

Tfc. B.L. Bittinger reported that the Neighborhood Crime Watch group will meet again in Grantsville on Tuesday, Dec. 12, at 7 p.m. at Town Hall. In addition, a citizens police academy will be offered in Grantsville and Friendsville through the Crime Watch program. Pat Kelly of the state's attorney's office is coordinating the classes, which will be held on four evenings in December.

Office of Parole and Probation updated the group on the probation/policing efforts in the Grantsville area, pointing out that a number of individuals who had been on her caseload have left the area.

Linda Spassil, executive director of the Dove Center, told the committee about a recent training she attended on family violence issues in rural areas. She also said that a nationally recognized speaker had been contracted to address the subject of acquaintance rape in three sessions scheduled in Garrett County in December.

GRANTSVILLE

The town meeting was held Monday, Nov. 20.

•Del. George Edwards announced that Closet Maid selected the industrial park in Grantsville for its new site. The mayor and council thanked Edwards, the Garrett County commissioners, the Garrett County Office of Economic Development, and everyone else who worked to bring this employer to the area.

•The council adopted the blighted property ordinance. •The Christmas decoration and light contest will be judged on Dec. 16, 7-9 p.m. Those wishing to participate are asked to leave their lights on at this time.

•The council voted to approve the elimination of personal property tax for businesses.

•The town Christmas tree in town center will be lighted on Dec. 1.

•Christmas tree disposal is scheduled for Jan. 6 (snow date Jan. 13) at Town Hall.

The next town meeting will be held Monday, Dec. 18.

New Teachers Join Grantsville's After-School Staff

Kids-N-Corporated, the after-school program held at the Grantsville Senior Center, has recently welcomed three new staff members. Debra Wolfe, a substitute teacher with the Garrett County Board of Education who resides in Oakland, was recently hired to assume the responsibilities of coordinator Karen Wood during a leave of absence.

Also joining the staff are Jeanette Bland and Denise Fazenbaker, both Grants-ville residents, who will work with the students who attend the program every Monday through Thursday from 3:30 to 6 p.m. Serving elementary and middle school students from the Grantsville area, Kids-N-Corporated provides tutoring, socialization, field trips, community service activities, and guest speakers. It is coordinated by Garrett County Community Action Committee Inc., and funded in part by the HotSpot initiative.

Bachtel Couple To Celebrate 50th Anniversary

Harold and Barbara (Warsaw) Bachtel will mark their 50th wedding anniversary at a party Saturday, Nov. 25. The couple were married in Oakland on December 23, 1950, with the Rev. H.O. Teagarden officiating.

The Bachtels reside in the Oakland area, where they raised five sons: Gary, Kennewick, Wash.; Gayle, Oakland; Carroll, Grantsville; Randy, Westminster; and Rick, Aurora, W.Va. The couple also have 13 grandchildren.

In 1991, Harold retired from his work in construction, and in 1999 Barbara retired from her position in the dietary department of Garrett Memorial Hospital. The Bachtels attend St. John's Lutheran Church, Red House.

The couple's children will host an anniversary celebration for all friends and relatives at the Pleasant Valley Community Building on Saturday beginning at 6 p.m.

TROUBLE DOWN BELOW

By Ihor A. Zakaluzny, MD

Many people suffer from perianal problems, although they are not a hot topic of conversation, due to embarrassment and socio-cultural mores. As a result, there are many misconceptions as to the types of problems and their diagnosis and treatment. Most of the problems are caused by benign, nuisance disorders. However, any symptoms should be evaluated by a physician to ensure that a serious problem is not present.

Hemorrhoids, commonly known as piles, usually present as painless bright red bleeding with bowel movements. Hemorrhoids are varicose, or dilated, veins of the anal canal area. They bleed easily, as they are thin walled. They are caused by high pressures, usually generated from chronic straining with bowel movements. Pregnant women commonly develop hemorrhoids from the pressure generated by the heavy uterus in the pelvis and also from the pressures in the area during delivery. Hemorrhoids can become painful when they enlarge substantially and then protrude from within the anal canal, or when a clot forms in a hemorrhoid. Treatment of hemorrhoids can be simple and painless, or involve surgical removal, and depends on the symptoms, and size, of the hemorrhoids.

A common cause of severe pain in the anal area is anal fissure, a tear in the lining of the anal canal, usually caused by straining with a difficult bowel movement. The tear itself is painful, and a muscle in the area also goes into a cramp-like state causing severe pain as well. Fissures will also bleed. Treatment is usually simple, but a minor operation can be performed to cure the problem permanently if the simple measures fail.

Infections, called abscesses, cause pain and bleeding and occasionally fevers. They are usually related to the rudimentary anal glands we have inside the anal canal. Crohn's disease, a potentially serious bowel disorder, can also cause infections in the anal area. The abscesses, which can be serious, require drainage for proper management. Occasionally, a fistula may develop as a result of an infection. A fistula is a connection between the inside of the anal canal and the skin around the anal area. Fistulas will chronically drain and cause discomfort, and a minor surgical procedure is required to cure them.

Chronic itching, called pruritus ani, has many causes. Common causes include infection with fungus, secretions from other perianal disorders, and certain dietary factors. Contrary to popular myth, it is rarely caused by poor hygiene. In fact, overly zealous cleansing aggravates the area. Treatment is almost always a simple matter.

Cancers of the anus, rectum, or skin can present with any of the symptoms described above. Thus, it is important to have a proper evaluation when problems develop down below. Any bleeding with bowel movements especially must have a cause determined.

Concerns Raised Over Allegations Of Rifle Defects

The Remington Model 700, one of the most popular bolt-action hunting rifles in the country with over 3 million sold since it went on the market in 1962, is the subject of growing controversy over alleged safety mechanism defects that may be linked to at least four deaths and dozens of injuries. Over 80 lawsuits have been taken up against the Remington Arms Company in the past 20 years in connection with the matter.

"The rifle has a trigger connector problem that may cause it to fire intermittently when the safety is released," the web site of Public Citizen (www.citizen.org) alleges. "The weapon may also discharge upon bolt closure, bolt opening, and jarring, all of which exacerbate the trigger connector defect."

Those statements appear in Public Citizen's study of a lawsuit involving a Texas hunter whose foot had to be amputated after his Model 700 accidentally discharged as he was unloading it. Five years after the 1989 accident, Remington was ordered to pay the victim $17 million in damages.

The most recent fatality attributed to the possible rifle defect came on Oct. 23 in Madison County, Mont., when a 9-year-old boy was killed. According to an account published in the Bozeman (Mont.) Daily Chronicle, the boy's mother was unloading a Remington Model 700 .243 rifle when it accidentally discharged. The bullet traveled through a horse trailer and killed her son Gus, who was standing on the other side.

On Friday the same newspaper reported that a 53-year-old Montana man was wounded in what police called an accidental shooting involving a Remington Model 700 .22-250-caliber rifle. A companion hunter was unloading the rifle when it discharged. The bullet struck the floor of the pair's truck, and hit the victim, who was standing on the other side of the truck, in the right forearm.

According to a Nov. 5 Daily Chronicle feature story by staff writer Kathleen O'Toole titled "Remington Rifle Involved in Growing Number of Accidents," the Model 700 and its sister rifle, the Model 600, both "use the Walker fire control system and evidenced the same discharge problems leading to the same kind of injuries."

The company recalled the Model 600 in 1978 after a man was paralyzed when his rifle suddenly discharged. At that time the Remington Arms Product Safety Subcommittee estimated that 50 percent of the 200,000 Model 600 rifles it had sold would fail.

Missouri attorney Richard C. Miller, who has represented more than 40 cases against Remington regarding accidental discharges of the Model 700, told O'Toole that there are two problems with the Model 700.

"The first is a problem where the internal components of the system don't always return the sear-block safety, which blocks the firing pin from reaching the primer. When that happens, the only thing keeping the gun from firing is the safety."

"The second problem exists in guns made prior to 1982, when the rifle was made with a bolt lock. The lock wouldn't allow the bolt to be opened or closed while the safety was on. Accidents with these guns most often happen in camp, or parking lots, when people are loading and unloading the weapon."

"In 1982, Remington started making its bolt action rifles without the bolt lock and the number of complaints declined. Accidental discharges with these newer rifles often happen when people turn off the safety, usually when they are ready to shoot."

Miller said that in his opinion there are two ways to eliminate the problems: "First is to get the bolt lock removed on models made prior to 1982; second is to go to a gunsmith and have a new, after-market firing system of another brand installed."

Rich Barber, the father of the 9-year-old boy killed Oct. 23, has not filed a lawsuit at this point, but said he may consider one. The avid hunter stressed repeatedly to the reporter that "this is not an anti-gun issue — this is a gun-safety issue."

Persons interested in further information may access the Daily Chronicle web site at www.gomontana.com. The Remington Arms Company web site is www.remington.com.

Extension Advises Consumers On Buying Firewood

Jonathan Kays of the Maryland Cooperative Extension Service said that many homeowners, faced with dropping temperatures and rising fuel prices, are looking for alternative methods of heating their homes this winter. One cost-effective option, he recommends, is the safe burning of firewood.

"The heating value of a cord of seasoned hardwood—measured in BTUs (British thermal units)—is equal to about 120 gallons of No. 2 heating fuel and usually costs less," said Kays, a regional natural resources specialist with the Extension service, part of the University of Maryland's College of Agriculture and Natural Resources. "This can mean substantial savings in your winter heating bill. You can save even more by considering all the factors that affect the value of your firewood purchase."

According to Maryland law, firewood must be sold by the standard cord—a pile 4 feet high by 8 feet long by 4 feet wide when cut and stacked. (A face cord is a pile of stacked wood of any width that is 4 feet high and 8 feet long; it usually contains much less wood than a standard cord.)

Kays advises consumers who have wood delivered to stack it and make sure they're getting what they paid for. "Reputable sellers will back up their claims," he said. "Some people sell firewood by the pickup truck load and may claim it is a portion of a cord."

"Be careful when buying wood this way," Kays cautions. "The amount of wood that will fit in a pickup truck varies from about 1/5 cord to slightly more than 1/2 cord, depending on truck size, stacking method and height of stacking."

"Wood is extremely heavy, with a seasoned cord of oak weighing almost 4,000 pounds (2 tons). Since most half-ton pickup trucks have a weight limit of 1,000 pounds, you can rarely carry more than 1/4 cord safely without an improved suspension."

Different species of wood provide varying amounts of heat per cord, he said, and added that species with the best heating value are oak, ash, locust, walnut, apple, beech, and hickory. Red maple, cherry and elm are slightly poorer choices, and other woods, such as popular, cedar, and pine have much lower heat values and are more useful as kindling than firewood, he said.

No matter what species of wood you purchase, make sure it is properly seasoned before burning, Kays advises. Well-seasoned wood not only has better burning qualities, it also is cleaner, lighter to carry, and has fewer insects. Wood usually takes 6 to 10 months to season, although the process can be accelerated by splitting the wood, stacking it in the sun and protecting it from the rain.

"The most efficient way to burn wood is in an airtight stove or fireplace insert. Make sure the flue hookup and clearances of either are in line with building codes," he said.

"Some insurers of residential homes require an inspection of wood stoves by a county inspector to ensure that they have been properly installed," he advises consumers to check with their insurance company.

"Clean your chimney before your first fire and at intervals during the winter as needed (2 months is suggested) to prevent the buildup of creosote, a by-product of wood burning,"

he concludes. "Creosote buildup is highly flammable and can cause a chimney fire capable of destroying your home."

Upstart Huskies Upend #1 Vikings, 14-7; Ready To Tackle Elkton In Md. Semifinal

"We Don't Think Northern Can Play With Us," Says Golden Elks' Coach

As the game films recorded for all to see, it was the Northern High School football program that did its homework in preparation for Saturday's stunning 14-7 upset of Cambridge-South Dorchester, the top-ranked 1A squad in the state. Not even a sellout could stymie the Huskies, as the packed C-S-D stands were outyelled by a core contingent of five dozen Northern fans, who had made the trip and were rewarded with what has to rank as the biggest win in school history, in the estimation of head coach Phil Carr.

Northern advances to a state semi-final match-up at Elkton (11-0), slated for 1 p.m. Friday. The Golden Elks demolished Westmar this past weekend by a 49-7 margin. NHS will need to build upon the momentum of its flawless smash-mouth win over Cambridge, for the Golden Elks are admittedly bigger, stronger, and every bit as fast as the Vikings were, Carr said in his scouting prognosis yesterday.

Golden Elks' head coach Bill Russell, offered his prediction just minutes after his squad downed Westmar Saturday by a 49-7 margin, when he stated, "We don't think Northern can play with us." What the 11-0 Elks may not recall is that, although they bounced NHS from the first round of the state playoffs last season, their eight-point win was gained in spite of the Huskies' domination of all major statistical categories.

Cambridge head coach Dave Bromwell's squad was dominated Saturday by what Bromwell called "a typical western Maryland football team," before the contest. That style of aggressive, hard-hitting football made an impact from the beginning of the contest, as a number of Vikings expressed evident surprise at the physical nature of Northern's attack.

Carr and his staff asked for, and got, the most out of their full team, which played 48 minutes of nearly perfect football. Northern dominated both sides of the line all afternoon, manhandling the opposition and implementing their coaches' strategy of keeping the ball out of the hands of the speedy Vikings. Northern won the respect of their adversaries through gritty play that many Vikings said featured the hardest hits they had sustained all season.

"We knew we were taking on a different type of football team," remarked Carr. "The eastern teams rely on speed, and western teams rely on straight-up

CAME, SAW, CONQUERED — The Northern High Huskies, seeded at the bottom of the Maryland Class 1A football playoffs, knocked off top-ranked Cambridge-South Dorchester Saturday afternoon at Cambridge by a 14-7 margin. The score was closer than actual contest, as NHS dominated both sides of the line and all statistical categories. Key to the NHS effort was a hustling, hard-hitting defense that shut down the Vikings' explosive offense. Linebacker Bill Rodeheaver (#30) is shown above making a crushing tackle behind the line of scrimmage, made possible after Aaron Mitchell (#11) came up and contained the outside corner. Toby Gilpin (#79) and Mark Wolf (#31) follow the action from the right. The below photo captures a pass in mid-air, launched by quarterback Trey Brenneman (#7, partially obstructed) in the direction of Wolf, at far right. Rodeheaver and Gilpin can also be seen working to protect their field general, who ran the option offense to the point of perfection throughout the day. NHS is slated for a rematch with 11-0 Elkton this Friday at 1 p.m. In Elkton, and will have to assume the role of giant-killers (literally) to knock off the big hosts. The Golden Elks defeated Northern in the opening rounds of last year's state playoffs, but if anything can be learned from Saturday's huge upset of Cambridge, "It's not the size of the dog in the fight, but the size of the fight in the dog."

physical football. We told the guys all week that everything they did they would have to do faster and stronger than they've ever done things before."

The combatants met under fairly sunny skies, with the temperatures in the low 40s, relatively tropical weather in NHS's eyes. The first quarter was marked by see-saw play, as the two teams traded the ball back and forth through five punts and two turnovers. With 1:36 remaining in the opening stanza, NHS was forced to punt from the Viking 44-yard line. With Mark Wolf bearing down on him, the C-S-D returner muffed the catch, and Wolf alertly pounced on the ball for a recovery that put Northern in scoring position on the Vikings' 21.

The Huskies capitalized on the mistake three plays later when, on second-and-goal from the 2, Brenneman powered his way into the end zone at the 11:23 mark of the second quarter. His extra-point kick was tipped by a Viking, but still sailed through the uprights to give Northern a 7-0 lead.

The NHS grave-digger defense shut down Cambridge on its ensuing possession, and, behind the punishing blocking of his offensive line, Brenneman engineered a 15-play drive that chewed eight minutes off the clock. While the long drive ended in a missed 27-yard field goal attempt, it kept the ball out of the fleet-footed Vikings' hands until only 43 seconds remained in the half.

Knowing that the top team in the state was being rocked by their bone-crushing hits, the Huskies came out of the halftime locker room smelling blood on the trail. After another outstanding defensive stand at the start of the third quarter, Northern took the ball on its own 31-yard line and embarked on a 15-play, 69-yard touchdown drive that spanned a full nine minutes. Brenneman capped the inexorable crawl of the NHS machine with a three-yard TD run with 2:02 left in the quarter, and added a successful point-after kick to make the score 14-0.

"That was probably our best drive of the year," Carr said afterward. "The game plan was to keep the ball out of their hands, and we did that by sticking to our

Lakers Maintain Perfect Mark With Another Tournament Title

The 2000-01 basketball season continues to be perfect for the Garrett Community College men's team, at least in terms of victories, as the Lakers won their fourth and fifth games of the season and their second tournament this past weekend on their own court.

Behind a 35-point performance by Kortaa Hall, GCC downed Reading Area Community College, 93-82, on Friday in an opening-round game of the McDonald's Tournament. Then they topped Ocean County, 77-65, in the championship game of the tourney on Saturday to up their record to 5-0.

The contest with Reading was reasonably close from the opening tip-off, but the Lakers kept their opponents at arm's length most of the way. Garrett was on top 45-38 at halftime.

Hall, a freshman from Beckley, W.Va., and who is the Lakers' leading scorer to date, hit five three-point goals for half of his points. He also recorded four rebounds and three steals.

Also reaching double figures for the Lakers were 6-6 freshman center Jontae Harrington of Norfolk, Va., who netted 20 points and grabbed 10 rebounds, and former Northern High standout Dustin Long, who had 12 rebounds and seven points. Rob Hall finished with nine assists, five rebounds, and six points.

Maurice Allen scored 23 points to pace Reading, while Santos Martinez netted 20.

ted 20 and Andre Fountain finished with 13.

"This was a good win against a good team," stated GCC coach Dennis Gibson. "Our new players are playing well, especially so early in the season."

Kortaa Hall and Dustin Long each scored 12 points in Saturday's win over Ocean County in the title game, while Harrington netted 11 points and grabbed 11 rebounds, Antonio Lapegard scored 11, and Rob Hall dished out a game-high 14 assists.

The Lakers held a 41-26 advantage at halftime.

Pacing Ocean County's offensive effort were Tony Jones and Lawrence Lee, who each finished with 22 points. Jones also pulled down 11 rebounds.

Ocean City finished with a 37-34 edge in rebounds. "Dustin played a great defensive game for us, and Kortaa is really becoming a leader for this team," Gibson said.

Hall and Long were both named to the All-Tournament team, as were Rob Hall of Garrett, Martinez of Reading, and Jones of Ocean County.

Ocean County earned a spot in the title game by defeating CCBC-Dundalk, 78-66, in the other Friday game. In Saturday's consolation game, Reading defeated Dundalk, 84-78, behind a 28-point effort by Martinez.

The Lakers were slated to host Penn State-Fayette last night, but that contest was postponed because of weather conditions. They will take a holiday break, and return to action next Wednesday at Hood College against Frederick Community College.

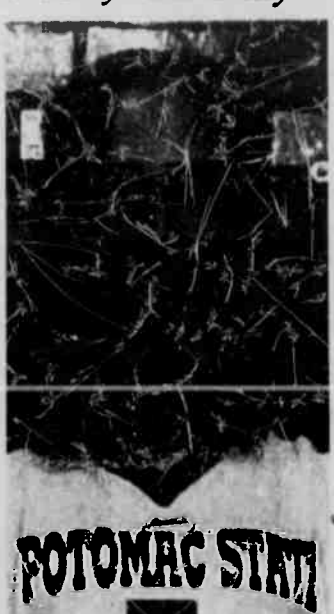

Benefit Slated During GCC Hoop Games In Oakland

A special fund-raising activity is being planned for the basketball doubleheader that will feature both the men's and women's teams of Garrett Community College, set for Saturday, Dec. 2, at Southern High School. The GCC women's team will lead off the double header in a game against Montgomery College, Takoma Park, beginning at 5 p.m. The GCC men's team will take on Baltimore City Community College in a 7 p.m. showdown.

Tickets for a 50/50 drawing to defray medical expenses for Wendy Bray will be sold during the games, and the drawing will be held at halftime of the men's game. The daughter of Bill and Mildred Bray of Oakland, Bray was seriously injured in a June 1 automobile accident. She is currently recuperating and undergoing rehabilitative therapy, but is faced with the certainty of future surgeries.

All purchases of a 50/50 ticket will be eligible for a door prize. Drawings for the door prizes will also be at halftime of the men's game. Southern High students will be admitted to the games free of charge. These two games will be the only "home" games the Lakers will play at a location other than their own gym.

Ex-Ram Earns Honors For PSC Volleyball Play

Potomac State College volleyball standout Jennifer Teagarden, a former mainstay of the Southern High School netters, has received several post-season honors as a result of her performance for the Catamounts this fall. The PSC freshman graduated from Southern this past spring.

Teagarden, who played in the Western Pennsylvania Collegiate Conference (WPCC) all-star game, was also named to the WPCC All-Conference team. "Jennifer is the first setter I've had who has been selected to an all-star team," commented PSC head coach Cathy Koelker, noting that the ex-Ram played a crucial part in helping lead the 14-16 Catamounts to the WPCC South Division crown. "We look forward to having her as one of our cornerstones for next year's team and building a winning team around her."

An ironwoman of the volleyball court, Teagarden played in every minute in every one of PSC's 91 games this season, the only member of her team to do so. She tallied 1,928 sets in 2,262 attempts for a mark of 85 percent, averaged 4.3 assists per game, and achieved an 85 percent rate of success from the service line. She scored 176 points, and accounted for 50 aces, 95 digs, and 17 blocks. Her hitting ratio was 82 percent as she went 115-for-140 on the attack, and she recorded a total of 64 kills.

Teagarden is majoring in secondary education and intends to become a math teacher. She is the daughter of Sherwin and Val Teagarden of Oakland.

Huskies

Northern's defense bent, but didn't break, when C-SD halfback Jamaal Chester scored on a two-yard touchdown carry with 7:41 left in the fourth quarter. A successful Viking point-after-kick made the score 14-7. Northern was forced to punt on the ensuing possession, which put the ball into the hands of the Vikings' explosive offense on the Cambridge 31-yard line with 3:49 remaining in the contest.

C-SD fullback got his squad moving with a 17-yard run. The Huskies knew they had to pin their ears back and buckle down, and it came down to Wolf, the lynchpin of the NHIS bread-and-butter defense, to come up with the game-saving play. Cambridge's Chester took off en route a 13-yard gain when, at the Northern 35-yard line, Wolf's quick reflexes enabled him to strip the ball from Chester's hands and recover the fumble.

Northern's offense ground down the field to the Viking 18-yard line before being stopped on downs with 49 seconds left, granting C-SD a last-gasp possession. Quarterback Travon Stubbs dropped back and lofted a second-down pass downfield that was picked off by cornerback Jeremy Frazee on the Cambridge 40, setting of a huge celebration on the Husky sideline and in the visitors' stands.

"This is the biggest win in our school's history, no doubt about it," said Carr, himself a former NHIS football standout. "It was a tremendous team effort. The defense was great and our physical play really stuck it to them. We stressed all week that we had to drive the ball and eat the clock, and that's what our guys did."

"I've never been more proud of any group of kids that I've ever coached as I am of these players. They showed a lot of pride and character, and had faith in themselves that they could get the job done. They came in focused and ready to play. You could see it in their eyes in the locker room before the game that they were going to give it everything they had. The seniors who had made it to the playoff game last year talked with the younger players and let them know what it meant to get this far, and what it takes to keep going."

Among the many individual Husky standouts for the day were Wolf, who recorded team-highs of 141 rushing yards on 22 carries and 11 solo tackles, while recovering two fumbles as well. "Mark is the best player I've ever coached," said Carr. "He's probably the best all-around player Northern has ever had. He plays the game so hard, it's just incredible to watch, and he brings everyone around him to play to a higher level."

Brennenman also put in a superb performance. The quarterback scored all of NHIS's 14 points, and engineered a fine ball-control offensive scheme, scoring all of NHIS's 14 points and gaining 62 yards on 14 carries. "Frank Ewing said that if Trey gained over 50 yards on the ground, we would win, and he was right," remarked Carr.

Northern gained a total of 237 yards and nine first downs on the ground, as compared to six rushing first downs and 135 ground yards for the C-SD offense.

Along with Wolf, Brennenman also helped key the defense, as he and fellow defensive end Cheston Bachtel drew an impenetrable steel curtain that shut down Cambridge's outside running game. Lineman Toby Gilpin filled the middle and recorded seven solo tackles. The grave-digger defense limited explosive Viking runner Chester to just 49 yards on 11 carries, and Stubbs to 38 yards on 12 rushes.

"Our defense is probably what won the game, because Cambridge is capable of scoring a lot of points. The three other coaches at yesterday's meeting of Maryland's 1A semi-final contestants all wanted to know how we were able to shut them down," Carr stated. "The Vikings' speed was a big thing to cope with, but our defensive ends, Brennenman and Bachtel, contained their outside game. Our linebackers and secondary also had great pursuit."

Carr's troops will have their hands full Friday at Elkton, but would do well to remember that they were far from blown off the field during last year's 21-13 quarterfinal loss to the Elks. NHIS accumulated 15 rushing first downs to Elkton's 9 rushing first downs, 253 total rushing yards to the Elks' 163, and held the ball for 29 minutes as compared to Elkton's 19-minute tally. Each one of those figures will have to be repeated for the Huskies to come away with a win, and last year's 10-penalty figure against Northern must be cut markedly.

"We drove the ball consistently on Elkton last year," Carr recalled. "They beat us with a few big plays, especially an opening kickoff return for a touchdown and a big catch late in the first quarter that resulted in a 41-yard gain and kept a 75-yard scoring drive alive."

"They've only lost four kids from last year's team," so Elkton has experience where it counts. We'll have to do the same thing as we did against Cambridge to contain their offense. Our defensive ends and cornerbacks will have to shut down their outside running game. They run an offense with three or four receivers out wide to try and spread out the defense and let their great halfback, John Triplett (5-9, 170), take off. Triplett gained over 1,600 yards for the year, and he can run both outside and inside.

"They have a very balanced attack, and if they don't run they can throw. Quarterback John Russell (6-2, 220) has thrown for over 1,000 yards and 12 touchdowns, but has also given up eight interceptions. Our pass defenders will have to be ready for him, and he's a running threat, too." Other Elks to watch are speedy split ends Shane Earl (5-8, 165) and Jim Guyton (6-1, 195).

Elkton's 5-2 defense is keyed by blitzing linebackers, especially outside linebacker Dain Culver (6-0, 210). "We need to be ready to pick up the blitz," Carr said. "We also remember that last year they tried to load the defensive line with nine guys at some points, but our option offense was still able to keep the ball moving. We'll need to pull off a lot of good fakes to get to the perimeter, because we know we can't outrun them to get to the outside. Trey has been a master at reads and fakes."

Smiley's, Welding Rod Winners In League Action

The Mountain Top Basketball League opened its 2000-01 season Sunday, as Smiley's Pizza rolled over 219 Motors, 85-64, and the Welding Rod topped Deep Creek Ready-Mix, 58-47.

Smiley's took a 10-point lead in the first five minutes of the first game and was never seriously challenged. Joe Refosco and Mike Harvey each scored 21 points, while Scott Shahan hit 16 and Chris Ewing netted 12 for the winners. Jon Hege-man hit a game-high 23 points, including 21 from three-point range, for 219 Motors.

Jason Shank led the Welding Rod's scoring in the second game with 14 points, while teammates Kris Upole and Richie DeWitt each netted 11. Jason Skipper and Joey DiSimone finished with 15 and 14 points, respectively, for Deep Creek Ready-Mix.

Games slated for this Sunday, Nov. 26, will pit Condoerr against 219 Motors in the first game, Smiley's vs. Beckman's in game two, and 84 Lumber against Deep Creek Ready-Mix in the third game. Respective scorekeepers are to be from Beckman's, 219 Motors, and Smiley's.

All teams must pay their league fees by the third week of the season.

Swallow Falls Campground Open For Deer Season

The Maryland Sportsmen's Association (MSA) has offered to provide assistance to the Maryland Department of Natural Resources (DNR) State Forest and Park Service so that hunters can camp at three campgrounds where the camping season had ended before the deer firearms season occurred. MSA volunteers will be forest hosts at Green Ridge State Forest, freeing up staff so that camping areas can be open at Swallow Falls State Park, Rocky Gap State Park, and the Manor Area of Cunningham Falls State Park.

"Hunters have always stepped up to the plate to help with wildlife management, and this is another opportunity for us to work with DNR to help meet the needs of Maryland's hunting community," said MSA president Tim Lambert. "There are families who have traditionally hunted and camped in these areas, and our members are happy to volunteer some time to help DNR staff these areas and keep them open."

The three areas will be open from Nov. 24 through Dec. 10. As in previous years, the shower buildings will not be open, but there will be portable toilets available at each of these camping areas. An anonymous donor has agreed to pay for the portable toilets.

"The decision to close those areas earlier this year was made because of cost and staffing considerations. It was not done to create a problem for the hunting public," said DNR assistant secretary Jim Dummer.

The State Forest and Park Service western regional manager Chris Anderson added, "I want to thank MSA for volunteering to help us as we minimize expenses in the western region. We couldn't have done this without their help."

"MSA and the State Forest and Park Service are going to use this hunting season to assess which camping areas are most needed during the deer firearm sea-

Northern High Slates Alumni Basketball Game

An alumni basketball game for all former members of the Northern High School boys' basketball team has been set for 7:30 p.m. Saturday, Dec. 2, at the NHHS gymnasium. A "Meet the Squad Night" program will also take place, as the 2000-2001 edition of the Northern boys' basketball program will be introduced to the crowd during the course of the evening, and a new television will be raffled off as well.

All Husky boys' basketball alumni interested in participating are asked to call Paul Edwards, NHHS boys' basketball head coach, at 301-895-4255. Admission all year, especially last Saturday. "To win this week we need to play even more flawlessly than we did against Cambridge, and be confident and aggressive. I'm relying on our seniors to lead the younger guys by example and through their experience. They know what we are capable of if we stick to our game plan and don't get rattled."

The other semi-final contest, set for Saturday, pits Glenelg (8-3) against Forestville (9-2) at Forestville. "Each of the top four-seeded teams got knocked off in the quarterfinals," said Carr. "Elkton's the top seed left at number 5. That means everyone left still has a legitimate shot at the crown."

Carr laughed when reminded that the first day of deer season comes after the contest at Elkton. "Well, that makes me hopeful that we'll have a lot of people in the stands Friday. If we were playing Saturday, however, . . ."

Garrett Countians making the trip to Elkton for Friday's 1 p.m. contest should count on a 4-hour one-way trip. Continuing northbound on Interstate 95 north of Baltimore, travelers should look for the Elkton exit (Exit #109), which will feed into west-bound Elkton/Newark Road (Route 279). Go west for approximately two miles until coming upon Elkton Middle School, which will be on the left at a traffic light. Continue straight through the light for another 200 yards until arriving at the Elkton High School sign on the left. The school itself is located on the right opposite the sign, along James Street.

The chartered bus carrying the Huskies will pull out from NHHS at 4 p.m. Thanksgiving day for the trip to Cecil County, and will take a quick detour off the Interstate at Route 495 to take National Highway east through downtown Grantsville to Chestnut Ridge Road. Northern rooters living in Grantsville are encouraged to put down forks and drumsticks shortly after 4 p.m., step outside wearing blue, gold, and white, and let their playoff-bound Huskies know "Who let the dogs out."

"I honestly thought a 5-4 season would be a pretty good year for us this year," Carr admitted. "Now to be knocking on the door of the state title game is just awesome. We have a good shot at the championship, and just have to go after it with everything we've got. It would be great for the guys to look up into the visitors' stands Friday and see them filled with Northern fans. Believe me, the kids appreciate all the support the entire community has given them."

In Loving Memory Of Harold Lipscomb
Aug. 29, 1935 May 2, 2000
On Thanksgiving Day
I think of you all the time and miss you more every day, especially this time of year. You would be doing your favorite thing, deer hunting and telling big tales about the ones that got away. But God looked down and saw how sick you were and knew you couldn't get well. So he wrapped his arms around you and called you home to a better place. Someday I will get that call and we will be together again, oh happy day. Then I can tell you how much I miss you and love you. Till we meet again.
Your loving wife,
Garnet (Boots)

Potential Problems from Supplements Used by Athletes
Use of performance enhancing substances by athletes often is considered inappropriate and sometimes against event rules because it violates the ideal of fair competition. In addition some supplements can threaten the athlete's health.
Anabolic steroids are used to increase muscle strength and to recover more rapidly from intense training. Unfortunately, such steroids also can cause liver dysfunction, breast enlargement, and premature baldness. Erythropoietin or EPO may effectively increase physical endurance. It can be dangerous, however, due to its blood thickening effect. Blockages in the heart or brain can occur. Some sources of growth hormone (hGH) carry a risk of a progressive enlargement of the head, face, hands, and feet. Creatine is used to delay fatigue, and speed muscle recovery. However, studies have shown that creatine does not have muscle-building capability and is not effective for enhancing endurance. Athletes whose natural levels of creatine are low may benefit from supplementation, but most users will not.

son," said State Forest and Park Service superintendent Rick Barton. "We'll use that assessment to make adjustments for next year and get the word out well in advance of the hunting seasons."

Other areas open to year-round camping on a first-come/first-served basis are Savage River State Forest, Potomac State Forest, Garrett State Forest, and Big Run State Park. There are no facilities in the state forests, and Big Run has minimal facilities.

Spruce Forest To Hold Annual Christmas Fest

The 15th annual Christmas in the Village has been set for Friday and Saturday, Dec. 1-2, at Spruce Forest Artisan Village in Grantsville. The village is located along the Old National Road just east of Grantsville between the historic 1813 Casselman Bridge and the former stagecoach stop now known as Penn Alps Restaurant & Crafts Shop, originally built in 1818 as the Little Crossings Inn.

Hours on Friday of the festival are from 4 to 8 p.m. and on Saturday from noon to 8 p.m. The restaurant and crafts shop are open until 9 p.m., and restrooms are available there throughout the festival.

"The newest feature of this comfortable winter festival is the opening of the three-story House of Yoder," said village administrator Trish Morgan. "The volunteers, many of whom are Yoder descendants will use the theme of Swiss Palatine Pennsylvania Dutch Christmas Practices, introducing thousands of visitors to the Yoder Christmases of days gone by." The live Christmas tree will be European decorated, and there will be Swiss/German families sitting in the Holy Corner near the advent wreath and Moravian stars, relaxing by the fire reading the Christmas Story and singing German carols. Some other attractions in the house will include gingerbread houses, complimentary refreshments, manger scene, St. Nick's Shoe, and the room-length stone hearth fireplace.

Throughout the two-day festival, Spruce Forest will host eight artisans at work in heated log cabins and schoolhouses; complimentary refreshments, including the popular "Courtin' Fudge," hot spiced cider, and hot chocolate; Cookie Art for children in the 1825 Compton School; strolling carolers on Saturday afternoon by the Presby Singers of First Presbyterian Church of Frostburg and the Allegany College Choir from Cumberland; door prizes and holiday shopping; live nativity outdoors at 6:30 p.m. both evenings by Mt. Top Youth For Christ; Friday evening concert in the quaint Village Church at 7:30 p.m. by St. John's UCC Handbell Choir; and Saturday evening concert at 7:30 p.m. in the church by the Grantsville Community Choir.

"Our generous neighbor, Penn Alps Restaurant & Crafts Shop, will offer a festival buffet and discounts at the crafts shop during the festival," added Morgan.

Each evening after 5 p.m., visitors will find hundreds of candle luminaries throughout the village, lighting the pathways between the authentic cabins and other rustic structures amidst the 75-year-old spruce trees. Volunteers will be available in the school to assist children with the cookie decorating. Handmade ornaments by Theresa Warr's second grade class at Route 40 Elementary School will adorn the inside of the school.

THOMAS RECEIVES EDUCATION AWARD - Dave Thomas of Mettiki Coal Corporation was honored this month at the Garrett County Board of Education meeting for receiving the Excellence for Minority Achievement Award 2000 from Dr. Nancy S. Grasmick, superintendent of Maryland schools. For 12 years Mettiki Coal has sponsored Success Night for middle school students. "Our partnership with schools is very important to us," Thomas said. In the photo above, from left, are board president Rodney Durt, Thomas, and school superintendent Dr. Wendell Teets.

Although admission to the two-day festival is free, donations are welcome at the gift box at the festival entrance; suggested donation is $1 per person. The festival is sponsored in part by the Maryland State and Garrett County arts councils and Penn Alps Restaurant & Crafts Shop. For directions or information about local accommodations, persons may contact tmorgan@spruceforest.org or call Ms. Morgan at 301-895-3332. The village's web site is www.spruceforest.org.

After-School Programs Need Adult Mentors

The Garrett County Health Department is seeking individuals to volunteer as mentors for youth in two after-school programs in the county. The programs are at the Southern and Northern middle schools, and are offered to middle school students five nights a week. The will follow the school year calendar.

The mentoring component of the program is offered to have adults volunteer to come to the program and provide homework assistance, tutoring, one-on-one attention, friendship, and a positive role model for the program participants. Those interested in becoming mentors will receive training and information, and will then come in at scheduled times to the after-school programs to spend time with their assigned students. Health department staff is seeking a commitment from the mentors of at least one night a week at the after-school sites.

Those interested in becoming a mentor may contact Sam Moon at the Garrett County Health Department at 301-334-8122.

Cherry Grove To Host Choir

The Cherry Grove Church of the Brethren will host the Bruceton Community Choir in concert on Sunday, Dec. 3, at 7 p.m. Admission will be free, and all are invited. The church is located at 3992 Chestnut Ridge Road near Grantsville.

MLP Council To Have Hearing On Walk Ordinance

Although there are currently few sidewalks in Mtn. Lake Park, residents of that town will be required to maintain any present and future sidewalks, and keep them clear of snow and ice — at their expense — if the town council adopts a proposed ordinance. A public hearing will be held by the council next Wednesday, Nov. 29, at 6:00 p.m. at the town hall to allow persons to express their opinions about the proposal.

A portion of the proposed ordinance reads as follows: "An ordinance of the Mayor and Town Council of Mountain Lake Park providing for the maintenance of sidewalks and driveway aprons by adjoining property owners, including the removal of snow and the repair of any defect in such sidewalk or driveway apron which could make it unsafe for public use; and providing that in the event an abutting property owner does not do such maintenance and/or repair, the Mayor and Town Council of Mountain Lake Park can cause such maintenance and/or repair to be done and assess the cost thereof to the said property owner

The ordinance goes on to prohibit the use of motorized vehicles, bicycles, skates, skateboards, and scooters on the sidewalks. The full text of the ordinance (#00-02) is available at the town hall Monday through Friday during regular business hours.

High Gas Prices Won't Stop Holiday Travelers From Hitting The Road

By Lori Silverstein
Capital News Service
WASHINGTON — Gasoline prices are high, but not high enough to keep Marylanders stuck at home during Thanksgiving. Transportation officials predict that even more drivers will be hitting the roads for the holiday this year than last year.

Jenny Hackler, 35, a Silver Spring resident who was picking up maps Friday at the American Automobile Association office in Washington, said she would like to see lower gas prices. But the high price was "not gonna stop me," said Hackler, who is heading to Princeton, N.J., for the holidays.

AAA officials expect 616,980 Maryland motorists to be on the road this Thanksgiving, nearly a 4 percent increase from last year.

Officials at area airports and rail stations are also expecting a crush of business, starting Tuesday and growing through Wednesday, when traffic is expected to be at its worst. Sunday is also expected to be a heavy travel day, as people rush home from the holidays.

"We encourage people as much as possible to travel on Tuesday," said David Buck, a State Highway Administration spokesman.

With so many people on the road, state highway officials plan to take extra precautions. Buck said extra emergency traffic patrollers will be out for the holidays.

"We'll change people's tires, give a free gallon of gas, and do some minor repairs," Buck said.

Myra Wieman, a spokeswoman for AAA Mid-Atlantic, said the expected increase in Thanksgiving travelers did not come as a shock, after the high amount of Memorial Day traffic, when gas was about $1.50 a gallon. Gas prices in Maryland now hover around $1.53 per gallon, compared to $1.28 from last Thanksgiving.

"Gas prices are high, but people still want to be with their family. We were more surprised with Memorial Day," Wieman said. "Now we're over the surprise."

Heavy airport travel comes as no surprise to officials at Baltimore-Washington International Airport, where 64,000 passengers are expected Wednesday, said spokesman Ron Grubb. The airport's biggest day will be Sunday, when 66,550 are expected to come through BWI.

Grubb said 51,000 people fly from the airport on a typical day. A total of 403,836 people are expected for the week, about 50,000 more than last year. With such crowds, Grubb said

Police Warn Of Greater Risks As Traffic Increases

Maryland State Police at the McHenry barracks issued reminders and warnings this week to area residents and visitors concerning the rise in highway hazard risks that accompany the holiday season.

Garrett County will experience an increase in traffic beginning today, November 22, because of the Thanksgiving holiday season and the opening of the Maryland firearms deer season, which begins Saturday, Nov. 25, the MSP noted, adding that Garrett County also receives an influx of traffic with the beginning of the winter ski season.

"There is an increase in social activities which continues through the New Year. Some of these activities include parties and family gatherings in which alcoholic beverages are consumed, sometimes in excess, which creates a hazard, not only to the person drinking, but to other motorists," a spokesman said.

The state police will join other police throughout the country in "Operation C.A.R.E." — Combined Accident Reduction Effort. Troopers will use radar, Vascar, marked, unmarked, and covert patrol vehicles to enforce laws concerning driving while intoxicated, speeding, seatbelt and child safety seat violations, and aggressive driving on interstate highways in Maryland throughout the holiday period.

Fatal automobile collisions involving the abuse of alcohol in Garrett County have been reduced in recent years from 7 in 1995 to 1 in both 1998 and 1999. There have been 8 motor vehicle fatalities so far this year in the county, only one of which was related to alcohol, the spokesman said.

"We wish to remind citizens of the need to exercise care in operating automobiles during the holiday season. No one can drive a vehicle safely after consuming excessive quantities of alcohol," the spokesman said. The consequences of arrest for driving while intoxicated include fines, incarceration in a penal institution, revocation of one's driving privileges, and attorney fees.

The police spokesman noted that persons committing criminal acts are often found to be under the influence of alcohol or drugs such as marijuana. "These substances prevent people from making good clear decisions. They are directly responsible for many assaults, including violent acts against family members. The only way for Marylanders to enjoy the upcoming holiday activities is to avoid over-indulgence in the use of alcohol and the elimination of drug use," he concluded.

A Faithful Thanksgiving

Hardships prevailed that first Thanksgiving. Death was the Pilgrims' companion and creature comforts were few. Yes, some had survived that tortuous first year, but who knew what tribulations lay ahead? Many of us might wonder what inspired those struggling Pilgrims to have a Thanksgiving celebration at all.

In 2 Corinthians 12:9-10, the Lord assures us... "My grace is sufficient for you, for my power is made perfect in weakness." Paul proclaimed, "I will gladly boast of my weaknesses, that the power of the Lord may rest upon me. For the sake of Him, then, I am content with weaknesses, insults, hardships, persecutions, and calamities; for when I am weak, then I am strong."

The Pilgrims had the intangible comforts of faith and prayer. Through calamities, their spirits were made strong. Certainly then, whatever our situation, we all have reason to celebrate the strength we receive from our Heavenly Father.

Enter God's House with a feeling of thanksgiving this week. His power is sufficient for you.

Background Scripture:
1 Kings 11
Devotional Reading:
Nahum 1:2-8

If, like me, you know the full story of King Solomon, you have perhaps shared my uncomfortable feeling while, in the last two weeks, we have studied passages extolling Solomon as Israel's king of kings. Uncomfortable because, despite the superlatives heaped on him in the previous chapters, I knew that 1 Kings 11 was waiting for us around the corner. Thus 11th chapter is an abrupt about-face. Despite the glowing expectations of his younger days, Solomon, has another side which is far from exemplary.

It would appear that the divine dissatisfaction came late in Solomon's life, but you can bet that it didn't happen overnight. In all likelihood, Solomon's dark side had been there for a long time and only became so evident in his later years. Early on it seemed that Solomon grew only better and better, but somewhere along the line he must have stopped growing in that direction. Despite his early prospects, the end was tragic.

What happened to King Solomon? Reading 1 Kings 11 we might conclude that the fault rests upon the fact that "King Solomon loved many foreign women." So Solomon had several foreign wives, how did that turn him in the wrong direction? We know that in his day and for long centuries thereafter in many cultures, royal marriage was a political and diplomatic act. Kings married the daughters of other kings so as to strengthen an alliance or to discourage invasion. David's many wives did not seem to inspire God's rebuke.

These Foreign Wives
If we read on, however, we find two facts that help to explain the problem. First, God had explicitly expelled the people of Israel from marrying Egyptian, Moabite, Ammonite, Edomite, Sidonian and Hittite women. Why? Because the Lord anticipated that these women would be a corrupting influence within Israel. The people of Israel needed to withstand the beguiling influence of idolatry and these women would make it more difficult to keep Israel unpolluted by the worship of idols.

Secondly, we find that Solomon did not have a few foreign wives. In fact, the sheer statistics of Solomon's harem are astounding: seven hundred wives, princesses, and three hundred concubines (11:3). There were more than one thousand women in Solomon's harem. He could not justify seven hundred wives on the grounds of diplomacy, because Israel didn't have that many neighbors and enemies. There could be no justification for three hundred concubines as they earned no political or diplomatic clout.

Nancy Folmsbee: Self-Taught Weaver Becomes Basket Guru

by Jeremy Carr

Nancy Folmsbee began weaving baskets 14 years ago. Since then, it has become not only a passion but a way of life for this Accident resident, who now has her own studio and participates in area shows and festivals.

Folmsbee started weaving following instructions she found in a Foxfire book. "Books have continually been a source of inspiration to me," she said. For the most part, however, this weaver describes herself as "a self-taught Basket Guru."

An Appalachian native, Folmsbee works with traditional Appalachian-style basket weaving, as well as in Native American patterns and modern, decorative forms. In doing so, she prefers to use raw materials, including dyeing the reed herself prior to working with it.

Folmsbee has taken classes from Anne Bowers, Flo Hloppe, and Judith Olney — all "respected and talented" basket weavers. She is also a participating member in several area arts groups, including the Garrett County Arts Council (GCAC), the Mountain Arts Cooperative, and the Tub Mill Arts Association and Gallery, located in nearby Salisbury, Pa.

In addition to taking part in the commemoration of the bicentennial of the Drane House in Accident, Folmsbee demonstrated her craft during recent studio tours, sponsored by the GCAC, and helped with the annual IDEA art show, associated with the Accident 4th of July Homecoming celebration.

Among her other shows during 2000 were the Buckwheat Festival, Autumn Glory, and three studio tours. The Tub Mill Arts Association and Gallery will exhibit Folmsbee's work during its Christmas show, which will open later this month.

Aside from basket weaving, Folmsbee works with beaded earrings, barrettes, and necklaces. Braided and knotted hemp jewelry and friendship bracelets are also part of her collection. She even designs and tie-dyes T-shirts, assisted by her children.

Folmsbee plans to begin teaching classes for adults and children, age 8 and older. For information regarding her projects or classes, persons may contact her at 301-746-6511 or view her work at www.mtarts.com/baskets1.htm.

Folmsbee's work may be seen at the annual Christmas open house at Tub Mill Arts Association and Gallery on November 24-26 and December 1-3 from noon to 5 p.m. The gallery is located along Ord Street in Salisbury.

Fifth Graders At Friendsville Host Grandparents Tea

Grandparents were the guests of honor at a tea hosted recently by Donna Deal's fourth and fifth grade class at Friendsville Elementary School. The students were in charge of gathering supplies, creating invitations, making place-mats, writing poems, and leaning a song with which to greet their grandparents.

The Grandparents Tea was actually a breakfast served by homeroom parents. Following the meal, children read poems about their grandparents and sang "Thank You Lord." Each child then had the opportunity to stand besides his or her grandparents and have a memento photo taken. Pictures were placed in frames made by the students for this occasion.

"The grandparents outnumbered the students in attendance," Deal said, adding that she had received many "thank-you" notes and compliments for the time and effort put into the celebration.

SNOWY CREEK
by Stacey Glover
Reporter

The Snowy Creek 4-H Club met at the home of Betty Guard recently. Several members presented demonstrations that covered a variety of topics. Officers for 2001 were elected, with these results: president — Mark Wolf; vice president — Nathan Glass; secretary — Mitchell Guard; treasurer — Shelby Glover; and reporter — Michael Guard.

A committee has been formed to decorate the Friendsville Library, and a date will be decided upon at a later time. Ideas for monthly topics for the upcoming year were discussed, and re-enrollment packets were handed out to each member. The October Adopt-a-Highway crew, Mark and Michael Wolf, Randall Frantz, and David Smearman, were recognized.

The annual Christmas dinner and meeting will be held 6 p.m. Sunday, Dec. 10. The new officers and new members will be installed at the meeting, and re-enrollment packets will be collected.

Woolly Bears Predict A Woolly Winter For Mid-Atlantic Region

By Riyad Mathew
Capital News Service
WASHINGTON — Bundle up, Maryland. The furry winter prophet has spoken and said it's going to be a long, colder-than-normal winter, beginning in late November and continuing through the end of March.

Officials at the Hagers-town Town and Country Almanack reached that conclusion Wednesday after studying the three-band markings of 632 woolly bear caterpillars that were turned into the almanac's "woolly bear headquarters." According to folklore, winter's severity is foretold by measuring the woolly bear's front and rear black bands, which represent the first and second halves of winter.

"The woolly bears have predicted, by the length of its front and back bands, that the coming winter is going to be very cold and wet," said Gerald Spessard, the business manager of the Hagers-town Town and Country Almanack.

"The front band and the back band were similar in length and longer than normal. That means a more severe winter," Spessard said.

The "woolly bear prediction" was similar to the outlook posted for the mid-Atlantic region last month by the National Oceanic and Atmospheric Administration — although the federal agency based its prediction on science and satellite imagery, not furry caterpillars.

NOAA officials said that the "record warm winters may be over, as normal winter weather returns." Similarities between their forecast and the woolly bear's, authorities at the NOAA asserted that they "do not acknowledge the almanac predictions."

When asked about the

"We don't compare our methods or findings to that of the woolly bears," said Wayne Higgins, a senior meteorologist at the Climate Prediction Center. "However, our studies have predicted a colder winter this year. This is primarily because La Niña and El Niño are out of the way."

"We also expect cooler temperatures in Maryland and the mid-Atlantic region compared to the South and western parts of the country where, based on a long-term trend, we have found that the temperatures have been moving upwards," said Higgins. "This trend is much less so in the mid-Atlantic region. There is a good chance for above-normal precipitation."

Not all of the almanac's predictions are based on the woolly bear: Bill O'Toole, the almanac's weather prognosticator and a computer instructor at Mount St. Mary's College, said he uses scientific models to help predict other elements of the coming winter.

O'Toole is predicting, for example, that the winter will total 129 days, from

Nov. 23 to March 31, of which 103 days will have temperatures below 32 degrees.

"We expect more snow and storms this winter," said O'Toole, whose forecast calls for 23 storms that will total 50 inches of snow, compared to the normal 34 inches.

"But these are based on a scientific approach and have nothing to do with the woolly bears," he said.

Among the topics of discussion was the success of local programs operated by the Western Maryland Consortium. Snapshot comparisons of the Consortium's performance as of June 30, 1999, and the same date of this year show marked improvement indicators over a wide range of populations served by the organization, including youth, adults, and welfare recipients. Members of each of these subgroups that have participated in Consortium programs show high levels of success in finding and retaining employment, and/or in increasing their weekly earnings. Customer satisfaction of clients served by the Consortium currently stands at

Also discussed were the many services being provided to workers who lost jobs when the Handy Girl garment-making plant in Deer Park closed recently. "We can assist those workers in training for other careers," Consortium director M. Sue Shockey commented, "just as we did for displaced Bausch & Lomb workers."

New performance goals, program activity, and labor market changes were among the other topics on the discussion agenda.

The meeting was chaired by Jim Kesseling of Garrett Container Systems, who chairs both the Garrett County group and the overall Western Maryland Workforce Investment Board. Other committee members on hand were Jim Hinebaugh, director of the Garrett County Office of Economic Development; Sandy Derato of Derato and Associates; Tom Rosser, assistant director of the Garrett County Department of Social Services; Scott Hollingsworth of the Appalachian Parent Association; and JoAnn Vent of the Garrett County Board of Education.

AFTER RAISING OVER $13,500 this past year at the American Cancer Society's Relay for Life in Oakland, teams representing First United Bank & Trust have already announced that they will return for the 2001 relay, slated for next June. First United sponsored eight teams this past June, with over 120 participants. Bank personnel also operate the relay food booth at the Southern High School football field, with the assistance of members of the Oakland-Mt. Lake Park Lions Club. First United employees Sandy Bell and Connie Forbes have also organized a food booth the past two years during the Autumn Glory Festival Parade, with all of those proceeds likewise going to the relay. The photo above was taken at the booth last month. First United earned the Corporate Award from the ACS for most funds raised by a corporation the past two years. Pictured from left above are Dave Forbes, Connie Forbes, Judi Pownall, Sandy Bell, and Dave Bell, all First United employees and/or team members.

FRIENDSVILLE NEWS

FRIENDSVILLE UNITED METHODIST CHURGE
The Friendsville United Methodist Church held a combined Brotherhood and World Thank Service for all three churches on Tuesday, Nov. 14, at the Friendsville

United Methodist Church. Following the meal, the World Thank Service was held upstairs in the church, with a program by the women.

The name of the program was "Freely You have Received and Freely Give."

Carol Frazee was the leader and Mary Friend was the narrator, with Robin Sines, Faye Humberson, and Nancy Thomas also participating. Dave Thomas sang two songs and Loretta Hummel entertained with several songs. The benediction was given by Rev. Milliren.

BLOOMING ROSE UNITED METHODIST WOMEN

The Blooming Rose United Methodist Women will hold their annual Christmas party on Thursday, Dec. 16, at Lone Star Restaurant at 1:30 p.m. Secret Sisters will be revealed and new names will be drawn. All women are invited. Persons may call 301-746-5113 by Dec. 5 to make reservations.

FRIENDSVILLE UNITED METHODIST CHURCH

Poinsettias may be ordered and placed in the church in memory or honor of a loved one. Those interested may contact Thelma Kelley at 301-746-5877.

The youth of the church will present their Christmas program on Sunday, Dec. 17, during the 11 a.m. service. The Friendsville Christmas Cantata will be presented at 7 p.m. that evening. The public is invited to attend.

GRACE LUTHERAN CHURCH

Regular church services at the Grace Lutheran Church are held every Sunday beginning at 9:45 a.m. Communion is given on every third Sunday of the month.

ASHER GLADE CHURCH OF THE BRETHREN

The Ladies Aid Christmas party will be Sunday, Dec. 3, beginning at 4 p.m. at the church.

The Asher Glade Church of the Brethren is responsible for nursing home visits on Sunday, Dec. 3, at 2:30 p.m. A concert by the Hoppers will be held at the Mt. Top Assembly of God in Mtn. Lake Park on Sunday, Dec. 3, at 2 p.m.

Persons who have a prayer request may contact Pastor Sam Moon at 301-334-1379.

The Christmas program will be held Friday, Dec. 22, at 7 p.m.

SAND SPRING CHURCH OF GOD

Sunday School at the Sand Spring Church of God begins at 9 a.m., with worship service following at 10:15. Guest speaker is Nevin Umbel.

Choir practice is held every Wednesday at 6 p.m., with Bible study beginning at 7 p.m.

Chair dancing exercises are being held every Wednesday at 9 a.m. at the Sand Spring social hall. Everyone is welcome to attend.

HOLIDAY LIGHT UP NIGHT

The annual Holiday Light-Up Night and activities sponsored by the mayor and town council are scheduled for Friday, Dec. 1, at the town hall. Santa will arrive for the 6:30 p.m. light-up, and treats will be distributed to children after the tree lighting. Townwide hayrides for carolers will be provided. Other entertainment is being planned as well.

Local churches, organizations, and individuals are encouraged to set up tables to sell refreshments and crafts along Chestnut Street in front of the town hall. Any group or individual willing to provide entertainment is also welcome.

For additional information, persons may contact Frani King at 301-746-4441 or Shirley Metheny at 301-746-5207.

SENIOR CITIZEN NEWS

A delicious ham dinner was served to the seniors by the Friendsville RAD Group. Approximately 50 attended the dinner, which was held Thursday, Nov. 16.

The meal was served by Marlene Schroyer, Jenny Schroyer, Carol Wakefield, Carolyn Humberson, and Patty Atwood — all members of the RAD Group.

Marcy Cillito, former site manager, was a special guest at the center on Wednesday, Nov. 15.

The 50-50 drawing will be held Wednesday, Nov. 28.

WOW NEWS

Woodmen of the World Lodge 45 met at the Selbysport Church on Thursday, Nov. 16. Eighty-six fruit baskets were made for the sick and shut-ins.

The next meeting of the WOW will be held Thursday, Dec. 21, at the Selbysport Methodist Church, with a covered dish dinner at 6:30 p.m. The ham and drink will be furnished, and there will be no exchange of gifts.

parking will probably be a problem so passengers should plan ahead.

"My advice is try to use alternate transportation if you can, like MARC. And plan on arriving at the airport two to two and half hours ahead," Grubb said.

"You need enough time to park and check in bags."

And passengers should still expect to go through all boarding procedures, he said.

"Remember, the FAA requires you show to ID and answer questions. We will be enforcing that even if there are a large number of people in the airport trying to get on the plane," Grubb said.

Travelers will also face crowds at train stations. Amtrak expects a 35 percent increase in passengers from Tuesday to Monday, compared to an average week, said spokeswoman Brenda Tollmer. She said Amtrak will add trains to help handle traffic in the Northeast corridor, expected to have the heaviest traffic in the system.

"It will be interesting to see what it's like at Union Station," Tollmer said. "They say it's going to be a zoo."

Local Store Receives Honor

84 Lumber's Oakland store has been named the winner in the Norman B. Hardy Memorial Contest, an honor that recognizes exceptional, personalized sales performance.

The Oakland store was one of only 39 of 84 Lumber's 415 stores nationwide to receive the honor. The contest recognized outstanding sales performance at all stores between September 25 and October 29, 2000. To win the NBH Memorial Contest, the store must display outstanding sales performance, founded on personalized customer service.

The NBH Memorial Contest was named in honor of one of the co-founders of 84 Lumber Company, Norman B. Hardy. "Norm was an extraordinary sales associate because he had empathy for his customers. His keen sense of wit, and personalized one-on-one service won him many loyal customers," stated a company spokesperson.

Founded in 1956 in the town of Eighty Four, Pa., 84 Lumber currently operates 415 stores in 30 states.

Children's Party Set At Library

WARM THE CHILDREN

Providing New Winter Clothing For Needy Children
For the fourth year, The Republican is asking for your help. Without it, many Garrett County children will go cold this winter.

Just what is The Republican Newspaper's WARM THE CHILDREN FUND?

The Republican newspaper's Warm the Children Fund is, basically, neighbors helping neighbors. We here at the paper are asking for monetary donations (tax deductible) from you, the readers. The collected funds will be used to purchase new winter clothing for Garrett County children in need. Because the newspaper administers the program, there are no added fees or overhead costs. Every penny donated is used to buy the winter items.

How are needy children being identified?

A special core of volunteers is working right now to identify those in need this year. Those selected for applications will be receiving them soon. (Please do not call for the service. If you have been selected, you will soon be notified.)

How will the children's clothing be purchased?

Volunteers will take the families shopping either through the J.C. Penney catalog store in Oakland or at the Ames in Frostburg. The children, with the help of their parents, may select their own new coats, hats, sweaters, jeans, long johns, boots, or other needed winter items, spending up to $80 per child. Bobby Andersen and Bobbie Henderson, along with members of the Civic Club of Oakland, are coordinating the Penney's volunteers. Lisa Broadwater, the office manager of the newspaper's Grantsville location, is coordinating those who will shop at Ames.

How can I help?

We need two things: volunteers and donations. To volunteer as a shopper at Penney's, please call Bobby Andersen at 301-334-4459. To volunteer as a shopper at Ames, please call Lisa Broadwater at 301-895-5827 or 301-746-8223. For general information, you may call Mary McEwen, program coordinator, at 301-334-3963.

To make a donation, please complete the coupon below, cut it out, and mail it along with your tax-deductible contribution to the address noted. All checks should be made out to Warm the Children Fund. Please make your donations before Nov. 30, 2000. Those collected after Nov. 30 will be saved for next year.

Antiques

by Ralph and Terry Kovel

Bigger has become better again in furniture. The oversized, high-ceilinged rooms of modern homes need large, tall pieces of furniture.

One of the Victorian shapes that is back in demand among collectors is the tall, carved sideboard. It was once the most important piece in a well-furnished dining room. In the mid-19th century, each room had a special purpose, and that purpose was indicated by the type of furniture used. The sideboard was an obvious, impressive symbol of dining.

The most popular style had three-dimensional, carved embellishments that represented the food of the day. Fruits, vegetables, nuts, grains, and dead rabbits, deer, fish and birds were popular — so were guns, hunting trophies and allegorical figures.

The design originated in Europe. Pieces made in the United States copied European ideas, and the carvings were executed by immigrant carvers from Germany or France. The sideboard served as a serving table, a storage unit for silverware and dishes, a sign of wealth and an indication of the types of food that would be served. Today these large pieces sell from $2,000 to $20,000 each.

Q. My grandfather has an old tin toy showing a woman dancing. It is marked "Marque Deposee, F.M." We want to know where it was made and when, because we think it is a family heirloom.

A. If your family came from France, the toy might have come with them. It was made by the Fernand Martin toy works. It was a famous French toy firm working in Paris from 1878 to 1912. The company made inexpensive, hand-painted, mechanical tin toys.

Attention and patience will help houstrain Yorkie

Q. I have an 11-month-old Yorkie mix. I've been trying to houstrain her ever since I brought her home at six months. My carpets are getting ruined! Could it be because she has to spend eight hours in a kennel each day? — Jo Ann K., via e-mail

A. The problem could very well be the amount of time she spends in the kennel crate.

Yorkies are normally very good-natured, easy-to-train dogs. But your puppy — and she is still a puppy — probably does not enjoy all those hours alone.

Eight hours in a crate is a long time to spend for a dog of any age.

Soiling the carpet is often a dog's primary way of communicating how unhappy he or she is. Punishing her will accomplish nothing, because she knows of no other way to get your undivided attention.

Take your Yorkie to the vet to rule out any medical condition. Then, test your kennel theory.

Reduce the amount of time she spends in the crate to four hours maximum, and strive for consistency in her training. If you cannot come home at lunchtime to let her out, have a friend do it. Play with your puppy for an hour before putting her back in. Take her outside immediately, every time you let her out, to reinforce her houstraining. And do not put her in the crate to punish her! She needs to see the kennel crate as a cozy home, not a cell.

Time, patience and love do amazing things for animals and owners alike. Give your puppy lots of playtime, lots of potty trips, and lots of attention, and see where she is in three months.

Strange BUT TRUE

By Samantha Weaver

• While waiting in eager anticipation for Thanksgiving dinner, I imagine that most of you heard a rumbling sound coming from your stomach. I bet you didn't know, though, that there's a name for that intestinal cacophony — it's "borborygmus."

• All spiders are venomous — even the harmless-seeming daddy longlegs. Fortunately, the fangs of the daddy longlegs are so small that they can't penetrate human skin.

• One of the greatest American novels, Herman Melville's "Moby-Dick," has sold millions of copies and is widely regarded as a masterpiece. It wasn't always so favorably regarded, however; for the first 36 years after its publication in 1850, it sold only 3,797 copies. Respected critics of the time called it, "so much trash belonging to the worst school of Bedlam literature" and "an ill compounded mixture of romance and matter of fact."

• The English word "window" has rather poetic origins. It derives from two Scandinavian words, "vindr" and "auga," which mean "wind's eye."

• I think we can all agree that air conditioning is a great boon to modern society. After all, the popular tourist attractions in Central Florida wouldn't exist without it; Central and South Florida were very sparsely populated until air conditioning was introduced there. It isn't a modern concept, though; in 2000 B.C., a wealthy Babylonian merchant created the first air-conditioning system. At sundown, he had servants spray water on the walls and floor of his bedroom. Rapid evaporation due to the air's low humidity, combined with the natural nighttime drop in temperature, succeeded in providing the wealthy merchant significant relief from the heat.

• For almost a thousand years, the most desired characteristic in a Chinese woman was a tiny foot — really tiny. The ideal foot would be four inches long and two inches wide, and having feet this size made it impossible for a woman to walk without assistance. A girl with really tiny feet, though, could command quite a high dowry from a prospective husband.

to have supported this local youth program for the last 30 years," stated William B. Grant, First United's chief executive officer. "We understand the importance of youth programs such as 4-H, and we will continue our commitment to youth activities in the communities we serve." Sherrard said, "The generous support of First United over the years has allowed us to reach many young people. The proceeds from this raffle fund our Achievement Night program, the purchase of teaching materials, and scholarships for camp and other 4-H events." The top-selling 4-H members were: David Smearman, Snowy Creek, 231; Allison Malone, Finzel, 192; Becky Berkebile, Oak Hill, 180; Jessica Beal, Finzel, 132; and Rachel Schmidt, North Star, 116. Top-selling clubs were: Finzel, 549; Oak Hill, 510; Snowy Creek, 462; North Star, 405; and North Glade, 342.

JEFFERSON COUNTY

Numerous Drug Cases Heard In District Court

The docket of recent Garrett County District Court proceedings included a preponderance of cases involving marijuana-related offenses. Traffic stops with subsequent vehicle searches that uncovered marijuana carried either in a vehicle or on a suspect accounted for the vast majority of the charges. Judge Ralph Burnett presided at each of the hearings.

Russell William Frazier, 25, Towson, and Stephanie Ann Blades, 19, Parkville, both pleaded guilty to possession of marijuana, and each was handed a probation before judgment (PBJ). The pair were arrested at the same time after a July traffic stop along Interstate 68 by Maryland State Police troopers, who subsequently recovered a bag of marijuana and a pipe containing burnt marijuana residue from their vehicle.

Both Frazier and Blades were also fined $200 apiece, placed on six months of unsupervised probation, and ordered to complete 40 hours of community service.

Marlene Esther Wilburn, 22, Hagerstown, pleaded guilty to marijuana possession and was handed a PBJ, a 30-day suspended sentence, all but two days of which was suspended, a $200 fine, one year of supervised probation, and 60 hours of community service. A bag of marijuana and a smoking pipe were found in her pocket at the time of her July arrest by state troopers on a Washington County warrant.

Amber Michelle Ferri, 22, Morgantown, W.Va., pleaded guilty to marijuana possession and was handed a PBJ, along with a 30-day sentence, all but one day of which was suspended, a $200 fine, six months' unsupervised probation, and an order to complete 40 hours of community service. She was arrested in May after Garrett County sheriff's deputies located marijuana in her car following a traffic stop along Deep Creek Drive.

Christy Jo Holipsky, 25, Masontown, W.Va., pleaded guilty to driving while under the influence of alcohol and/or drugs (DUI) that stemmed from her arrest during the same traffic stop which drew Ferri's drug charge. The driver of the vehicle, Holipsky was handed a PBJ, a 30-day suspended sentence, fined $300, placed on one year of unsupervised probation, and ordered to complete 40 hours of community service for the DUI offense.

Additional charges faced by Holipsky of marijuana possession and misdemeanor theft (for placing a long-distance call from the cell phone of a police cruiser without permission) were not prosecuted by the state's attorney's office.

John Edward Loewendick, 36, Cumberland, pleaded guilty to driving while intoxicated (DWI) and was handed a PBJ, a $305 fine, and one year of supervised probation, while an additional charge of marijuana possession was placed onto the stet docket. Visiting judge Paul Stakem handed down the sentence.

Loewendick's August arrest by state troopers came the night he was apprehended looking into cars parked at Kyle's Towing in the Frostburg area of Garrett County. He had driven a van on National Highway into the parking lot while

M&T BANK MAKES DONATION TO HOSPITAL FOUNDATION — M&T Bank recently renewed its membership in the George Loar Circle with a donation of $1,000 to the Garrett County Memorial Hospital Foundation. Members of the George Loar Circle support local healthcare with annual contributions of $1,000 to the hospital's foundation. Donations to the foundation are used to assist in funding equipment and capital needs at the hospital. he was intoxicated, and a vehicle search following his DWI arrest uncovered a bag of marijuana and a beer can that had been modified for smoking purposes. An additional charge of possession of drug paraphernalia was not prosecuted.

ed guilty to marijuana possession and was handed a PBJ by Judge Burnett, as well as a 30-day sentence, 29 days of which was suspended, a $100 fine, six months of unsupervised probation, and an order to complete 40 hours of community service. He was arrested after a December traffic stop by state troopers along Garrett Highway at Waterwheel Road, when marijuana was recovered from his sock and rolling papers were found in his pocket. An additional charge of possession of drug paraphernalia was not prosecuted.

James Michael Denoon,

24, Poolesville, pleaded guilty to marijuana possession and was handed a PBJ, along with a 30-day suspended sentence, a $255 fine, six months of unsupervised probation, and an order to complete 40 hours of community service. State troopers arrested Denoon in September after a traffic stop along I-68, when a vehicle search uncovered two bags of marijuana, a marijuana cigarette, and a pack of rolling papers. An additional charge of drug paraphernalia possession was not prosecuted.

Kenneth Lee Perrin Jr.,

20, Frostburg, pleaded guilty to possession of marijuana and was handed a PBJ, along with a 30-day suspended sentence, a $200 fine, one year of supervised probation, and an order to complete 40 hours of community service. His September arrest by state troopers came after a traffic stop along I-68, when an ensuing vehicle search uncovered a bag of marijuana and rolling papers.

Rodney David Crall, 31, Salineville, Ohio, pleaded guilty to marijuana possession and was handed a PBJ, a suspended sentence of 30 days' duration, a $100 fine, six months of unsupervised probation, and 40 hours of community service. Crall was the passenger in a car that was stopped along I-68 by state troopers, who subsequently located a bag of marijuana and a smoking pipe in his pocket.

Jack Allan Glotfelty, 38, Gorman, W.Va., pleaded guilty to violating an ex parte order and was handed a 60-day suspended sentence, fined $355, placed on one year of unsupervised probation, and ordered to

Human/Wildlife Conflicts Task Force Created

In response to concerns raised by Maryland citizens and state legislators, the Maryland Department of Natural Resources (DNR) has established the first-ever statewide task force to recommend appropriate non-lethal methods of resolving human/wildlife conflicts.

The task force is the result of an agreement between DNR and state Del. Sharon M. Grosfeld. The 16-member task force includes representatives of DNR, the House of Delegates and the Senate, the Fund for Animals, the Humane Society of the United States, the American Bird Conservancy, the Maryland Sportsmen's Association, the United States Department of Agriculture, the Maryland Wildlife Advisory Commission, the Maryland National Capital Park and Planning Commission, the University of Maryland's College of Agriculture and Natural Resources, a state veterinarian, and four members from the general public.

"There is a wide range of expertise on this task force, which will benefit Maryland citizens by evaluating and recommending appropriate long-term, effective, and humane solutions to our conflicts with wildlife species," said Steven J. Kanstoroom, chair of the new task force. "Maryland citizens should be proud that this is a real attempt to include diverse interests in a statewide, programmatic effort to resolve human/wildlife conflicts."

The task force will solicit the input of Maryland residents, examine issues of public health and safety as they relate to wildlife conflicts, assess scientific documentation of the effectiveness of various techniques to resolve wildlife conflicts, and make recommendations for funding and implementing non-lethal wildlife management initiatives. The task force is likely to address conflicts with deer, bear, beavers, Canada geese, mute swans, and other species, and will submit a final report to the governor and the General Assembly

by Leah Biser

The November meeting was held. Dues were collected.

We are going to have a Christmas dinner on December 12 at 6 p.m.

Our guest speaker was Sharon Cnster and she talked about nutrition.

We elected our officers, who are the following: Leah Biser, president; Megan Margioli, vice president; Michelle Bender, secretary; Beth Long, treasurer; Rachel Margioli, photographer; and Michael Bender, reporter.

Michael Bender did a demonstration about his lamb. Rachel Margioli did a demonstration on how to groom a horse. Tony Bender did a demonstration about his heifer. Michelle Bender did a demonstration on her projects, and so did Jesse Biser.

Alice Long brought hot chocolate and nachos with cheese.

Notes from Bittinger

by Joan Sussman

Seems like one minute it was like late summer, warmish, fields of green grass, leaves on trees that whispered in the breeze. The next thing, almost no leaves on the trees but just a few that rustle in the wind. However, now this is not a breeze, but a really cold wind. Friday evening on the way to the 4-H buckwheat dinner at the fire hall, which is always among the top meal events this season, it felt like the nice weather is rolled up and now it means winter. That night you could really tell it was winter, as Patty and Steve Diehlmann and I rushed into the fire hall in blowing snow and a raw wind against your face. It felt like a windchill temperature of about zero degrees. The fire hall was filled up with hungry people who love those old-fashioned buckwheat cakes with real maple syrup, and sausage made from a 4-H hog sold at the fair and then donated to the Bittinger 4-H Club.

Ruth DiPaolo used the assembly of hungry people to sell some Hospice raffle tickets. Hospice received quite a few donations from the fair sale and will be giving away 12 opportunities to win a prize of frozen meat. I'm sure Ruth would like to sell you a ticket before the drawing to take place on December 2.

"Pop-Pop" George Farmer paid her daughter, Marci Giotfelty, and family, a visit last week. But as soon as he spotted those white flakes of snow he packed up and hit the road back to Baltimore. The Giotfelty family will spend Thanksgiving with her family in Berkeley Springs, W.Va. The Bass family members plan to also head south, in their case, to visit Kevin's parents, Bill and Barbara Bass, in Anderson, S.C.

As I looked out the window the other day, there was a closely packed line of barn swallows on our telephone line. They were still there the following morning, but now they will be on their way to sunny South America. I wonder what their home is like there. Is it at a farm? Or maybe a village? In what country? What languages do they hear?

This Sunday, Nov. 19, is my Caitlin's 12th year birthday, and the birthday also of her father, Lloyd. Caitlin was entertained, along with a group of friends, on Saturday night as they saw the movie Charlie's Angels, and then to Smiley's for pizza and games. Then Caitlin was honored with a family dinner and party at her "Gram's" (Ruth's) home. I am so excited about her birthday present from me, which is a dozen little figures dressed in period costumes made of bits of weeds, autumn dry flowers, grass, milkweed pods, etc. The Giotfelty kids, led by Blakely, compiled a notebook with recipes from family members, including Caitlin's aunts, great-aunts, grandmother, and great-grandmothers. They even gave her a nice, shiny new electric mixer especially for her cookies. Today she will try one of my favorite recipes for dumplings, based on annual Christmas card mass picture — all 10 grandchildren with her in one shot. That was always quite a chore when we were a little bunch of toddlers and babies, trying to keep all of us quiet and presentable. But they did promise to be at the Thanksgiving service on Tuesday night and get together for a picture then.

The Republican recently forwarded to me a fan mail letter from a friend of Hollywood's Ted O'Brien, who lives in San Diego. Ted prefers the warmer weather in California over our winter weather. But who knows? He may show up again in Garrett County next summer.

Terne Beachy paid a surprise visit to me last week to exchange birthday greetings. She gave us a big batch of raisin cookies and a loaf of banana bread. She also brought a bag of "little goodies" for the girls. In exchange I gave her a hand-painted card.

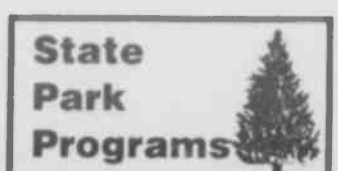

Michelle Geis, a student at Virginia Tech, is home for the Thanksgiving holidays and visiting her parents, Sam and Ellen Housley.

We are happy to hear of Northern's football team winning its first play-off game down east. They will play again on Saturday. Good luck to our team.

Joyce Brennenman underwent heart surgery last week at Monongalia General Hospital in Morgantown. She seems to be improving and will soon be back at her home in Bittinger.

This is about all the news for this week, as our deadline for news is on Monday, which means I probably will not get the Beachy family news. All is pretty quiet, as most of the Steelers fans are watching their ball game.

DEEP CREEK LAKE

The following activities have been scheduled at Deep Creek Lake State Park for this weekend, Saturday and Sunday, Nov. 25 and 26. All programs will take place at or depart from the park's Discovery Center.

Further information can be obtained by calling the center at 301-387-7067.

Thirty-minute horse-drawn hayrides will be offered by Broken Bar Stables on Saturday at 11 a.m., noon, 1, 2, and 3 p.m., and on Sunday at 11 a.m., noon, 1, and 2 p.m.

Saturday's slate gets underway with a presentation titled "Snakes Alive" at 1 p.m., which will be followed by a showing of Evewitness Insects at 2 p.m. A children's nature craft activity is slated for 3 p.m.

Sunday's activities will begin with a program titled "Amazing Animals" at 1 p.m. Great Escapes will be shown at 2 p.m. A children's nature craft activity is scheduled for 3 p.m.

Garrett CC Sets Several Special Interest Courses

For persons who desire to pursue a creative interest, a number of special interest courses in art, music, theater and writing have been scheduled at Garrett Community College during spring semester. These courses will begin the week of January 22 and are now open for enrollment.

Four studio art courses will be taught by art professor Ron Skidmore. Basic Design II, a course in the art of three dimensional design that includes sculptural process in various media, is scheduled for Tuesday and Thursday afternoons from 3 to 4:30 p.m. Drawing I (ART 201), which is scheduled Mondays and Wednesdays from 1:20 to 2:50 p.m., explores various media approaches to freehand drawing. Painting I (ART 206), is for Monday and Wednesday evenings from 5 to 6:30 p.m., includes instruction and experimentation in various stylistic approaches to oil painting. Ceramics II (ART 247) will meet Tuesday evenings from 6:35 to 9:35 p.m. and will cover advanced methods in creating pottery and sculptural forms through hand building and throwing.

Visual Imagery (ART 115), a course that provides experience in art techniques and teaching methods for early childhood education majors, will be taught by Marne Hornum on Fridays from 10 a.m. to 1 p.m.

Two instrumental music courses are scheduled during spring semester. Pipes and Drums (MUS 119), a course where students learn to play the Scottish bagpipe, will be taught by retired judge Fred Thayer and Rev. John Grant at St. John's Episcopal Church in Deer Park on Wednesday evenings from 7 to 9 p.m. Persons who play a musical instrument may join the Garrett Community Band for Tuesday evening sessions that will meet from 7 to 9 p.m. in the GCC auditorium. Jerry McGee conducts the band, and students who so desire may register for this session as a one credit course.

For persons who enjoy writing, journalism and creative writing will be offered during the spring semester. Journalism 101 will be taught by Jack DuBose on Mondays and Wednesdays from 11:45 a.m. to 1:15 p.m. Students will develop skills

NRCS Obtains Funds For Md. Conservation Projects

David P. Doss, state conservationist for the U.S. Department of Agriculture's (USDA) Natural Resources Conservation Service (NRCS), has announced federal funding of approximately $3.5 million to support conservation work throughout Maryland and watershed projects in western Maryland. The FY2001 budget for NRCS in Maryland includes significant funds that will improve conservation of Maryland's natural resources and help Maryland's landowners minimize watershed damages caused by flooding in western Maryland," Doss said.

Under the 1996 Farm Bill, NRCS Maryland has been allocated almost $2 million in its FY2001 budget to provide financial cost-share assistance to landowners and communities installing conservation best management practices. The Environmental Quality Incentives Program (EQIP) was funded at $1.5 million, the Wetland Reserve Program (WRP) received $400,000, and the Forestry Incentives Program (FIP) was allocated $62,000.

"These farm bill programs help landowners defray the cost of the conservation practices while at the same time improving water quality and reducing soil erosion," said Doss. "NRCS assists Maryland's landowners in determining the best and most beneficial conservation practices through a locally led conservation process."

The EQIP funds conservation practices like nutrient management, rotational grazing, and conservation tillage that improve water quality and animal waste management systems. The WRP provides cost-share payments to purchase conservation easements for landowners that restore wetlands that had been previously drained for agricultural use.

The FIP assists landowners in supporting good forest management practices on privately owned, non-industrial forest lands and helps meet future demands for wood products.

In non-farm bill program funding, Congress allocated $1,505,300 to NRCS Maryland for restoration projects that will directly benefit Maryland residents living in the Dry Run Watershed in Allegany County and the Linganore Creek Watershed in Frederick County. These projects were funded under Public Law 566, known as the Watershed and Flood Prevention Act. This federal program assists federal, state, and local agencies in protecting watersheds from damage caused by erosion, floodwater, and sediment and to conserve and develop water and land resources.

In Allegany County's Dry Run Watershed, specifically the Bowman's Addition community, floodplain restoration will include purchasing property within the floodplain, planting trees, and restoring streambanks to better withstand heavy rain and flood conditions.

In Frederick County's Linganore Creek Watershed, funds will be used to provide landowners with cost-share assistance for agricultural best management practices, like nutrient management, improved animal waste management systems, and rotational grazing. An ongoing watershed project, this rural area has many dairy and row-crop farms.

Restoring watershed structures and managing natural resources to prevent recurrent flooding and erosion damage is a challenge that many western Maryland communities have experienced over the past few years," said Doss. "USDA's voluntary conservation programs, which are managed by NRCS, play a key role in addressing the issues affecting the health of Maryland's natural resources. NRCS's professional conservation employees work with local Soil Conservation Districts to provide technical assistance to landowners and communities."

"NRCS has expanded its conservation efforts beyond curbing soil erosion to include farmland protection, improving water quality, restoring wetlands, protecting soil productivity, managing livestock manure, enhancing fish and wildlife habitat, and promoting conservation in Maryland's cities and communities," said Doss.

NRCS is USDA's lead conservation agency and has worked hand in hand with farmers and landowners for more than 60 years to conserve natural resources on private lands. Maryland's landowners can learn more about conserving natural resources by contacting NRCS Maryland through USDA Service Centers collocated with their county's soil conservation districts or by visiting the NRCS Maryland homepage at www.md.nrcs.usda.gov.

Maryland Corn & Soybean Harvest Coming To A Close

Maryland received moisture in some areas on Tuesday, Thursday, and Friday of last week, according to Ray Garibay, Maryland ag statistician. However, he said the clearer weather for the rest of the week allowed for 5.7

days suitable for field work. Farmers took advantage of these days to continue harvesting their corn and soybean crop. Small grain planting also continued, although more rain is needed to help these crops progress.

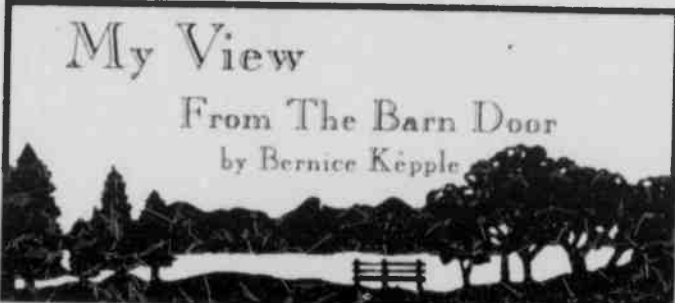

Harvesting activities have increased, but Garibay reports they are still running slightly behind schedule. Corn is 91% harvested for grain, which is 3 percentage points behind the five-year average. Soybean harvest is 79% complete, running 1 percentage point behind the five-year average.

Soil moisture levels are maintaining adequate ratings in most areas. Topsoil moisture rating was 4% very short, 32% short, and 64% adequate. Subsoil moisture rating was 5% very short, 21% short, and 74% adequate.

"Over the river and through the woods to Grandmother's house we go. The horse knows the way to carry the sleigh through the white and drifted snow."

The words in this old holiday song tell a tale of drifted snow, pumpkin pies, and a family on its way to visit Grandmother for Thanksgiving. Tomorrow most of us will have some pumpkin pie, we certainly have the snow, and hopefully, most of us will be able to spend the holiday with those we love.

Being with those we love on holidays is the most important part of this equation, but if that's not possible, Thanksgiving easily brings back memories of when it was.

As a young family with tiny children we went to Grandma's and Grandpa's house for Thanksgiving. Usually both sets of grandparents were visited, a noon meal with one and an evening meal with the other. The children were all dressed up, and usually Grandpa gave the smallest child, usually sitting in a highchair at the table, the biggest turkey drumstick.

I call Thanksgiving an honest holiday. We look around us and give thanks for where we are in life and what we have accomplished, and these are our gifts. There is no commercial gift giving involved. Excited children are going to Grandma's to visit Grandma, not to see what the Easter bunny or Santa left for them at her house. And, coming in the middle of the week, there's a vacation from school and even adults get a day off work. What could be better?

Since those days when our family was young, we've moved away from Grandma's house, one of our grown children lives in New Mexico, and it's just not possible to get the whole family together each year for Thanksgiving anymore. Last year we did, and it was extraordinary. This year those family members who can't be with us will be in our thoughts. Not exactly the way we'd like it, but it's the next best thing. We're thankful that we can keep in touch with them, send them our love, and wish them a happy holiday.

I'd like to take this opportunity to wish all of you reading this the same, lots of love and a very happy holiday. Happy Thanksgiving to you all.

Slate of Nominees Completed for FSA Committee Election

The Preston County FSA Committee has completed the slate of nominees for Local Administrative Area (LAA) 3 (Lyon, Reno, and Union districts). The slate consists of Linda Blakeley, Dayton Bolyard, Wade Harsh, and Edward Utterback.

Election ballots will be mailed to all known, eligible voters in LAA 3 no later than Friday, Nov. 24. For a ballot to be considered valid, farmers are reminded to vote for only ONE candidate. Ballots must be returned to the FSA office or postmarked no later than Mon., Dec. 4. Ballots will be tabulated on Wed., Dec. 6, in the USDA Service Center at 10 a.m. This meeting is open to the public.

The candidate receiving the most votes will be elected to the county FSA committee. The candidate receiving the second most votes will be the first alternate to the county committee and chairperson of the community committee. The candidate receiving the third most votes will be the second alternate to the county committee and vice chairperson of the community committee. The remaining candidate will be the regular member on the community committee.

The duties of the county committee include informing farmers of the purpose of FSA programs, keeping the state FSA committee informed of local conditions, recommending needed changes in FSA programs, participating in county meetings as necessary, and performing other duties as assigned by the state committee.

The Preston County FSA Committee encourages all eligible voters, including under-represented groups to participate in this year's FSA Committee election.

Producers who believe they are eligible to vote and did not receive an election ballot, or simply have questions regarding the election, may telephone the Preston County FSA office at 304 329 1923. Producers may visit the office, which is located in the USDA Service Center at 300 Tunnelton Street in Kingwood.

Be Extra Careful in Herd Expansion
It seems that a common phrase among the dairy managers is, "We need to be milking more cows." What's behind this move to add more milking cows to the herd? I'm sure there are many factors that contribute to this line of thought. However, in our area I believe the main reason is the need to generate more cash flow in the business. Fixed costs remain fairly constant or in most instances increase. Over the years the most costly variable expense has been feed. With the low milk prices and cheap feed costs there may very well be a need to increase the total milk produced on the farm and increase cow output to meet the financial obligations of the business.

Bringing new cows into the herd can be very risky. The first step in purchasing new animals is to make sure they are coming from a herd that has low disease problem. I would recommend that all new animals be screened for John's, BVD, and leukosis before purchasing. Another easy way to bring problems into your herd is to purchase cows carrying contagious mastitis such as Staph. aureus, Strep. ag and Mycoplasma. I would strongly suggest that milk samples be taken from each individual animal and have the sample cultured.

Last, but not least, be sure you isolate new cattle from your present herd. The new animals should be isolated for at least 3 weeks. Don't take a chance on diseases eating into your pocketbook.

complete 40 hours of community service. Sheriff's deputies arrested Grotfely last month after he broke a window to enter his estranged wife's residence while she wasn't at home, then called her from there using her telephone.

Jesse J. Rugg, 36, Confluence, Pa., pleaded guilty to second degree assault and was handed a PBJ, along with a 90-day suspended sentence, one year of supervised probation, and 40 hours of community service. Rugg had been arrested by state troopers in July after reportedly beating his estranged wife during a domestic altercation at her Friendsville apartment.

Stet rulings were handed to Joseph Paul Otto, 18, Friendsville, and Renee Lynn Woodside, 19, Morgantown, W.Va., both of whom faced charges of possession of marijuana and drug paraphernalia. The pair were arrested by sheriff's deputies following a traffic stop along Dave Dixon Road in the Friendsville area, when suspected marijuana and a smoking pipe were found in their vehicle. Visiting judge Stakem handed down the rulings.

Joseph Vincent DiPaula, 21, Hedgesville, W.Va., was not prosecuted on a pair of gun violations that stemmed from a September traffic stop by state troopers along I-68. As he was speaking with DiPaula, a trooper noticed a suspicious bulge along his waistline and subsequently recovered a loaded 9-mm handgun that the suspect was concealing at the time of the traffic stop. DiPaula did not possess a permit for the firearm. The resulting charges of illegally carrying a handgun on his person and in his vehicle were not prosecuted.

Robert Joseph Ramos, 35, and Skylar Owen Saveland, 21, both of Athens, Ga., were not prosecuted on charges each faced of one count of marijuana possession and two counts of drug paraphernalia possession. The pair were arrested by state troopers in June after their vehicle was stopped along I-68, and suspected marijuana, rolling papers, and a set of small scales were found in their car.

William Foster Younger, 56, Cumberland, was not prosecuted on possession of marijuana and drug paraphernalia charges stemming from his September arrest by state troopers. Suspected marijuana and rolling papers were recovered from his car following a traffic stop along I-68.

Donald Ray Park, 40, Oakland, was not prosecuted on a possession of marijuana charge that stemmed from his August arrest by Judge Burnett handed a stet ruling to Allan Mark Bensimon, 45, Rockville, in regard to charges of possession of marijuana and drug paraphernalia. His August arrest by sheriff's deputies followed a traffic stop along Hutton Road that included the recovery of a smoking pipe bearing suspected burnt marijuana residue.

Steven Michael Hammerbacher, 18, Midlothian, was handed a stet ruling on charges of trespassing and disorderly conduct. He had been arrested in July when a sheriff's deputy apprehended him trespassing in the parking lot of the Grantsville First United Bank after have been previously warned not to do so. The deputy reported that Hammerbacher used loud profanity within earshot of passerby as he was being arrested.

George David Moore, 23, Oakland, was handed a stet ruling by Judge Stakem in connection with a second degree assault charge. His September arrest by sheriff's deputies came after a reported domestic altercation at his residence. An intoxicated Moore reportedly hit and kicked his suspected victim and destroyed several items in the apartment. Judge Stakem handed down the ruling.

Joseph Vincent DiPaula, 21, Hedgesville, W.Va., was not prosecuted on a pair of gun violations that stemmed from a September traffic stop by state troopers along I-68. As he was speaking with DiPaula, a trooper noticed a suspicious bulge along his waistline and subsequently recovered a loaded 9-mm handgun that the suspect was concealing at the time of the traffic stop. Donald Ray Park, 40, Oakland, was not prosecuted on a possession of marijuana charge that stemmed from his August arrest by

Donald Eugene Blair, 47, Ridgeville, S.C., was not prosecuted on charges of marijuana and drug possession that stemmed from his September arrest by state troopers after a traffic stop along I-68. An ensuing search resulted in the recovery of a bag of suspected marijuana and rolling papers from the car.

Eric Edward Fadle, 27, Cumberland, who was a passenger in John Loewendick's van when Loewendick was arrested (see above), was not prosecuted on charges of possession of marijuana and drug paraphernalia. State troopers reportedly found bag of suspected marijuana was found in Fadle's pocket at the time of August incident.

Kimberly Joy Hinkley, 34, Friendsville, was not prosecuted on charges of unlawful taking and unauthorized use of a motor vehicle. She had been arrested by state troopers last February after taking the keys to her boyfriend's vehicle following an argument, and driving away.

Lester Martin Lewis Jr., 46, Oakland, was handed a not-guilty verdict in connection with a second degree assault charge that stemmed from a May arrest by sheriff's deputies in the wake of a reported domestic assault. Lewis was exonerated of the charge when the suspected victim refused to testify against him in court.

Donald Maitland Teagarden Jr., 37, Oakland, was handed a not-guilty verdict in connection with a second degree assault charge stemming from a report of domestic altercation. Teagarden was exonerated when the suspected victim refused to testify against him in court on the charge, which had been filed in September following his arrest by sheriff's deputies.

Brian Heenan Sherwood, 29, Kitzmiller, was handed a not-guilty verdict in connection with a second degree assault charge stemming from a suspected domestic assault. Sherwood was exonerated when the suspected victim refused to testify against him in court on the charge, which had been filed in October following his arrest sheriff's deputies.

Colin Patrick Finan, 30, Oakland, was deemed not guilty of unauthorized taking and unauthorized use of a motor vehicle.

James Michael Stanton, 19, Oakland, was deemed not guilty and cleared of a second degree assault charge.

DWI Arrests

Several driving while intoxicated (DWI) and driving while under the influence (DUI) cases were heard in district court recently by judges Burnett and Stakem.

Eric Allan DeWitt, 31, Md., pleaded guilty to DUI and was fined $400, handed a six-month sentence, five months of which was suspended, and placed on two years' supervised probation by Judge Burnett.

Chad Everett Fike, 27, Md., pleaded guilty to DUI and was fined $555, handed a 60-day sentence, half of which was suspended, and was placed on two years' supervised probation.

Gerri Jondina Powell, 43, Md., pleaded guilty to DUI and was fined $500, handed a 60-day suspended sentence, and place on two years of supervised probation.

Catherine Marie Biser, 43, Md., pleaded guilty to DUI and was fined $455, handed a 30-day suspended sentence, placed on one year of supervised probation, and ordered to complete 60 hours of community service.

Jason Everett Vansickle, 23, Md., pleaded guilty to DUI and was handed a PBJ, a $355 fine, a 30-day suspended sentence, one year of unsupervised probation, and 40 days of community service.

Christopher Allen Vandivner, 35, Pa., pleaded guilty to DUI and was handed a PBJ, a $355 fine, a 30-day suspended sentence, and one year of unsupervised probation.

Gary Michael Stewart, 45, W.Va., pleaded guilty to DUI and was handed a PBJ by Judge Stakem, who also imposed a $305 fine and 18 months of supervised probation.

Peter L. Grycko, 46, Ohio, pleaded guilty to DUI and was handed a PBJ a $305 fine, and one year of supervised probation.

William Wayne Switzer, 29, and Matthew Lee Paugh, 22, both Maryland residents, were found by Judge Burnett to be in violation of DWI probation. Their respective probation agreements were revoked, and each was handed a 30-day jail term.

Several individuals were not prosecuted on respective DWI charges. They were: Jason Scott Paugh, 24, David Lee Kitzmiller, 39, Jesse Andrew Patton, 23, Russell Curtis Merrbach, 44, and Jeffrey Scott Jenkins, age not available, all of Maryland; and Lisa Lynn Carraway, 37, Va.

Jason Everett Vansickle, 23, Md., pleaded guilty to GCMH SUB-ACUTE UNIT HOLDS REUNION — The Garrett County Memorial Hospital Sub-Acute Unit recently held its second annual patient reunion. The Sub-Acute Unit at GCMH opened in 1997 and has helped hundreds of patients who are too ill to return home or need additional short-term treatment or therapy, but not ill enough to remain in an acute hospital setting. The hospital's president/CEO, Donald P. Battilana, is shown above greeting some of the sub-acute "alumni," including: Mildred Toth, Homer Knotte, Helen Knotte, and Willard Feather.

Increasing Awareness Of Alzheimer's Disease

November was designated National Alzheimer's Disease Awareness Month by Congress and President Ronald Reagan in 1983. It was also in November, 11 years later, that President Reagan disclosed to the American public that he had become another victim of Alzheimer's disease. The purposes for commemorating this month, according to the Alzheimer's Association, are as follows:

- To enhance the understanding of Alzheimer's disease by sharing the stories of people who are affected by the disease.
- To increase awareness of the help that is available to these people whose lives are touched by Alzheimer's disease, as well as to the health providers who help care for them — in the home, in adult day centers, and in residential care facilities.
- To generate support both for organizations that help people affected by Alzheimer's disease and for research into the cause, treatment, cure, and eventually the prevention of this devastating disease.

Volunteer Van Drivers Needed

Volunteers are needed to drive the 17-passenger van provided by the Veterans Administration to transport patients for medical appointments. The van, based in Oakland, would operate during business hours to take veterans to medical facilities in Clarksburg and Parsons, W.Va.

"This is a free service for veterans to help them get the health care they need," said Howard Gerard, local project coordinator. For more information about this service, persons may call 301-334-8826 or 301-334-1683.

Right Step Center To Serve Dinner On Thanksgiving

Mental health consumers are invited to spend Thanksgiving day at the Right Step Drop-In Center, which will be open on Thursday, Nov. 23, 2-5 p.m. A turkey dinner with "all the trimmings" will be served, and visitors will have the opportunity to socialize.

The Right Step center is located at 426 Weber Road, Oakland, in the Midway Plaza. Transportation is available for those making arrangements in advance. For more information, call 301-334-4630.

Maryland Faces New Shot Shortage, But Officials Foresee Few Problems

by Barbara Barnham
Capital News Service
WASHINGTON — After grappling with an early season flu vaccine shortage, Maryland health officials now face a shortage of the adult tetanus and diphtheria toxoid shot, even though supplies are currently in good shape.

The federal Centers for Disease Control and Prevention reported last Thursday that a temporary shortage of adult tetanus and diphtheria shot could last until early 2001. That shortage will be felt in Maryland, state officials said.

"We're hoping this situation will resolve itself very quickly," said Greg Reed of the Maryland Center for Immunization.

Reed said he thinks physicians around the state have supplies at the moment, but added, "We realize we will be experiencing difficulty acquiring the vaccine in the near future."

As supplies dwindle, the state will follow guidelines issued by the CDC, which include limiting the shot to people traveling to countries where the risk for acquiring diphtheria is high.

The tetanus and diphtheria toxoid is primarily administered to adults as a means to prevent tetanus, a sometimes-deadly disease caused by a wound infection, such as when stepping on a rusty nail and breaking the skin.

The shortage should only affect adults who need a shot to protect them against tetanus after such an injury, and they can be treated with a tetanus toxoid shot if necessary, the CDC said.

The shortage could also affect those who are updating their shot, which physicians recommend adults receive boosters every 10 years, according to the CDC.

Insurers To Pay For Wigs For Cancer Patients

by Amy T. Silva
Capital News Service
Health insurers, non-profit health plans, and health maintenance organizations in Maryland are now required to pay for hair prostheses for members who have experienced hair loss as a result of cancer treatment.

Insurers will cover up to $350 of the cost of a wig prescribed by a doctor, and members will not have to pay a deductible. Maryland is only the fifth state to have such a mandate.

Pat Bruce, legislative aide to Delegate Mary A. Conroy, D-Bowie, bill sponsor, said the legislation, which "kicked around" the General Assembly for three years, would have gone through sooner except that, "the insurance companies lobbied against it."

But Susan Whyte Simon, a representative of the HMO Kaiser Permanente, said that organization did not oppose the legislation. Kaiser, like many other health insurance companies in Maryland (including CapitalCare BlueCross/BlueShield and Maryland-Individual Practice Association), did not previously cover the cost of wigs for cancer patients.

However, an Aetna U.S. Healthcare representative said the full cost of a wig has been covered with authorization from a doctor, providing that an employer does not exclude it from the benefits plan.

"Your survival has a lot to do with the way you feel," said Donna M. Dorsey, executive director of the Maryland Board of Nursing. Dorsey said that it makes patients feel better when they are comfortable with their self image.

Amy Cordaro, owner of Amy of Denmark in Wheaton, sells wigs mostly to clients who have lost their hair through cancer treatment. They cover a breast prosthesis, so they should cover a hair prosthesis, too," she noted.

Reed said that children over 7 who need the shot could also be affected. They are required to get the shot, according to immunization guidelines. Reed said the state will work hard to find doses to ensure that no child misses school because he or she could not obtain the shot.

The CDC blamed the shortage of tetanus shots on lower-than-expected releases by the two pharmaceutical companies that manufacture the shot, Wyeth-Lederle and Aventis Pasteur.

Reed said most vaccine shortage problems could be resolved if there were more companies available to produce vaccines. There are not enough manufacturers in the nation right now to compensate for problems at another. If Coca-Cola had trouble producing its soda, for example, people would have other soft drinks to choose from until more Coke was available, Reed said.

Len Lavenda, spokesman for Aventis Pasteur, said this year's problems were "very rare occurrences" and that he did not think there was a shortage of vaccine manufacturers.

A representative for Wyeth-Lederle did not return calls for comment.

Alzheimer's Group Schedules Meeting

The Alzheimer's Association, Western Maryland Chapter, will sponsor an evening family/caregiver support group meeting on Monday, Nov. 27, at 7 p.m. This meeting, which is free and open to the public, will be hosted by Mountain Glade Adult Day Services, Oakland.

The Alzheimer's Support Group meets the last Monday of the month. There will be no meeting in December, but sessions will resume in January and continue through June. The Oakland meeting location changes, so those wishing to attend are encouraged to call Donna McClintock at 301-334-8253.

For more information on services provided by the Alzheimer's Association, persons may call the Western Maryland Chapter at 1-800-696-6830.

REACHING OUT TO VETERANS — Recently the Department of Veterans Affairs sent the mobile health unit for the Martinsburg VA Medical Center in West Virginia to Garrett County. With Gerard is VA patient service assistant Terri Martin.

Use Of Cognitive Assessment Test Is Seminar Topic

A training program on using and interpreting the Mini-Mental State Examination (MMSE) will be conducted for western Maryland health care providers on November 30, 9-11:30 a.m. Sponsored by the Western Maryland Chapter of the Alzheimer's Association, the workshop will be held at Allegany County Health Department, Cumberland.

The training, which is designed for health professionals from all settings, will center on dementia and delirium and the proper use of the MMSE for patient evaluation. Dr. Robert L. Yuspeh, clinical and research postdoctoral fellow in the dementias of aging research program at Johns Hopkins University School of Medicine, will conduct the course.

The registration of $10 will be reduced to $8 for three or more registrants from the same facility. For more information, persons may contact the Alzheimer's Association at 1-800-696-6830.

Internet-Based Procurement System To Be Focus Of Conference At FSU

In the continuing effort to strengthen Maryland's position as a national leader in the high-tech economy, Maryland House Speaker Casper R. Taylor Jr. has invited the Department of General Services (DGS) to unveil its new Internet-based procurement system, eMaryland Marketplace, in the Lane Center at Frostburg State University on Wednesday, Nov. 29, at 10 a.m.

"eMaryland Marketplace is revolutionizing the way state buyers do business. The web site (www.emarylandmarketplace.com) is also expected to deliver significant, in-your-pocket savings for the state as well as vendors who participate," stated a DGS spokesperson.

To introduce the business community to the new on-line purchasing service, companies from Allegany and Garrett counties have been invited to send representatives to Frostburg on November 29 to attend the conference.

"eMaryland Marketplace is the first public procurement system of its kind in the country," said Taylor. "I want businesses not only in our western Maryland region, but across the state to learn how this new technology provides an efficient means to improve their access to state procurement information. It also provides greater opportunities for small businesses, secures competitive prices for the state, and enhances the efficiency and timeliness of the procurement process."

Taylor said that eMaryland Marketplace allows DGS to move forward on one of Governor Parris N. Glendening's top priorities, which is to make Maryland the national leader in delivering government services over the Internet.

Using the new e-commerce system, state purchasers can post competitive bid information on-line. Also from their computers, they can order from vendor catalogues — office products, toilet paper, and even ice melt, the spokesperson said. eMaryland Marketplace is expected to speed transactions and reduce costs for paper, postage, printing, and copying for the state and its vendors.

Participating businesses — especially small and minority businesses — will gain exposure to a larger number of opportunities. The state will benefit not only from process improvements, but also from lower prices resulting from increased competition, aggregate buying power, and greater vendor efficiencies, according to the spokesperson.

"eMaryland Marketplace levels the playing field in the purchasing arena by allowing buyers to conduct business transactions and

Swanton Center Selling Candy

The Swanton Community Center is holding its annual holiday candy sale, with homemade hard tack and peanut brittle available. The cost of the hard tack (mixed or cinnamon) is $3.25 per pound, and the cost of the peanut brittle is $3.50 per pound. Persons may order candy by telephoning 301-387-4374.

The order deadline is November 29, and pickup will be December 9.

Garrett CC Sets Several Classes In Oakland Area

To make higher education more accessible to local residents, some Garrett Community College credit courses have been scheduled at sites in the Oakland area, according to a college spokesperson. Registration is currently under way for these and other spring semester courses.

Three computer classes will meet at the computer lab in the Maryland National Guard Armory. Windows 98 (CA 114) is scheduled to meet Tuesday evenings from 6 to 9 p.m. beginning Jan. 23 and ending April 4. Paul Warnick will instruct the class. Microsoft Excell (CA 183) will be taught by Wayne Callis Monday evenings from 6 to 9 p.m. Introduction to Computer (CS 105) will meet Wednesdays from 6 to 9 p.m. Because of the limited space available in each of these computer courses, interested persons are advised to register early.

In addition to the computer classes, two other courses are scheduled to meet at the Maryland National Guard Armory. Principles of Sociology (SOC 101), taught by Michelle Evans, will meet Tuesday evenings from 5:30 to 8:30 p.m. Introduction to Communication (SPC 101), taught by Ben Sincell, will meet Tuesday and Thursday mornings from 8:30 to 10 a.m.

Two early childhood education courses are scheduled for the Mary Browning Senior Center during the spring semester, both of which will be taught by Dr. Gail Herman. Early Childhood Education I (ED 101)

LEARNING ABOUT UNITED WAY — Workers with the newly established United Way of Garrett County are meeting with local company employees to explain how they can help the local non-profit organization in its endeavor help others. Jeannette Fitzwater, vice chairperson of the local United Way, met with First United Bank & Trust staff this week to talk about the needs of the area and how United Way attends to those needs. She also told those in attendance how they can donate to the organization. Fitzwater, pictured far right, was accompanied at the information sessions by Harry King, executive director of County United Way, which includes both Allegany and Garrett County United Way groups. He is pictured next to Fitzwater. For information on how businesses can donate to the organization, persons may contact King at 301-359-9697. His e-mail address is hking@allconet.org.

will meet Tuesdays from 3:30 to 6:30 p.m., and Movement Experiences with Children (ED 104) will meet Mondays from 3:30 to 6:30 p.m.

Several one-credit physical education courses are set for the Oakland area. Advanced Bowling (PE 102) will be taught by Hugh Schrier on Tuesday afternoons from 3 to 5 p.m. at Par-Matt Lanes. Weight Training (PE 118), taught by Ann Wellham, will meet at Nautilus on an arranged basis, as will Aerobics (PE 119), which will meet at Brenda's Body Shop.

Welding (WT 135, 136, 137) will meet at Southern

High School from 6 to 10 p.m. according to the following schedule: Mondays — Fundamentals of Welding; Tuesdays — First Level Intermediate Welding; and Thursdays — Second Level Intermediate Welding. Greg Carico will be the instructor for each of those three courses.

BUILDING RELATIONSHIPS, MEMORIES — Oakland business owner Connie Trickett has been a member or team leader on six International work teams through the Volunteer In Mission program. She has reached out a helping hand to people in distant lands, including Russia and Africa. Most recently, Trickett and the VIM group from the West Virginia conference traveled to the Holy Land of Israel to contribute to continuing repairs in a land war-torn by centuries of strife. In the photo above are two small children whose lives have been caught up in the constant fighting. Their families have left behind their shops in the Old City of Jerusalem. "Poor living conditions, sick and orphaned children have not penetrated my soul as much as seeing the pain of a people who die for what they believe," Trickett said. The VIM group's work in the Holy Land consisted of lots of cleaning and scrubbing areas damaged by fire, then painting them. They picked up trash and scraped, sanded, and painted doors, window frames, metal railings, and gates. In the photo above, Trickett, Pat Boyd, and Ruth Bouley repair damage to the School and Shrine of Our Lady of Fatima and St. Theresa in Beit Sahour, Israel. While in the Holy Land the VIM workers took the opportunity to visit such memorable sites as the Walling Wall and the site of the ascension of Jesus. In the photo above, Trickett places her hand on the ascension site in the Mount of Olives Chapel of the Ascension. Standing in contrast with the strife-weary structures and

AARP Tax Aide Program Needs More Volunteers

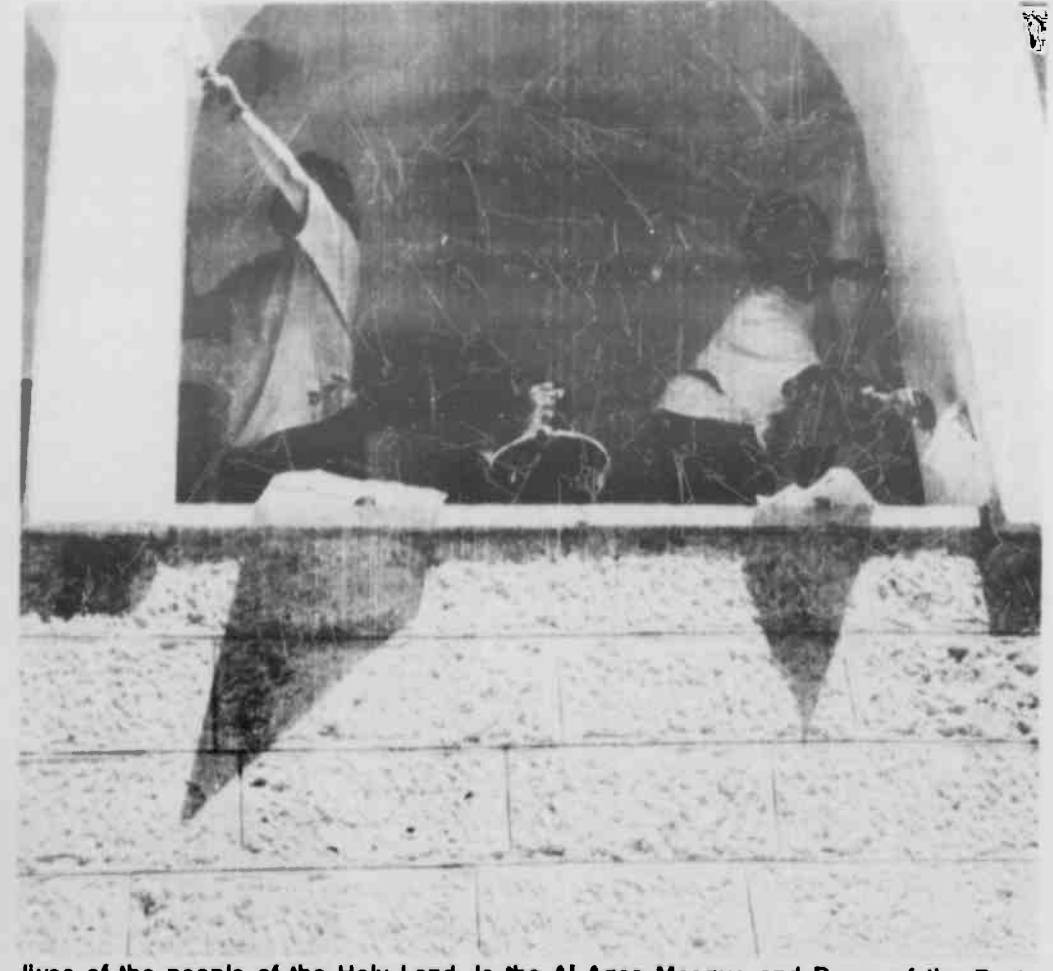

The local Tax Aide Program, sponsored by the American Association of Retired Persons (AARP) in cooperation with the Internal Revenue Service, is in need of volunteers to work in the program which offers free, confidential tax preparation assistance to all middle- and low-income taxpayers.

Volunteers will be trained in basic income tax preparation, with emphasis on issues affecting older adults. Last year, 31,000 Tax Aide volunteers assisted more than 1.6 million people with filing their personal income tax forms.

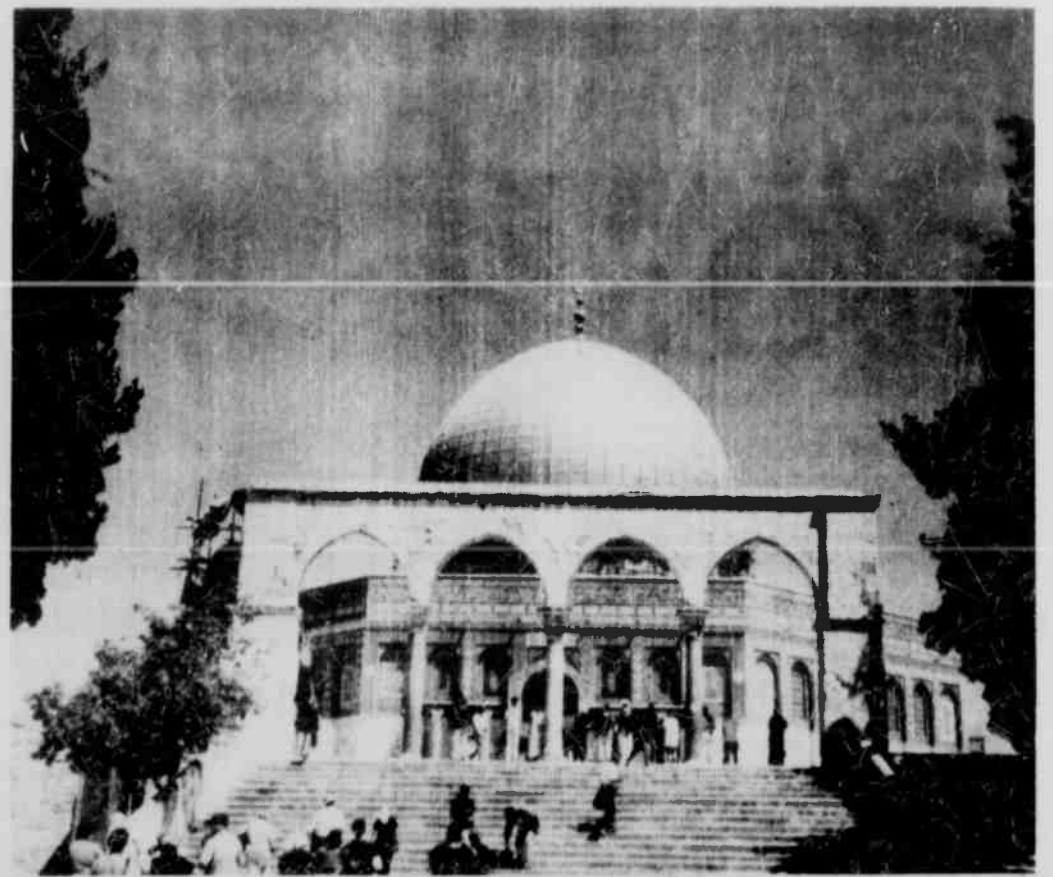

Persons interested in becoming a volunteer will be required to attend the training class, which will be held January 2-5 from 9 a.m. to 1 p.m. at the Mary Browning Senior Center in Oakland. Workbooks will be issued in December, and volunteers are asked to give at least four hours of assistance per week during the tax season, February through April 15.

For more information, persons may telephone Bob Hughes at 301-387-6670.

"The IRS estimates that as many as half of the taxpayers who do their own returns overpay because they are not aware of credits and exclusions to which they are entitled," stated an AARP spokesperson. "Our volunteers have the highest percentage of accuracy of any group passing through IRS quality review."

lives of the people of the Holy Land, is the Al Aqsa Mosque and Dome of the Rock, considered one of the most beautiful shrines in Jerusalem. This is the site where Abraham was called by God to sacrifice his son Isaac. The thought which Trickett said captures best for her the motivation for such undertakings was expressed by a coordinator of the VIM projects — "It is not the quantity or quality of work that you do, but the relationships that you build."

Tracy Calvert And Ronald Shaffer Are Married In Summer Ceremony

Tracy S. Calvert and Ronald S. Shaffer were united in marriage at the Church of the Nazarene in Terra Alta, W.Va., on July 15. Pastor Josh Lively officiated at the ceremony. The bride is the daughter of the late Everett C. and Lillian M. Knotts, formerly of Terra Alta. A 1987 graduate of East Preston High School, she is currently employed at Hopenmont State Hospital in Terra Alta. The bridegroom is a son of Donald and Betty Shaffer, Oakland, and a 1990 graduate of Southern High School. He is employed at Giotfely Enterprises, Oakland.

The bride was escorted to the altar by her brother, John Artis. The maid of honor was Angela Sybolt, friend of the bride; the bridesmaid was April Knotts, niece of the bride; and the flower girl was Larcia Calvert, daughter of the bride.

The groomsmen were Donnie Shaffer, brother of the groom, and the ring bearer was Bradley Shaffer, nephew of the groom.

A reception was held at the community building at the Terra Alta Park. The couple currently reside in Terra Alta.

Marriage Permits Recently Issued

Nine couples applied for their marriage licenses this week, according to David Martin, clerk of Garrett County Circuit Court. One couple requested that their names not be published.

BUCKWHEAT DINNER

The Bolivian mission team and Maple Spring Church of the Brethren are sponsoring a buckwheat cake and sausage dinner on Saturday, Dec. 2. Held in the Pleasant Valley Community Center, donations for the all-you-can-eat meal are $5 for adults, $3 for children 6 to 12, and those 5 and under may eat free. Serving hours are from 4 until 8 p.m., and proceeds go to supplies for the mission at Sucre, Bolivia.

PERSONAL MENTION

Visiting Nov. 10-14 with Jessie Winters at Egdon was her brother and sister-in-law, Delbert and Madeline Sims, Warren, Ohio.

Hassaleah Snyder was taken Wednesday to Preston Memorial Hospital, but returned home Thursday to Anby.

A sizeable crowd attended the Nov. 16 hearing of Megaliner's plan for a natural gas-fired turbine site for the production of electricity. The Public Service Commission, its attorney and engineers, were present to hear the presentation made by MegaEnergy's president and attorneys.

With the site selection within a short distance of Horse Shoe Run houses, there were questions of safety, noise, or other possible detrimental effects to be answered, along with showing the proposed plan and explaining its method and benefits.

Carl and Cynthia Bachtel, Adam and Mark, Horse Shoe Run, were visitors last week at Parkersburg with Cynthia's aunt and uncle, Barbara and Calvin Radcliff.

AURORA CEOS RECEIVE AWARDS

The Preston County CEOS Achievement Night was held Nov. 16 at the Memorial Building in Aurora. Aurora CEOS members attending were Delores Douglas, Kathy Hardesty, Martina Bolyard, Mary Jane Hanline, Janice Tackett, Rennie Conrad, Alize Penzo, Mary Radford, Opal Myers, Wilda Stemple, Nina Layman, and Virginia Martin. Keith Douglas and Lorain Hanline also attended.

The following awards were made to the club and to individual members: the club was awarded a Certificate of Achievement for being a Blue Ribbon Club for 1999-2000; CVH (Certified Volunteer Hours) certificates were awarded to each of the following: Rennie Conrad, Opal Myers, Dorothy Spaid, Wilda Stemple, Deloris Slawter, and Virginia Martin; a Certificate of Achievement was awarded to Delores Douglas for her individual display during CEOS Week; the club received recognition for pre-sale car tickets for the Buckwheat Festival; the scrapbook for the club won first place in the county, Virginia Martin was the compiler of the book; and Deloris Slawter designed and made the cover; Martha Bolyard was recognized as a 50-year member; new members of the club, Nina Layman and Gail Rose, were recognized; and Rennie Conrad represented the club as the club CEOS of the year. She was also recognized as the county CEOS of the year.

State President Pat Stubbs installed the county officers including Opal Myers as vice-president of the County Council and county chairman of the Marketing and Membership Committee; and Virginia Martin as the county club historian.

Slide Program On History Of Aurora Slated

The Aurora Area Historical Society has slated a slide presentation titled "Mills, Logging, Blacksmithing: Early Days in the Aurora Area," for 7 p.m. Monday, Dec. 4, at the Aurora Lutheran Church. The public program is based in part on the work of the late professor Howard P. Stemple, which details locations and proprietors of early businesses that operated in the area.

A recent meeting of the historical society included a slide program by Jake Teets and Bernard McCrum titled

ARMED SERVICES REVIEW

U.S. Army Pfc. Donald S. Rinehart has graduated from basic combat training at Fort Knox, Ky.

During the training, the trainee received instruction in drill and ceremonies, weapons, map reading, tactics, military courtesy, military justice, physical fitness, first aid, and Army history and traditions.

He is the son of Warren and Wanda Rinehart of Highway Contract Route #2, Terra Alta, and is a 2000 graduate of Preston High School, Kingwood.

U.S. Marine Corps Cpl. Jerry R. Kelly Jr., son of Patricia P. Wolfe and Jerry R. Kelly Sr. of Terra Alta, is halfway through a six-month deployment to the Mediterranean Sea and Arabian Gulf while assigned to the 26th Marine Expeditionary Unit (MEU), home based at Camp Lejeune, N.C.

During the deployment, Kelly's unit is defending U.S. policy and supporting international interests in the Middle East and Europe.

Kelly's unit visited cities in Croatia, Italy, and Spain, where Marines had the opportunity to shop, sightsee, and enjoy the local culture and cuisine. Marines also participated in community relations projects.

Kelly's unit is an expeditionary intervention force with the ability to rapidly organize for combat operations in virtually any environment. MEUs are composed of more than 2,000 personnel and are divided into an infantry battalion, aircraft squadron, support group, and command element. With this combination, Kelly's unit supplies and sustains itself for either quick mission accomplishment or clearing the way for follow-on forces.

Kelly, a 1991 graduate of Preston High School, joined the Marine Corps in June 1994.

THE NUTCRACKER will be performed by the International Ballet Theatre on Wednesday, Dec. 13, at 8 p.m. at the Church-McKee Arts Center of Potomac State College, Keyser, W.Va. Tickets for the performance, which is sponsored by Highland Arts Unlimited Inc., may be purchased at the door on the evening of the performance. Music for The Nutcracker, a ballet in two acts, was written by Peter M. Tchaikovsky in 1891. The story is based on the tale of "The Nutcracker and the Mouse King" by E.T.A. Hoffman. Lev Ivanov created the original choreography. Highland Arts Unlimited programs are funded by the West Virginia Commission on the Arts, the National Endowment for the Arts, Highland Arts memberships, Potomac State College, and the Mineral County Board of Education. For more information, persons may telephone 304-788-0111.

Area Director, Writer To Lead Theater Workshop

Western Maryland writer and theater director Penny Knobel-Besa will be the guest speaker at a free public workshop hosted by Pandora's Box Teen Health Theater at the Deep Creek Lake Discovery Center on Saturday, Dec. 2.

"This will be an interactive workshop, with the participants learning some basic and advanced theater techniques, along with various skills that they can continue to use and develop after the workshop. Themes such as life-skills building, memory, focus, characterization, movement and choreography will be touched upon, among others," Knobel-Besa said.

An Allegany County resident and former director of public relations for the Cumberland Theatre, Knobel-Besa also has experience as an independent film director and playwright. One of her children's musicals, Under Your Pillow, was produced off-Broadway in 1994.

Aside from writing and directing, Knobel-Besa is an actor who has performed in many musicals in the Baltimore-Washington area and in western Maryland. She also founded the Maryland Theater Arts Academy, where she taught dramatic arts and radio production in conjunction with WFWM Radio in Allegany County.

This will be Penny Knobel-Besa's third workshop with Pandora's Box. "I'm impressed with the work being done by the young peo-

National Report Says State Shows Mixed Progress In Women's Issues

by Riyad Mathew
Capital News Service
WASHINGTON — Maryland was among the top five states in the country when it came to women's employment and earnings, economic autonomy, and reproductive rights, according to rankings released last week by the Institute for Women's Policy Research.

But "The Status of Women in the States" also said Maryland has made little progress in the areas of women's political participation and in women's health, where it did particularly poorly compared to other states.

Despite the mixed results, state officials hailed the findings as a reflection of their "pro-active" stand on women's issues.

"Over the past several years we have been constantly trying to identify the issues that are important to women," said Carol A. Silberg, executive director of Maryland Commission for Women. "We have a strong body of women legislators who point them out and then take appropriate measures to solve them."

She noted, for example, that Maryland was one of the first states to lend money to women seeking to start a business, without insisting on a husband's signature. That equal opportunity for women means "they enjoy equal earnings, too," Silberg said.

But the director of the study said the high earnings of Maryland women are as much a result of the "high number of federal jobs" held by the women in the state.

"A lot of women in Maryland are working with either the federal or the state government," said Amy Caiazza, the study director. "These jobs, especially those with the federal government, ensure good pay equity provisions and that's a huge factor for the relatively high earnings for women in Maryland."

For many of the same reasons, the state has a relatively high level of participation by women in politics, the report said. But it chastised Maryland for not making sufficient progress on that front.

But Caiazza credited the state for its policies on women's reproductive rights.

"The state has a legislature that makes it mandatory for insurance companies to cover the cost of contraceptives. Many state have ignored this," said Caiazza. "Furthermore, Maryland does provide a lot of emphasis on providing infertility treatment and sex education. These are some really good initiatives."

Pro-choice advocates in Maryland acknowledged what they see as the positive policies adopted by the state, but they said that because Maryland also has "a fair amount of anti-choice legislators, the state still has a long way to go." Pro-life groups could not be reached Wednesday to comment on the report.

On other women's health issues, however, Maryland got a poor score — 34th in the nation — for its lack of progress.

Silberg said the state would have shown "considerable progress" in the area of women's health if the study took all the factors dealing with women's health into account.

"One of the things that the report did not take into consideration was women being killed by their partners," Silberg said. "The state has been working actively to address this problem and has been very successful in its efforts. The report has failed to take that into consideration."

Caiazza said the study did not take "that factor" into account because reliable data was not available. But she pointed out that in terms of mortality rates and other health issues relating to women, the state has shown little progress.

"The state lacks a broad-based public system that deals with women's health," Caiazza said. "For example, the mortality rate from cancer is high in the eastern portions of the state. The state has not made any substantial progress in addressing those problems."

Woodman Lodge 41 Holds Annual Awards Banquet

Woodman of the World Lodge #41, Grantsville, recently held its annual awards banquet at the Bittinger fire hall. There were 93 members in attendance to share a turkey dinner. Charles Bender was the master of ceremonies.

James Guthrie, lodge president, welcomed everyone, and invited members to attend the lodge meetings, which are held the second Monday of each month at 7 p.m. He introduced the other lodge officers. Lillian Guthrie introduced those seated at the head table, which included jurisdictional officers.

Remarks were made by new state manager Lynda Churchwell and her husband, Henri. Entertainment was provided by the Hartmans of Cumberland.

Twenty-five and 50-year pins were presented by Lillian Guthrie, lodge secretary. The Fraternal Spirit Award was presented by Maxine Guthrie to Patsy Pope, the Lifesaving Award was presented to Daniel Lasher by Janis Pope, and an award for outstanding service was presented to Charles Bender by Lillian Guthrie. Door prizes were also awarded.

Lodge 41 met Monday, Nov. 13, at the lodge hall, located along Miller Street. A flag was presented to Northern Rescue Squad personnel Danny and Brenda Durst by Lillian Guthrie. A donation will be presented to the Grantsville Library project in December.

New officers were also elected, and include: Janis Pope, president; Patsy Pope, vice president; Lillian Guthrie, secretary; Charles Bender, treasurer; Scott

The next meeting of the lodge, which will include a covered-dish meal, will be held December 11 at 6 p.m. at the lodge hall.

PUBLIC NOTICE

The Mayor and Town Council of Mountain Lake Park hereby gives notice that it will hold a public hearing on Ordinance No. 00-02, which has been introduced before the Town Council, providing for the maintenance of sidewalk and/or driveway aprons by adjoining property owners, and setting penalties therefor.

A fair summary of the Ordinance is as follows:

An ordinance of the Mayor and Town Council of Mountain Lake Park providing for the maintenance of sidewalks and driveway aprons by adjoining property owners, including the removal of snow and the repair of any defect in such sidewalk or driveway apron which could make it unsafe for public use; and providing that in the event an abutting property owner does not do such maintenance and/or repair, the mayor and town council of Mountain Lake Park can cause such maintenance and/or repair to be done and assess the cost thereof to the said property owner; and prohibiting any person from operating or permitting to be operated any motorized vehicle over or upon any sidewalk or curbing located within the town of Mountain Lake Park; and prohibiting any person from operating or using any bicycle, skates, skateboards or scooter.

Application made by Mr. Doug Fitzwater for a Special Exception permit to allow construction of an addition to his repair garage located at 109 West Second Avenue (Zoned TC).
Application made by the Loch Lynn Heights Mayor and Town Council for a Variance from the off-street parking requirements for the establishment of a Community Center in the former Loch Lynn Heights Elementary School. The Variance request is made to allow on-street parking to fulfill the parking needs of the new use (Zoned TR).

Southern High School Students Of The Month Selected

Katie Moomau, a senior, is the daughter of Henry Moomau and Mikal McCartney. She has been involved in cross country and track and field, Model United Nations, and Who's Who Among American High School Students. Katie has also participated in the Garrett County Youth Association and the Maryland General Assembly Senior Page Program, and was a French exchange student to Vannes, France. In the near future, she plans to attend James Madison University or Western Maryland College, and hopes to receive a degree in international business and contract law.

Michael Clemens, a junior, is the son of Andy and Vickie Clemens. He has received A and B honor roll status and plans to run for senior class president. He has also received the Young Authors Award, and enjoys skateboarding and football. In the future Michael plans to attend Drexel University, where he will major in architecture or engineering.

Sarah Pysell, also a junior, is the daughter of Darwin and Helen Pysell. She is involved in FFA, for which she holds the position of secretary, and VICA, and she received the Chapter Leadership Award. Sarah is also an active member of the Country Kids 4-H Club and is a 4-H member of the Garrett County Livestock Association. She is undecided as to what college she will attend, but plans to major in animal livestock science, veterinary science, and medicine, and she wishes to become a veterinarian for large animals.

Melissa Durst, a sophomore, is the daughter of Rodney and Lisa Durst. She participates in cross country, track and field, and marching band. She placed second in the recent Maryland State Cross Country Championships. She also participated in the Cancer Relay for Life and Walk for Hospice.

Kristen Rollman, also a sophomore, is the daughter of Robert and Nancy Rollman. She has participated in varsity volleyball and tennis, and has maintained distinguished honor roll status. In the future, Kristen plans to attend a four-year college and major in education.

Melody Friend, a freshman, is the daughter of Jim Friend and Annie Stemple. She is currently a JV cheerleader, and attends the Loch Lynn Church of God.

Melody is undecided as to what college she will attend, but looks forward to a future in photography and hopes to become a photo journalist.

RICA Welcome, Social Set By Local Catholics

The Rite of Christian Initiation of Adults (RICA) program of St. Peter the Apostle Catholic Church, Oakland, Immaculate Conception Catholic Church, Kitzmiller, and St. Peter at the Lake is currently forming for the year 2000-01, and a welcome and social have been scheduled for Sunday, Dec. 3, after the 9 a.m. mass at St. Peter's in Oakland.

The RICA program provides information for persons who wish to be initiated into the Christian way of life, specifically in the Roman Catholic tradition. Anyone interested in the program is invited to meet in the basement of St. Peter's at the above time for a casual hour and a half of discussion and information. Persons will not be required to make any commitments. Refreshments will be available.

Persons desiring more information about the event or the RICA program may telephone the church office of St. Peter's at 301-334-2202.

Mettiki Proposes Mining Operation Beneath Potomac

The Mettiki Coal Corporation has applied to Maryland and West Virginia for permission to extend an existing underground mine from Maryland underneath the North Branch of the Potomac River into nearby West Virginia. Mettiki estimates that the mine extension could result in the extraction of approximately 2 million additional tons of coal and six to nine months' of additional operation beyond early 2006, the projected exhaustion date of the company's 10,000 acres of Garrett County holdings.

"The Freeport Coal Seam travels in an unbroken underground seam from Maryland beneath the Potomac River into West Virginia near Bayard, and eventually outcrops near Mount Storm," Mettiki spokesperson David Thomas explained. "We've been mining the seam in Garrett County since 1977, and it was mined by the former Island Coal Company on the West Virginia side until the early 1990s. There are a number of old abandoned mines on the West Virginia side, and many of those are flooded, which means the easiest way to get the coal is from our side of the river."

The existing mine could be extended underground with no disturbance to the surface, said Thomas, and the company's mine portal on the Maryland side would be utilized by miners and equipment harvesting the West Virginia coal. Miners would tunnel about 350 feet below the ground as they

Pneumonia And Influenza Shots To Be Available

The Garrett County Health Department will be offering influenza and pneumococcal immunizations next Thursday, Dec. 7, at G.W. Plaza (across from Fitzwater Furniture Store in Mtn. Lake Park). Additional clinics will be scheduled at senior meal sites in December when an adequate supply of vaccine is received.

The vaccine will not be available to everyone at this clinic. The health department is seeking to vaccinate those individuals at high risk for complications from the virus. This includes people older than 65, adults and children with chronic diseases of the heart and SAYING "THANK YOU" - In recognition for his many years of work on the Accident Cultural and Historical Society and his service as director, Rev. Richard Carlson was presented a certificate of appreciation by ACHS member Rose Moon during a recent meeting.

IT'S CHRISTMAS TIME IN THE CITY - Two Garrett County "cities" will celebrate the beginning of the Christmas season this weekend, as both Oakland and Grantsville host their annual downtown holiday festivals: the Old-Fashioned Grantsville Christmas and Oakland's Christmas on Main Street. Pictured are Oakland employees as they decorate the town tree, which has been planted in the circle near the train station. The tree was donated to the town by Marshall and Cindy Stacy, owners of Pinetum Enterprises. The Stacys gave the tree in memory of their fathers, Chester Plachta and Eric Stacy, and also in memory of Gorman Beltzel. The annual lighting of the town Christmas

Warm The Children Collection Time Ends; Shopping Continues

Warm the Children 2000 is well under way, with over $18,000 raised in this year's campaign. This will provide for over 225 area children in need of winter clothing and footwear.

"It think this kind of success says volumes about our readership," said Mary McEwen, coordinator of the program. "People from all over the place send us checks from five dollars to $1,000. Children in our schools are collecting money, churches have donated hundreds of dollars, and businesses have made wonderful contributions. The money comes in from all over the country, from Colorado, California, Florida, West Virginia, and all parts of Maryland. It's truly heartwarming to see such support from so many people and places."

At Broad Ford Elementary School, the children engaged in a coin drive for Warm the Children. Students donated about $400 in coins, and parents and staff added about $95 to that.

"Four hundred dollars in mostly pennies is a lot of copper," McEwen said. "What a great thing for these kids to do." The deadline for donations is today, Nov. 30, although any money collected after today will be placed in the interest-bearing account to be used in next year's effort. It can also be used in the event of a disaster any time of the year that leaves children without needed clothing and/or shoes.

All of the donated money is used to buy new clothing and footwear for area children. About $80 is spent on each child to purchase coats, hats, underclothing, jeans, sweaters, boots, or any other warm items. With the help of volunteer "shoppers," the purchases are

Rev. Carlson Leaves Post As ACHS Director

A charter member of the Accident Cultural and Historical Society (ACHS), which was founded in 1987, the Rev. William E. Carlson recently stepped down from the position of director, in which he has served for the last six years. Formed by the mayor and town council of Accident to help enhance historical and cultural activities within the town, the organization has been responsible for many of the town's annual celebrations and activities.

A resident of Accident for 51 years and pastor of the Accident Lutheran Parish, ELCA, for 35 years, Rev. Carlson was chairing the Accident Municipal Planning Commission when the mayor and council requested that he assist with the Drane House restoration project around 1990.

Rev. Carlson and the town administrative assistant, the late Margaret Fratz, initiated the major recovery and refurbishing of tree will take place on Friday evening at about 6:30, along with a Santa parade, caroling, and a presentation by the Southern Middle School handbell choir. Pictured as they prepare the tree are Jerome Moate in the cherry-picker, Chuck Blamble on the ladder, Albert DeWitt supporting the ladder, and Joe Heibig to the left. Local folks are encouraged to attend the celebration of their choice to help officially open the Christmas season, and to support local businesses. Both events will take place on Friday and Saturday, Dec. 1 and 2, and will feature special food vendors, music, entertainment, and pictures with Santa Claus.

Garrett County Memorial Retains Accreditation From Commission

Garrett County Memorial Hospital, Garrett County Memorial Hospital Home Health, and Garrett County Memorial Hospital Laboratory have achieved accreditation from the Joint Commission on Accreditation of Healthcare Organizations as a result of demonstrated compliance with the Joint Commission's nationally recognized health care standards. Garrett Memorial has achieved accreditation from JCAHO since 1956.

Founded in 1951, the Joint Commission is dedicated to continuously improving the safety and quality of the nation's health care through voluntary accreditation. Garrett Memorial voluntarily undergoes this intense survey by a full team of Joint Commission experts every three years. Surveyors for the commission were on site earlier this year.

"Above all, the national standards are intended to stimulate continuous, systematic, and organization-wide improvement in an organization's performance and the outcomes of care," said Russell P. Massaro, M.D., executive vice president, Accreditation Operations, Joint Commission. "The community should be proud that Garrett County

Local Officials Discuss Growth At GGBA Forum

The Greater Grantsville Business Association hosted Community Action president Duane Yoder, Garrettland representative Jerry Thayer, Commissioner Fred Holliday, and Del. George Edwards at the group's monthly meeting Wednesday morning. Presentations, discussion, and question and answer periods focused on imminent growth in Grantsville with the advent of a major employer, a new housing complex, and an interagency office building.

Yoder kicked off the discussions with an overview of the outreach center and housing complex that will be built under the auspices of Community Action adjacent to Grantsville Town Hall and the community park. The center, already under roof, will be a two-story structure housing offices of the Department of Social Services, the Garrett County Health Department, and Garrett Community College. "I am really pleased with this facility. It will provide services to the many people in the northern end of the county who previously had to travel all the way to Oakland," Yoder noted.

The apartment complex, Cassel Ridge East, slated for construction in the same vicinity as the outreach building, will provide 36 family units. "We have just received final approval of the housing tax credits and the loan for this project," Yoder said.

Garrettland, the property management company which has cooperated with Community Action in several of its housing complexes, will be the manager for the Cassel Ridge community, Yoder explained. He also described a long successful track record which Garrettland has established since its formation in 1965.

The 36-apartment complex will be divided among six buildings arranged about common area green space. A play area is also designated, as are 75 parking spaces. The apartments, a mix of one-, two-, and three-bedroom units, will be available on a "sliding scale" based on income and family size. "The rent payment on these will not be subsidized."

Kristin Peterson, David Callis To Be Featured Soloists In "Messiah"

The Garrett Choral Society will present G.F. Handel's Messiah next weekend, Dec. 9 and 10, with four featured singers performing as soloists. California native Kristin Peterson, pictured, will be lyric soprano, and Garrett Countian David Callis, also pictured, will be the bass soloist. Michael Horton, tenor, and Myrna Paris, mezzo soprano, will be featured in next week's issue of The Republican.

Ms. Peterson has performed with opera companies such as the Los Angeles Opera, Opera Pacific, and the Long Beach Opera, as well as various regional theatre companies. California venues have granted her leading performances in The Magic Flute, La Bohème, Riders to the Sea, Dido and Aeneas, Die Feidenmaus, The Mikado, The Pirates of Penzance, The Most Happy Fella, and West Side Story, among others.

Audiences in Wichita, Kan., and Birmingham, Ala., have seen her in Kismet, West Side Story, Into the Woods, Show Boat, and The Most Happy Fella. Her solo concert repertoire includes performances of Respighi's "Laud to the Nativity," Brahms' Ein Deutsches Requiem, Mahler's Symphony No. 4, Michael Haydn's Mass, F.J. Haydn's Lord Nelson Mass, and Vivaldi's Gloria.

Ms. Peterson contributed to a CD recording of Welsh songs for composer Michael J. Lewis. Her television credits include "The Jersey" Continued on Page A-7

State's Atty., Sheriff Urge Public To Attend "Designer Drug" Info Meetings

"If we can save one life, or keep one child from a very destructive path, then we will consider this effort a success," said State's Attorney Lisa Thayer Welch this week in announcing two public information sessions about "designer drugs." The sessions have been scheduled by her office and Sheriff Dick Sanders in an effort to educate the community about the newest types of illegal, dangerous drugs now found "on the street," not only in cities, but also in the immediate area.

The first meeting is set for Wednesday, Dec. 6, at Northern High School, beginning at 7 p.m. The second session will be held at Southern High School on Monday, Dec. 11, also at 7 p.m.

"For a number of months, officers with the county's narcotics task force have been reporting to the members of the advisory board that a wider variety of dangerous drugs are being found in Garrett County," Welch said. "While marijuana continues to be the most prevalent, other drugs, including 'ecstasy' (or MDMA), ketamine, LSD, heroin, and 'GHB,' are becoming increasingly more popular. All of these have been found in the county this year."

"On network news just this week," Welch continued, "a federal agency report cited a national decrease in the use of marijuana, but a doubling in the

GCC Sets Tuition Discount For High School Students

High school students interested in getting an early start on their college education can take courses at Garrett Community College for half price during the spring semester, according to director of enrollment development Joan Crawford. Spring semester classes begin the week of January 22 and end May 14.

"This tuition reduction amounts to significant savings," Crawford pointed out. "With our current tuition set at $74 per credit hour, students still enrolled in high school can take a three credit course for $111 and 'bank' the credits or transfer them to the college they plan to attend in the fall. It is a good opportunity for these students who can take a course during the after-school hours to get a head start on their freshman year."

A number of courses scheduled in the afternoon and early evening times will be available to high school students in the spring semester. These include Expository Writing (ENG 101), General Psychology (PSY 101), College Algebra (MAT 105), American History (HIS 112), Principles of Sociology (SOC 101), Introduction to Communication (SPC 101), and Introduction to Business (BUS 101), as well as a number of art and computer courses.

To enroll in any of these college courses, a high school student must be at least 16 years old. Interested students should call the Student Assistance Center at 301-387-3044.

County Offices Earn Award For Risk Management

Garrett County government and the Garrett County Sanitary District were awarded the Risk Management Services Award by the Local Government Insurance Trust at the Trust's 13th annual meeting, held last month in Annapolis.

Members of the county's Risk Management staff, including Linda Gnegy, risk manager, and Lawrence Dawson, facilities and equipment supervisor, accepted the award on behalf of Garrett County, along with Ron Petrella, administrator of the sanitary district.

The Local Government Insurance Trust is a non-profit pool that was created in 1987 to provide affordable insurance coverage for local governments. According to a spokesperson, the trust bestows the Risk Management Services Award each year to those members who consistently demonstrate excellence in committing themselves to loss reduction, ongoing training, adhering to the trust's risk management guidelines, and utilizing its resources.

Gary Mullich, director of the General Services Department, presented the award to the Garrett County commissioners at their regular meeting on November 28. The commissioners congratulated the risk management staff for their efforts and dedication to managing risks and minimizing exposures and losses for county government.

Christmas Fest Is Theme Of '00 Hope Workout

Students from Brenda's Body Shop, along with corporate sponsor Mettiki Coal, will sponsor a special event for the House of Hope. A Christmas Festival is the theme of the fourth annual Workout for Hope event, which will feature various dance and gymnastics performers entertaining with routines to some classic holiday tunes, according to Brenda Brosnihan, coordinator.

The festival will be held at Southern High School on Sunday, Dec. 17, from 2 until 5 p.m. Participants have been seeking pledges from family and friends, which will all be donated to the House of Hope.

Brosnihan said the young people have been working on the project since Autumn Glory, during which they marched in both parades using their Christmas theme to promote the upcoming event.

"The past three years our Workout for Hope has been very successful, with the combined total earnings over $20,000. This year we are hopeful to break last year's record and exceed $7,000," said Brosnihan.

"We are so thankful to these youth for all their talents and hard work," said Carol Smith of the House of Hope. "We are especially excited this year to have Mettiki Coal Company as our corporate sponsor. Their generosity allows the Christmas Festival to be a really special event for these kids who have worked so hard."

There will be a performance depicting highlights of the "Nutcracker, All Jazzed Up." Michael Fratz will portray Uncle Drosselmeyer, and Leigh Ann Schofft, playing the nutcracker, will engage in the classic duel with the Mouse Queen, played by Marilana Beitzel. (See photo in next week's issue of The Republican.)

Accreditation of Healthcare Organizations, which certifies a three-year continuance of the hospital's accreditation as a health care facility. The hospital has achieved accreditation from the JCAHO since 1956. Also earning accreditation in the same survey were the hospital's laboratory and mobile medical services. Pictured above right are Joyce Nutter, director of the laboratory, and Eric Tribbey, director of mobile medical services. See story for details.

"The Waltz of the Snowflakes" will be a grand ensemble including several adult dancers, according to Brosnihan. "We have been having lots of fun putting a new twist on the Nutcracker by jazzing it up. The soundtrack was re-orchestrated with a techno, funk, and disco beat, while the choreography features jazz instead of ballet," she said. "Many of our students are looking forward to attending other performances of the Nutcracker in the tri-state area with new insight and appreciation."

Brosnihan said the Christmas Festival will provide entertainment to the whole family. There will be no admission fee, but spectators are encouraged to make an open donation at the door. Non-perishable food items will also be accepted and used to stock the House of Hope's food pantry. Refreshments and free photos with Santa Claus will be available. For more information, persons may contact Brenda's Body Shop at 301-334-1275.

GCM Retains

Continued from Page A-1 the educational aspect of the survey and the opportunity to interact with the team of surveyors," he said.

"Efforts to improve don't stop when the Joint Commission survey is over," Battista said. "Meeting the standards and achieving excellence is a continuous process." He called the accreditation "proof of an organizationwide commitment to provide quality care on a long-term basis."

Joy Of Christ Celebration Set For Dec. 11-15

The second annual Joy of Christ Celebration will be held in the National Guard Armory in Oakland Monday, Dec. 11, through Friday, Dec. 15, beginning at 6 p.m. each evening. The entertainment will be provided by a variety of bands, church organizations, schools, and other performers.

Admission to the celebration is free, and food, refreshments, coloring/activity books, and Christmas music CDs will be available, also free of charge. According to Paul Browning, coordinator, the goal of the event is "to provide a family-friendly, non-denominational celebration of the birth of Jesus, and provide a refreshing change from the ever-present commercialism of the season."

There are still some time slots available to local

Thanks for ClosetMaid...

The announcement last week that a ClosetMaid manufacturing facility will be located in the Northern Garrett Industrial Park at Grantsville was undoubtedly the best piece of economic news for Garrett County since Bausch & Lomb made a similar announcement about 30 years ago. The impact of this new plant on northern Garrett County, and the county as a whole, will be tremendous, as hundreds of new, good-paying jobs will be available.

The impact will go beyond the walls of the new plant and the households of its employees, as other local businesses who may be shortchanging their current workers will be forced to do better, or risk losing their employees to ClosetMaid. According to a rough estimate with preliminary numbers, the plant will pump about $15,000,000 per year into the area in the form of wages alone. Obviously that will trickle down in numerous ways to bolster the local economy and improve the quality of life for all county residents.

Another significant probability is that ClosetMaid will attract a couple of "feeder" businesses into Garrett or Allegany county that will provide several hundred additional jobs.

A number of people had a hand in bringing this dream to reality, people from the Garrett County courthouse all the way to the governor's office. ClosetMaid officials had a lukewarm interest at best on their first inquiry in Garrett County, but folks such as county economic development director Jim Hinebaugh worked extremely hard to convince them that Garrett County was the place they wanted to be. Credit must also go to our county commissioners, Delegate George Edwards, Delegate/Speaker Cas Taylor, and, reportedly, to Lt. Gov. Kathleen Kennedy Townsend, who evidently made a crucial telephone call on our behalf.

A key component was the One Maryland Program, designed by Speaker Taylor, which provides an attractive financial incentive package for prospective businesses who are considering locating in western Maryland.

We express our gratitude to the elected and appointed officials whose leadership, experience, and vision in this effort will reap enormous dividends for their constituency.

Letters to the Editor

To the Editor:

I would like to publicly thank the wonderful person who picked up our dog off 219 South on Monday, November 13, and took her to Countryside Animal Hospital. At around 4:45 p.m. on Monday, our dog Skiddles was accidentally let out of our house by a delivery person. We arrived home at 6 p.m. to find that our dear little pet was gone. She is never out of the house unless someone is with her.

We know how dangerous 219 can be for any animal, and, of course, Skiddles went straight to the road. We are so thankful that someone caring and trustworthy picked her up. We purchased Skiddles over four years ago to be a pet for our son who is confined to a wheelchair because of muscular dystrophy. She has become a part of our family, and on Monday night after hours of searching the ditches and calling her name, I honestly believed that we would never see her again.

I would like to thank all of our neighbors who helped us look for Skiddles and WKHJ for the announcement over the radio. Thanks also to Countryside Animal Hospital for giving our pet a warm and dry place to sleep.

I teach character education in my classroom every day, and the kind person who rescued our dog just gave me my lesson plan for the day. Thank you!

To the Editor:

The leadership of Northern Reacue, particularly Chief Yoder, and Board Chairman Durst, are to be commended for recognizing the negative effect that lies and misinformation have on those who volunteer their time and resources to serve their friends and neighbors in EMS.

I am much appreciative that they have squelched the vicious lie that had circulated in the squad, that I, a member of Northern, was responsible for a fundraising letter that was mailed into Northern's response area by another EMS company.

There is tremendous need within and among such organizations for respect and cooperation for the benefit of the purpose for which they exist. Hopefully, there will be a continued effort by all companies in that direction.

To the Editor:

Our Town Theatre (OTT) is thrilled to announce that it has been successful in booking a world-famous theatrical group for its Christmas program. The Farndale Avenue Housing Estate Townsman's Guild Dramatic Society (FAHE TGDS) has agreed to grace the mountaintop area with exclusive public performances of the Dickens classic A Christmas Carol on December 13, 14, 15, 16, and 17 only. Each performance will begin at 8:00 p.m.

The spokesperson for the traveling group, Mrs. Phoebe Reese, said, "We had requests from theatres in New York City, Chicago, Los Angeles and London to put on our little show, but when we received the charming note from OTT, we literally jumped at the chance to perform here."

"Plus," Mrs. Reese added, "the comedic program was written by those dreamboats David McGillivray and Walter Zerlin Jr. and is presented by special arrangement with Samuel French, Ltd. Couldn't you just die?"

Seats for the show are $5.00. Reservations are strongly suggested and can be made by calling 301-334-5640.

Sincerely,
Richard Hill

made through the J.C. Penney catalog store in Oakland and at Ames in Frostburg.

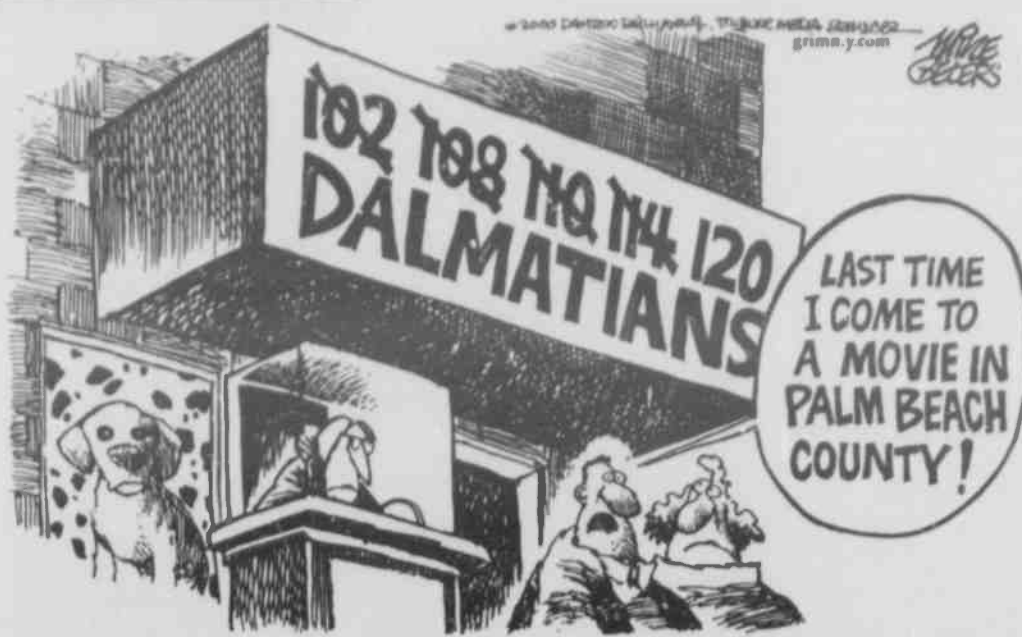

"Once again, our two participating stores have been so cooperative and helpful, and our volunteers are indispensable. Members of the Civic Club of Oakland are handling all of our Penney families," McEwen said. In Grantsville, volunteers work with Lisa Broadwater, the newspaper's branch office manager and the co-coordinator of Warm the Children.

"I have volunteers eager to go shop this year," Broadwater reported. "That makes this whole program work so much better."

The campaign is at a mid-point, with many children already served and many others yet to be taken care of.

"We had hoped to finish earlier this year than the past three years," McEwen said, "so we started earlier and asked our school volunteers who help identify the kids in need to do so earlier. Unfortunately, because of some communication lapses, some schools didn't get the message to send the letters out early. Some schools have just recently sent the letters home."

To those families who received application letters in the past week, they are encouraged to send in their applications despite the Nov. 9 deadline noted in the letter.

"We never promise that we'll get to every applying family, but we still want them to send in the applications," McEwen said. "We do strongly discourage any families from calling for Warm the Children services, though. If you have received a letter, please return it to the address noted on the form. If you are then selected to receive help, we will be contacting you. Phone calls from families seeking services only encumber the process and actually put the callers at risk of being put on the bottom of the list."

This is the fourth year The Republican has sponsored Warm the Children, and each year the donations have increased, McEwen said. "I think people like it because they know every penny is used to buy new items for kids who need them. We thank everyone for their trust in us to carry out the program, and also for the help we are receiving from so many people this year."

For persons who would like to donate to the fund this year but have missed the deadline, McEwen noted that Lou Stouffer, the "Terra Alta Santa," also serves hundreds of area children each year by delivering Christmas presents to needy families.

"If you want to help children this year but have missed our deadline, please consider sending your donations to Lou," McEwen said. "Contributions will certainly be put to good use as he and his wife Lola work to help out 800+ area families."

Checks to Lou Stouffer can be sent to him at P.O. Box 56, Terra Alta, W.Va. 26764.

Mine Proposed

follow the seam under the river and into the 190-acre West Virginia tract. Mettiki already conducts mining operations beneath small streams and roads in Garrett County, Thomas stated, and mining beneath rivers and political boundaries is not uncommon in the industry.

The company's West Virginia permit application, which was submitted to that state's Division of Environmental Protection in April, is considered "incomplete," according to permit inspector Ron Sturm.

The application will be considered incomplete until Mettiki clarifies three areas of concern Sturm outlined:

1) The project would involve tunneling not only beneath the Potomac (which belongs to Maryland) but under a known West Virginia trout stream which supports a native trout population, according to surveys by the state's wildlife agency. That stream feeds into the river halfway between Bayard and Wilson.

2) After the mine shaft passes beneath the Potomac, the application shows that it will "updip," or climb slightly up into the West Virginia tract. State environmental officials are concerned that mine drainage from abandoned West Virginia mines will drain down into the shaft.

3) The mining operation will be concluded approximately 1,800 linear feet into West Virginia, and the permit shows that a barrier of undisturbed coal will be left at the end of Mettiki's shaft. On the other side of that natural wall there is an existing abandoned mine filled with acid mine drainage. The agency is concerned about drainage from that old mine seeping into the new shaft.

Sturm said that the agency's concerns were relayed to Mettiki several months ago, and a response is still forthcoming.

Concerns have also been saw about the baby growing up to one day take care of his or her own parents is true. I listened for every change in breathing, like a father keen to his infant firstborn, all night long.

The next evening my mom wanted to spend the night. I dropped in for a quick check shortly before midnight to find her sitting quietly by the bedside, clasping her hand and a rosary in both her hands as she maintained her vigil. At this point he appeared completely unresponsive even to the two of us; his eyes hadn't opened for many hours and it was obvious the end would be within the next 24 hours. For a reason I still don't know, I told her to take his hand and put it on her head. She did, and after a moment said in an excited whisper, "His fingers are moving!" After a few moments I said something to the effect of "how he must have loved touching you in bed, because you guys ended up with six kids. You should put his hand inside your shirt and let him feel your breast." She took his hand from her hair and did so. I gave them both a goodnight kiss, told them I loved them, and left for home.

My dad died late the next morning.

All the emotions are wrapped up and magnified in the experience of watching someone you love die. Passing out of so silly a world as we live in, believe it or not, can even lead to a good belly laugh once in a while. My mom and dad had a few good ones over some of the predicaments they were finding themselves in, and, just hours after he died, one of my brothers and I had a laugh in the strangest

Several hours after my dad's death and the removal of his body from the Hospice to the funeral home just around the corner from our house, the funeral director (whose name was "Barry," of all things...sounds way too much like "bury") called to say that immediate relative needed to come down and sign some papers. That was hardly what our mom needed to be doing at that moment, so my brother and I went over.

Sitting in Barry's office, my brother and I were still in shock from the day's events, and even though we already knew Daddy's wishes, found ourselves taken aback somewhat when he slid some papers across the desk and in a very solemn tone informed us that a signature was needed for the cremation process to proceed.

My brother looked at me and said, "I didn't know Catholics could be cremated!" (Our dad had been baptized by the family priest in a very moving ceremony in our living room just a few weeks before—during a big crab feast, no less, just the way he wanted it.)

I looked at my brother, and without thinking but with all seriousness heard myself respond: "Well, what about Joan of Arc?"

The funeral director busted up laughing.

One more story: Several years before my dad was diagnosed with cancer, an aunt in Missouri, beloved by everyone in our huge and scattered family, battled cancer herself. One of her daughters, my favorite cousin, gave up her own apartment and also turned down a very lucrative job offer in another state to move home to the farm and take care of her mom. My aunt endured over a year of the disease, one no one should have to go through, when the end came as she lay in a hospital bed in the family living room surrounded by her husband and their two adult daughters.

My favorite cousin, the younger daughter of the two, and I went on an all-night drive the night after her mom's funeral, just to get away and talk. During the ride she told me that as the end had approached, my aunt began gasping horribly and wide-eyed fear seized her face. My other cousin was on one side of the bed holding one hand, crying and calling to her mother. My uncle was at the foot of the bed, crying and unable to get any closer.

My favorite cousin was holding her mom's hand and stroking her softly, telling her in a calm voice that they all loved her very much and if it was time to go that was OK. She said that her mom looked around at the people in the room, starting at one side of the bed, and going down to the foot of the bed, and she appeared to be panicking, we assume because of the commotion coming from those areas. As her gaze came toward my calm cousin, her face softened, and she closed her eyes and quietly drifted away.

My cousin said that afterward the hand her crying sister was holding was tightly clinched, and the tendons were plainly visible; however, the hand that she had been softly stroking as she had been speaking to her mom in a calm voice? It was soft and smooth as a glove.

I thought of that story often during my dad's illness and came to realize that it provides a valuable lesson in not only how to die—but also how to live.

P.S. — My aunt's name was Grace.

raised by the West Virginia Rivers Coalition, a citizen's environmental group. The organization is worried about acid water draining out of the abandoned mines and the possibility of land sinking after the coal has been removed.

Maryland's Department of the Environment is also reviewing a permit application, and no public objections have been raised. A copy of the Maryland application is available for public review at the Garrett Soil Conservation District office, in Mtn. Lake Park and at the Bureau of Mines office in Frostburg during normal office hours.

Mettiki coal employs over 200 workers at its Garrett County mine and ore processing plant. Approximately 80 percent of those workers are Maryland residents, said Thomas. Twenty percent are West Virginia residents, and several workers reside in Pennsylvania.

the historical 1800 log home of James and Priscilla Drane. Many area residents were inspired to join the effort to revive the structure and make it a "centerpiece" for the town.

Prior to assuming the directorship of the ACHS, Rev. Carlson served as finance chairman of the Drane House project and the society's cultural committee, under former directors Rosanne Sherwood, Steve Schlosnagle, and Ernest Lindner.

During the years that Rev. Carlson directed the ACHS, the members of the group, with the support of other residents, undertook a wide range of activities. Among the projects that he helped to develop were the community Palm Sunday program, the variety show, and the expanded Accident 4th of July Homecoming, which grew to include patriotic programming, a craft show, and an art exhibit.

During these same years, the Accident Concert Band, idle for many years, was revitalized, the Concert in the Park series was created, and the Community in Harmony Chorus began performing. The Holiday Festival of Music became an annual performance, and holiday tours of churches and homes were added to the annual calendar of events in Accident.

The marketing of the town through the sale of Accident souvenirs was also taken on by the ACHS. Most recently, the 200th anniversary celebration of the Drane settlement, co-sponsored by ACHS and the Accident Planning Group, brought residents of the community together to reflect on the history and the culture of the area.

At a ceremony recently, the years of service given to the town and its people by Rev. Carlson were recognized, and he was presented with a certificate of appreciation by ACHS member Rosie Moon, on behalf of the mayor, town council, and the residents.

GBI Arrests Three For Alleged Check Forgery Scheme

Three area residents were arrested this week by detectives from the Garrett Bureau of Investigation in connection with a suspected forgery and counterfeiting scheme. Kevin Lee Hartman, 27, and Lori Lynn Hartman, 29, both of Oakland, and Patrick Gale Reckart, 37, of Terra Alta, W.Va., each face multiple charges stemming from the criminal misuse of personal checks uttered at banks in Garrett and Preston counties.

GBI detective Clark Warnick alleges that Kevin Hartman manufactured counterfeit checks in the name of Roy and Betty Post on a bank account in the state of Michigan. Two of those individual checks were for the amounts of $16,000 and more than $3,000, respectively. The signatures on the checks are believed to have been forged by Lori Hartman and deposited in Hartman's bank account in Terra Alta. Another check was reportedly used by Reckart, who allegedly deposited over $500 in his Oakland bank account using one of the counterfeit checks thought to have been given to him by Hartman.

Kevin Hartman remains incarcerated on a $50,000 bond in the Garrett County Detention Center, where he is awaiting trial on five counts each of forgery of private documents and conspiracy to forge private documents. Lori Hartman, who has been released on her own recognizance, faces two counts each of forgery of private documents, conspiracy to forge private documents, and conspiracy to commit felony theft. Patrick Reckart faces one count each of forgery of private documents, conspiracy to forge private documents, felony theft, and conspiracy to commit felony theft, and is being detained on a $5,000 bond.

Kevin and Lori Hartman also face the possibility of additional charges filed through Preston County law enforcement officials, according to Warnick.

MLP Man Jailed On Charges Of Assault, Abuse

A Mtn. Lake Park man was arrested Sunday morning on charges of assault and child abuse stemming from an incident involving a 5-year-old female, according to the Garrett County Sheriff's Office.

William Earl Frank Jr. is accused of striking the girl with a stick and inflicting a bruise and cut to her leg. He had been arrested on similar charges in February and was placed on three years' probation in connection with those offenses. Upon further investigation of Sunday's incident, deputies filed an additional charge of keeping a disorderly house based on the condition of the H Street apartment Frank shares with his family.

Frank is being held in a Cumberland-area detention facility on a $75,000 bond.

DWI Arrest

Julianne Elizabeth Hesson, 23, Oakland was arrested and charged with driving while intoxicated recently.

Woman Injured When Pick-Up Strikes Rock

The driver of a 1994 GMC Sonoma pick-up truck, Leanna Beachy, 19, Fort Hill, Pa., was taken to Garrett Memorial Hospital following an accident Monday afternoon on Bumble Bee Road. Tfc. T.A. Bond of the McHenry barracks of the Maryland State Police reported that Beachy was northbound on Bumble Bee around 5:10 p.m. when her vehicle began to skid and subsequently left the travel portion of the road and struck a rock. The impact caused the vehicle to overturn and Beachy was ejected.

She was transported to Garrett Memorial by Northern Rescue Squad, where she was admitted for treatment of injuries.

Driver Hospitalized

Nick Gartelman of Glen Burnie was admitted to Cumberland Memorial Hospital in "serious" condition following an accident on Interstate 68 Saturday, Nov. 25. Investigators Tfc. B. Bittinger and Tfc. R. Sharp reported that Gartelman was operating his 1994 Pontiac westbound near the 26-mile marker when he lost control of his vehicle which crossed the median, striking a Freightliner tractor trailer operated by William Oester, Grantsville.

The investigation is continuing.

Drug Arrests

Dean Paul Witt, 44, Preston, was arrested Tuesday morning after his vehicle was stopped for a traffic violation. According to Tfc. M. Clapper, Witt was operating a 1998 Dodge Ram northbound on Route 219 north of James Way when he was stopped at 1:19 a.m. The officer said he noticed a strong odor of burnt marijuana in the vehicle.

Witt was subsequently charged with possession of marijuana and paraphernalia, driving while intoxicated, and carrying a concealed weapon (a knife).

Samson Jubal Werner, 20, Hyndman, Pa., and Mitchell Schwayne Bounett, 28, Ellerslie, were arrested following a traffic stop at the Hilltop Exxon in Grantsville. Tfc. J. LeMay reported that the driver, Werner, had an odor of alcohol on his breath and that both opened and unopened beer cans were visible in the vehicle.

A search of the vehicle revealed two pipes containing suspected marijuana, plus suspected marijuana seeds and marijuana cigarettes. Both men were charged with possession of marijuana and drug paraphernalia. Werner was also charged with underage possession of alcohol, and

Charges Filed In Rock Lodge Road Accident

The Garrett County Sheriff's Office filed charges this week against one of the drivers involved in a Sept. 30 head-on collision on Rock Lodge Road that resulted in severe injuries to both drivers and minor injuries to one juvenile passenger.

Scott Allen Beitzel, 20, faces charges of driving while intoxicated, failure to drive right of center, reckless driving, and violation of a license restriction (consumption of alcohol by a driver under the legal drinking age of 21). DFC Robbie Zimmerman filed the charges after concluding his investigation of the accident, which occurred when Beitzel lost control of his Mercury Cougar in a curve approximately one mile north of Mosser Road and slammed into a Chevrolet pickup truck operated by Donald Duane Beitzel, 38, Bittering.

Both drivers required helicopter transport to hospitals that same night, as Scott Beitzel was flown to Cumberland Memorial and Donald Beitzel was flown to Ruby Memorial Hospital in Morgantown, W.Va. Both men have since been released.

Scott Beitzel was issued a citation this week that delineated the charges, and was not arrested. A Garrett County district court trial is pending.

Garrett Co. BBBS Branch Schedules Annual Meeting

The annual meeting of the Garrett County branch of Big Brothers Big Sisters has been rescheduled for Monday, Dec. 11, in Conference Room A of the Community Services building, located next to Garrett County Memorial Hospital. The 7 p.m. public meeting, which is open to all BBBS board members, supporters, and citizens, will be preceded by a brief executive board meeting set to begin at 6:30 p.m.

The public meeting agenda includes a statement of the agency's mission and overview by Karen Johnson, executive director of BBBS of the Alleghenies, a state of the local agency report by JoAnn Fletcher, Garrett County BBBS coordinator, and the election of officers.

NHS Names September Students Of The Month

The Northern High School Student Council and M&T Bank recently announced that Remington Friend, Brandi Broadwater, Todd Foley, and Brandon Butler were selected as September's Students of the Month. Each received a trophy and will later be recognized at the annual honors banquet, hosted by the student council.

Freshman Remington Friend, the son of Hugh and Louise Friend, Friendsville, is active in the theater club, basketball, and AYSO soccer. His community activities include performing in plays, volunteering for the Friend Family Association, and participating in the Asher Glade youth group and church. In addition to acting, Remington said he enjoys bike riding. His past awards include the Success in School Award, several Pride awards, and runner-up for Student of the Year. Remington also works on his family farm and for his parents' business.

Brandi Broadwater is the daughter of Lowell and Tracey Broadwater of Lonaconing. Her activities include playing softball and babysitting. She is a member of the Emmanuel United Methodist youth group and of Mt. Zion United Methodist Church. Brandi said she enjoys spending time with her friends, hunting, babysitting, playing video games and softball, and running. Her past awards include Student of the Month for February 2000, Miss Sweet Spirit (for two years at church camp), and the Coach's Award - 2000. As a sophomore, Brandi has already completed all of her service learning hours.

The junior award recipient is Todd Foley, son of Patricia and Larry Foley, McHenry. Todd is an active member of the school band, the tennis team, and the School Improvement Team at NHS. His past awards include the Biology Student of the Year, Student of the Month in 9th and 10th grades, and inclusion in Who's Who Among American High School Students.

The senior recipient for September is Brandon Butler, son of Randy and Kim Butler, Grantsville. Brandon is a member of the National Honor society and the Mock Trial Team. He is the co-editor of the school newspaper, the announcer for the boys' soccer games, and a peer mediator. Brandon is also on the School Improvement Team and the tennis team. Active in his community, Brandon is the church pianist, the youth praise and worship leader, and a vacation Bible school teacher. Among his hobbies, in addition to playing the piano, Brandon lists writing music, singing, and playing video games. Previously, he has been named in Who's Who Among American High School Students, plus he was selected as the ninth grade Male Student of the Year, and Student of the Month on a prior occasion.

All students selected for the Student of the Month are eligible for the Student of the Year award given at the end of the 2000-2001 school year.

In Loving Memory of our beloved Mother

Lydia Harsh

Dear God,

Please take this message
to our loved one up above.

Tell her that we miss her
and give her all our love.

It broke our hearts to have her go,
But now she is better off.

What more could one ever ask to know,
than to be in heaven's paradise.

She left a beautiful memory
Of Love, Kindness and Giving.

She was a faithful wife, a loving Mother
And Grandmother and a devoted Christian lady.

A good example she did live,
She prayed and read her Bible about
10:00 every morning.

A precious one from us has gone

She is missed by all who loved her.

Perhaps you sent a lovely card,
Or sat quietly in a chair,
Perhaps you sent a funeral spray,
If so, we saw it there.

Perhaps you spoke the kindest words,
As any friend could say;
Perhaps you were not there at all,
Just thought of us that day.

Whatever you did to console our hearts,
We thank you so much, whatever the part.

UNBREAKABLE

Rated PG-13 - Running Time: 1:46 - Released 11/22/00

Perhaps the most rapidly up-and-coming director producer of the moment is Indian-born, Philadelphia-bred M. Night Shyamalan, who garnered several Oscar nominations (including best picture, best director, and best screenplay) for his breakthrough success The Sixth Sense last year. The film had an intelligent story, a host of memorable images, and uniformly good performances by stars Bruce Willis, Toni Collette, and the pre-pubescent Haley Joel Osment (the latter two of which were also nominated). In Shyamalan's new film Unbreakable, Willis returns with another fine, understated turn, joined this time by Samuel L. Jackson. I won't be surprised if Shyamalan, who apparently emulates Steven Spielberg, gets a few Academy nods for this complex piece of cinema, too.

When I first heard of the premise for Unbreakable (physically disabled and sickly man searches for man who has never been injured or sick a day in his life), I had my doubts, and when I saw the comic book stats listed at the beginning of the film, I was baffled as to how these two elements would tie together. But it is exactly that connection which makes the film so fascinating, blending the realistic style of a depressed family man who is estranged from his wife and son with the exaggerated, colorful elements of comic book fare. It is filled with interesting choices from behind the camera, giving a sometimes skewed perspective of the world, and meaningful silences in the dialogue, reminiscent of Pinter.

Jackson's character, Elijah Price, is the comics enthusiast in this story. Born with both arms and both legs broken, he suffers from a condition called Osteo-Genesis Imperfecta, which has him frequently ill and easily injured, and although he operates a comic book art gallery in Philadelphia, he spends most of his time alone, a bitter recluse. All his life, he says, Elijah has been searching for a person who is his exact opposite, a man who survives even the most terrible accidents unscathed, and he finds him when a major train wreck kills 131 passengers, all on board but security guard David Dunn (Willis), who walks away without a scratch. After the amazing news is broadcast, Elijah seeks David out, asking him if he ever has been ill. Although David and his wife Audrey (Robin Wright Penn) dismiss the question at first, David must admit he doesn't remember any illness, ever. This is when Elijah makes the bold suggestion that David is a sort of modern-day superhero, whose depression stems from the fact that he is not fulfilling his destiny of protecting people from the evils of the world. David's son Joseph (Spencer Treat Clark) is the only one who believes this could be true, but as Elijah spends more time with David, he begins to wonder if the dark, disturbed man is right.

As Shyamalan's film quietly metamorphoses from a standard psychodrama to a larger-than-life tale of superheroes, the change is so subtle it takes us by surprise. This may be the most realistic and intelligent introduction of such a character that ever has been. Even as the surprise ending returns us to the regular, modern-day world, the possibility for a continuation of story is evident. Shyamalan's characters are realistic, yet at the same time they provide evidence that they could come right out of melodramatic Marvel pulp, and his rich cinematic atmosphere, while ostensibly normal and everyday, suggests a world seen through primary-colored half-tones. ★★★★★

102 DALMATIANS

Rated G - Running Time: 1:41 - Released 11/22/00

Whether it's dogs, rats, grinchies, or even llamas, holiday children's movies represent another kind of animal for the industry: huge bucks. Taking the kids to a half dozen movies in a month has become a tradition of the season for most moms and dads, whether it's to provide the other parent with some private shopping time or just to get in out of the cold, and Hollywood doesn't mind this a bit. There are always different levels of quality in these G- and PG-rated releases, however, some films cry out for the whole family's participation, while others are what I'd call "babysitter movies." Kevin Lima's 102 Dalmatians, the sequel to the remake of the classic animated Disney cartoon about a swarm of spotted pooches, falls squarely into the latter category. It's not that the film is bad—it's cute, it serves its purpose...but it's hardly spectacular. Perhaps the phrase "sequel to the remake" has something to do with it: the idea is getting tired, and Lima's workmanlike presentation reflects this. On the other hand, the antics of 100 black and white spotted puppies are sure to please the kiddies, and Glenn Close's high-energy return to her signature role of Cruella DeVil will likely amuse their older companions. Having spent three years in the London slammer for her caudal exploits in 1996's 101 Dalmatians, plus undergoing the revolutionary treatment of psychologist Dr. Pavlov, Cruella emerges a changed woman. Still sporting a strictly black and white hair and clothing style, she claims not to have a harmful bone in her body, especially regarding doggies. In order to prove her newfound PETA-esque sensibilities, she buys out the struggling 2nd Chance animal shelter, rescuing it and its owner Kevin (Joan Gruffudd) from bankruptcy. She spends millions on the place and launches a huge, multimedia advertising campaign. However, it seems that Pavlov's experimental treatment can be reversed by the sound of Big Ben tolling, and as soon as Cruella hears it, she's back to her old ways, plotting to find 102 black-and-white dotty dogs with which to make the most beautiful fur coat ever. She enlists the help of her former rival, renowned furrier Jean Pierre Le Pelt (Gérard Depardieu), although it is her stuttering butler Alonzo (Tim McInnerny) who does all the dirty work.

Although the trusting Kevin has no reason to doubt his wealthy savior and co-worker, probation officer Cloe Simon (Alice Evans) is not so sure Cruella has changed her ways, and she has reason to be especially concerned, herself owning a pair of Dalmatians with a new litter of pups. Sure enough, Cruella has her eye on those dogs most of all, except for one named Oddball who lacks spots. And it is Oddball, aided by several other shelter dogs and a parrot who thinks he's a rottweiler (voiced by Eric Idle), who is instrumental in foiling Cruella's plan.

102 Dalmatians's script is by Kristen Buckley and Brian Regan, with assistance from Bob Tzudiker and Noni White, based on the original novel characters created by the late Dodie Smith. Like so much of Disney's live-action output, it relies heavily on formula and established character stereotypes, and it works in a very tried-and-true (read: boring) sort of way. Glenn Close steals the show, of course, to the point of eclipsing the film's dull-as-dishwater human protagonists; the dogs are cute, and there are some interesting visuals (such as one scene which features the whole of London covered in spots), but from the standpoint of originality, this film's got nothing to save the Mouse House from its already, um...spotty track record. ★★½ and "Life and Times" with Luciano Pavarotti, as well as commercials for Ford Explorer and the Rug Doctor. Her career has included performances throughout Asia and Europe. Ms. Peterson said she is pleased to be making her Maryland debut.

David Callis is a lifelong resident of Garrett County. He has sung with the Garrett Choral Society since its inception, and has performed as a soloist in the society's productions of Amahl and the Night Visitors, Oliver, Fiddler on the Roof, South Pacific, and H.M.S. Pinafore.

In addition to extensive work as a soloist, Callis has sung with gospel quartets and barbershop choruses and quartets, including the 1991 Johnny Appleseed

Adorable Adoptables

Garrett Co. BBBS Branch Schedules Annual Meeting

The annual meeting of the Garrett County branch of Big Brothers Big Sisters has been rescheduled for Monday, Dec. 11, in Conference Room A of the Community Services building, located next to Garrett County Memorial Hospital. The 7 p.m. public meeting, which is open to all BBBS board members, supporters, and citizens, will be preceded by a brief executive board meeting set to begin at 6:30 p.m.

The public meeting agenda includes a statement of the agency's mission and overview by Karen Johnson, executive director of BBBS of the Alleghenies, a state of the local agency report by JoAnn Fletcher, Garrett County BBBS coordinator, and the election of officers.

NHS Names September Students Of The Month

The Northern High School Student Council and M&T Bank recently announced that Remington Friend, Brandi Broadwater, Todd Foley, and Brandon Butler were selected as September's Students of the Month. Each received a trophy and will later be recognized at the annual honors banquet, hosted by the student council.

Freshman Remington Friend, the son of Hugh and Louise Friend, Friendsville, is active in the theater club, basketball, and AYSO soccer. His community activities include performing in plays, volunteering for the Friend Family Association, and participating in the Asher Glade youth group and church. In addition to acting, Remington said he enjoys bike riding. His past awards include the Success in School Award, several Pride awards, and runner-up for Student of the Year. Remington also works on his family farm and for his parents' business.

Brandi Broadwater is the daughter of Lowell and Tracey Broadwater of Lonaconing. Her activities include playing softball and babysitting. She is a member of the Emmanuel United Methodist youth group and of Mt. Zion United Methodist Church. Brandi said she enjoys spending time with her friends, hunting, babysitting, playing video games and softball, and running. Her past awards include Student of the Month for February 2000, Miss Sweet Spirit (for two years at church camp), and the Coach's Award - 2000. As a sophomore, Brandi has already completed all of her service learning hours.

The junior award recipient is Todd Foley, son of Patricia and Larry Foley, McHenry. Todd is an active member of the school band, the tennis team, and the School Improvement Team at NHS. His past awards include the Biology Student of the Year, Student of the Month in 9th and 10th grades, and inclusion in Who's Who Among American High School Students.

The senior recipient for September is Brandon Butler, son of Randy and Kim Butler, Grantsville. Brandon is a member of the National Honor society and the Mock Trial Team. He is the co-editor of the school newspaper, the announcer for the boys' soccer games, and a peer mediator. Brandon is also on the School Improvement Team and the tennis team. Active in his community, Brandon is the church pianist, the youth praise and worship leader, and a vacation Bible school teacher. Among his hobbies, in addition to playing the piano, Brandon lists writing music, singing, and playing video games. Previously, he has been named in Who's Who Among American High School Students, plus he was selected as the ninth grade Male Student of the Year, and Student of the Month on a prior occasion.

All students selected for the Student of the Month are eligible for the Student of the Year award given at the end of the 2000-2001 school year.

In Loving Memory of our beloved Mother

Lydia Harsh

Dear God,

Please take this message
to our loved one up above.

Tell her that we miss her
and give her all our love.

It broke our hearts to have her go.
But now she is better off.

What more could one ever ask to know,
than to be in heaven's paradise.

She left a beautiful memory
Of Love, Kindness and Giving.

She was a faithful wife, a loving Mother
And Grandmother and a devoted Christian lady.

A good example she did live.
She prayed and read her Bible about
10:00 every morning.

A precious one from us has gone
She is missed by all who loved her.

Perhaps you sent a lovely card,
Or sat quietly in a chair,
Perhaps you sent a funeral spray,
If so, we saw it there.

Perhaps you spoke the kindest words,
As any friend could say;
Perhaps you were not there at all,
Just thought of us that day.

Whatever you did to console our hearts,
We thank you so much, whatever the part.

102 DALMATIANS

Rated G - Running Time: 1:41 - Released 11/22/00

Whether it's dogs, rats, grinchies, or even llamas, holiday children's movies represent another kind of animal for the industry: huge bucks. Taking the kids to a half dozen movies in a month has become a tradition of the season for most moms and dads, whether it's to provide the other parent with some private shopping time or just to get in out of the cold, and Hollywood doesn't mind this a bit. There are always different levels of quality in these G- and PG-rated releases, however; some films cry out for the whole family's participation, while others are what I'd call "babysitter movies." Kevin Lima's 102 Dalmatians, the sequel to the remake of the classic animated Disney cartoon about a swarm of spotted pooches, falls squarely into the latter category. It's not that the film is bad—it's cute, it serves its purpose...but it's hardly spectacular. Perhaps the phrase "sequel to the remake" has something to do with it: the idea is getting tired, and Lima's workmanlike presentation reflects this. On the other hand, the antics of 100 black and white spotted puppies are sure to please the kiddies, and Glenn Close's high-energy return to her signature role of Cruella DeVil will likely amuse their older companions.

Having spent three years in the London slammer for her cannibal exploits in 1998's 101 Dalmatians, plus undergoing the revolutionary treatment of psychologist Dr. Pavlov, Cruella emerges a changed woman. Still sporting strictly black and white hair and clothing style, she claims not to have a harmful bone in her body, especially regarding doggies. In order to prove her newfound PETA-esque sensibilities, she buys out the struggling 2nd Chance animal shelter, rescuing it and its owner Kevin (Joan Gruffudd) from bankruptcy. She spends millions on the place and launches a huge, multimedia advertising campaign. However, it seems that Pavlov's experimental treatment can be reversed by the sound of Big Ben tolling, and as soon as Cruella hears it, she's back to her old ways, plotting to find 102 black-and-white dotty dogs with which to make the most beautiful fur coat ever. She enlists the help of her former rival, renowned furrier Jean Pierre Le Pelt (Gérard Depardieu), although it is her stuttering butler Alonzo (Tim McInnerny) who does all the dirty work.

Although the trusting Kevin has no reason to doubt his wealthy savior and co-worker, probation officer Cloe Simon (Alice Evans) is not so sure Cruella has changed her ways, and she has reason to be especially concerned, herself owning a pair of Dalmatians with a new litter of pups. Sure enough, Cruella has her eye on those dogs most of all, except for one named Oddball who lacks spots. And it is Oddball, aided by several other shelter dogs and a parrot who thinks he's a rottweiler (voiced by Eric Idle), who is instrumental in foiling Cruella's plan.

102 Dalmatians' script is by Kristen Buckley and Brian Regan, with assistance from Bob Tzudiker and Noni White, based on the original novel characters created by the late Dodie Smith. Like so much of Disney's live-action output, it relies heavily on formula and established character stereotypes, and it works in a very tried-and-true (read: boring) sort of way. Glenn Close steals the show, of course, to the point of eclipsing the film's dull-as-dishwater human protagonists; the dogs are cute, and there are some interesting visuals (such as one scene which features the whole of London covered in spots), but from the standpoint of originality, this film's got nothing to save the Mouse House from its already, um...spotty track record. ★★★½

AURORA-TERRA ALTA VFW AUXILIARY MEETS
The Aurora-Terra Alta VFW Auxiliary met Nov. 13 at the post home. Sheridan Layman, Lorain Hanline, Harold Sereno, Betty Sereno, Violet Bishop, and Dorothy Hauser presented an educational program concerning the United States flag to the Aurora Elementary fifth grade students.

They presented the same program on Nov. 9 to the Terra Alta Elementary fifth grade students. In turn, the fifth grade there presented a program honoring the veterans.

There were 35 present for the program on Nov. 11, Veterans Day, at the post home. Gold Star Mother Ellen Alkinson, who lost her son in World War II, was present and was honored. Guest speaker for the occasion was Tom Lilley, a retired U.S. Army veteran.

A Christmas dinner will be served Dec. 10 at the post home. Members of Post 578 and its auxiliary are invited to come and to bring covered dishes and be present for the dinner at 1 p.m. Another December activity will be on the 23rd, when the post will host the Terra Alta Christmas treat from 1 until 3 p.m.

A reminder is given for those who wish to join the auxiliary to send their dues for 2001 to Linda Snyder. Regular meetings are held each second Monday at 1 p.m. at the post home.

TREE LIGHTING

An annual tree lighting ceremony will take place at the Aurora Community Building on Sunday, Dec. 3. The public is invited to join members of the Aurora CEOS and Aurora Pioneer 4-H Club for this 5:30 p.m. pre-Christmas occasion.

PERSONAL MENTION

At the recent public hearing for MegaEnergy held by the West Virginia PSC at the Aurora School, former Aurora resident Linda (Knotts) Bachman of Fairmont served as court recorder. She was accompanied here from Fairmont by her son, Jason Bachmann, and her mother, Grace Knotts Winter. Linda also performed this duty at the recent PSC hearings in Tucker County.

Jack and Teresa (Lambert) Bennett were injured last Wednesday in a morning accident along U.S. 219, near Gortner. Mrs. Bennett was admitted to Garrett County Memorial Hospital with a reported fractured sternum and other injuries. She returned Sunday to the Aurora home of her mother, Josephine Lambert, where she will stay while recuperating. Her husband was released, and their vehicle reportedly was a total loss.

A family dinner at the home of Catherine Shuman in Fairmont on Nov. 19 was attended by Shirley and Evelyn Lipscomb, Russell and Donna Beckman, and Louella Fike, all of Eglon and Aurora.

Mrs. Louella Fike of Aurora has received word that her daughter, Dorothy Carr, has been hospitalized in a Las Vegas hospital and was expected to be transferred to a rehabilitation center.

The children of the late

Roy and Loretta Snyder met for a Thanksgiving evening dinner at the home of JoAnn Helton of Terra Alta. The couple and their daughter will leave for a three or four-year assignment in Misawa, Japan, on Dec. 10.

The family of Maxine Hauser met for their Thanksgiving dinner on Nov. 19. Daughter Doris Denison was visiting from Miami, Fla., and Charles and Bonnie Douglas were here from Ashland, Ky.

Hancel and Mildred Teets of Amboy spent Thanksgiving day in Shepherdstown with their daughter and son-in-law, Judy and Ron Kepple, and their family.

Merlin, Martha, Matthew, and Marilyn Reish and a friend, all Harrisonburg, Va., were Thanksgiving guests of Ellis and Marie Teets at Silver Lake.

Alva Lantz and his son Ron of Mazon, Ill., visited here with another son and daughter-in-law, Michael and Diane Lantz, and their family at Aurora. They also visited with other area relatives.

Visiting Jessie Federow in Aurora was her niece from New Jersey.

Aaron Layman was a weekend visitor with his parents, David and Lois Layman, at Eglon. He related his experience in being stranded in Buffalo during last week's blizzard. He and Jason Roth are both employed there and live in that area.

Meivin, Melissa, and Dakota Frantz were joined on Thanksgiving Day by members of their families for a covered dish dinner at the Maple Spring Church. Melvin is the son of Don and Neva Frantz, Eglon, and returned from duty at Osan, Lorea, on Nov. 14.

Melissa is the daughter of Beatrice and Carl Ford of Gorman, who attended, and of Paul Dixon of Terra Alta. The couple and their daughter will leave for a three or four-year assignment in Misawa, Japan, on Dec. 10.

A "Girls' Day Out" was experienced by Rose Ina Harsh, Jennifer Harsh, Brenda Hartsell, Neva and Missy Frantz, and Debbie Brown on Nov. 11. They joined a bus tour to Burnsville, Pa., where they visited Roadside America, saw a display of model villages and towns, had a country-style meal at Chartlesville Hotel, and visited Koziar's Village for the lights displayed among the buildings, gift barns, and landscaping. On their return home, "Happy Birthday" was sung to Neva Frantz prior to their departure from the bus.

Visiting in Eglon with Don and Neva Frantz, Shirley, and Steve Parsons at Aurora were Evelyn Johnson of Hedgesville, her cousin Donald Osborne of Missouri; Van, Janet, Tasha, and Jonathan Marceau of Martinsburg; George, Rhonda, and Zach White of Abingdon, Md.; Carlton and Jean Skipper, Kingwood; Brent, Leslie, Brandon, and Brady Skipper of Perryville, Md.; Leonard, Tammy, Daniel, and Michael Parsons, and Ron and Avenell Parsons.

Michelle Moore of Aurora is a patient in Ruby Memorial Hospital, where she has been undergoing tests and treatment for an inflammation.

Kerri Pumphrey, all of South Carolina.

The annual Beckman family Thanksgiving dinner was held Thursday at the home of Barry Arnold and Nancy Green, Aurora. Others who attended were Todd, Cheri, and Amber Arnold; Rick, Traci, Zach, and Marissa Bachtel; Doris and Bernard "Buzz" Arnold; Larry and Joyce Buckley of Dover, Del.; Bob and Melanie Buckley of Fairfax, Va.; Don Beckman, Brian, Lisa, Michael, and Kayla Beckman; Dover; and Beverly "Kitty" Myers, Ron and Avenell Parsons, Bill, Sandra, Wade, and Joe Hauser, Stephanie Childers, Beth Bishop, Gary, Frances, Chris, Jason, and Lauren Roth, and Mary, Shawn, and Craig Rembold. Many of the group also had breakfast together on both Friday and Saturday mornings.

Thanksgiving evening dinner guests with John, Shirley, and Steve Parsons at Aurora were Evelyn Johnson of Hedgesville, her cousin Donald Osborne of Missouri; Van, Janet, Tasha, and Jonathan Marceau of Martinsburg; George, Rhonda, and Zach White of Abingdon, Md.; Carlton and Jean Skipper, Kingwood; Brent, Leslie, Brandon, and Brady Skipper of Perryville, Md.; Leonard, Tammy, Daniel, and Michael Parsons, and Ron and Avenell Parsons.

Michelle Moore of Aurora is a patient in Ruby Memorial Hospital, where she has been undergoing tests and treatment for an inflammation.

Wilda Stemple, Dale Harsh, and Arthur, Janice and Lora Forman were Thanksgiving evening guests of Danny and Martina Poling and family at Parsons.

Claude and Jean Winters, and Richard, Mary, and Caitlin Norwisch, all of Eglon, were Nov. 18 to 22 visitors in Scottsville, Ky., with Paul and Rebecca McCollum, and John and Laura.

Bulimia: More Common than Anorexia
Bulimia is an eating disorder in which the person affected eats excess amounts of food (up to 5,000 calories at a time) and immediately purges the food through self-induced vomiting or through the use of laxatives or enemas. This disorder, which primarily affects women, is believed to be much more common than anorexia (refusal to eat). Over time the purging of food with bulimia can become an uncontrollable behavior. Frequent vomiting can damage tissues of the throat, esophagus, and mouth. Vomiting can lead to dehydration, seizures, and disorders of the bowel, liver and kidneys. Experts agree that bulimia often has a psychological component that goes much deeper than a person's obsession with his or her weight and appearance.

Antidepressant medicines may help reduce "binge" behavior and mood symptoms. It is thought that these medicines reduce obsessive-compulsive tendencies and also help regulate food intake.

Notes from Bittinger

by Joan Susman

Well, I am certainly not the Old Farmer's Almanac in terms of weather predictions. I missed almost a whole month about our first major snowfall. With two snow days, which extended the Thanksgiving holidays for our schoolchildren and with three girls within a six-year time frame, there is plenty of fussing and spats. I am not the only one around with similar experience, since Patty Diehlman said the same thing goes on over at her house. So since a non-family playmate usually cuts the sibling rivalry, Meredith went over to the Diehlmans' to play with Hannah, Gretchen, and little Claire. When it was time to pick her up, I almost got stuck with my car with no snow tires on it. However, I managed to turn around without getting stuck, but it was a close call because the snow was so deep and made the grass as slick as a slug's back.

That was Tuesday, so the storm caused the Bittinger Lutheran Parish Thanksgiving service to be canceled. Then that night it was the same thing, except it got even colder. Anyway, I did predict a real winter in Bittinger, and so far it has lived up to that. On Wednesday it was again so cold with icy winter weather. I did not step out of the house. On Saturday, winter really strode in with a big ice storm. On the way to his parent's house for an "out for Thanksgiving" dinner at a crab house, Lloyd said the roads were dreadful until he got to Grantsville. They made it down to Rockville safely, and now I just hope they can come home before another bad storm hits.

Saturday night the storm was bad enough that we lost electrical power, which I did not enjoy at all, being home alone. Sunday morning revealed a tree down in my driveway. I had to depend on my brother Rodney to cut it up and get the lane free. Since there was at least a good inch of ice covering everything Sunday morning, our church service was canceled. When we get ice, the church's parking lot could be used for ice hockey. Maybe Bittinger should try to field a hockey team. I can't go anywhere, since the deck and ramp are a sheet of ice.

I was very lucky when I was young that I had many perfect, traditional Thanksgivings. Although we did not have to go over the river and through the woods to go to Grandmother's house, we drove a car instead of a horse-drawn sleigh. However, my pony and horse already knew the way to my grandmother's house since we always stopped by to pay a visit to Babbie and Pappy. She always had a treat for Misty and Joey too. But that is off the subject of Thanksgiving.

Every year my brothers and sisters would come home for Thanksgiving, and we depended on a visit from our Westminster relatives, Aunt Helen and cousins Mike and Courtney, and of course, Uncle Dale, and sometimes other odds and ends of relatives stopped by. We never got tired of the traditional dinner of turkey, mashed potatoes, sauerkraut, and stuffing.

Sometimes we had fried turkey, which some of my family prefers to the roasted one. This year, since lots of my extended family went to visit their in-laws, it made more sense to cut up the turkey in pieces and fry them, instead of roasting a whole big bird for only seven people. We dined at my mother's house for the Thanksgiving treat.

Today, Monday, the rain has pretty much taken away

PACK 31 PEDALS THE CANAL — October's family bike trip outing of Cub Scout Pack 31 featured a 15-mile bike ride along the C&O Canal. The bicycle excursion originated at Paw Paw, W.Va., and came to an end in Oketown. Scouta who completed the trip received their C&O Canal patch, and for completing the first of five sections of the canal they also earned a spoke patch. When a Scout travels the entire canal and all spoke patches are earned, the spokes will encircle the large patch. Pictured from the right in the first row are Coty Reaali, Joshua Bernard, Nathan Gover, Jesse Paugh, Dylan Paugh, Nick Aahby, and Russell Gover. In the second row are Eric Roblaon, Nathaniel Weikling, Nick Callia, Trevor Mesaenger, Brandon Pritt, Tyler Sanders, and Matthew Bernard. In the third row are Jeff Rush, Tanner Polce, Billy Goldaborough, Bryan Berghelm, Willard Aahby, and Tyler Ewing. In the fourth row are Michael Herdeaty, Michael Gibbons, and Andrew Dale. It was not reported if the Scouts sang as they rode: "I've a bike, her name is Sel — 15 miles along the C&O Canal."

the snow cover, so it looks bad for post-Thanksgiving skiing for my ski-crazy family. I just can't wait for them to return home from Silver Spring. I miss them, but their pets drag around with their heads hanging down and taildrooping. Claire's big black Lab even crawled into my bed. She took a lot of room, but I was glad for her company.

I am thankful that my girls have already experienced the real traditional Thanksgiving with lots of family together, the usual feast, and lots of cousins to play with. Not this year, and I don't know what the future will be either. But they did experience an event straight from American culture for the first three centuries of our history.

I awoke just around dawn on Saturday with a volley of shotgun shots. There we go again, as deer hunting season has arrived and the Bittinger area is the "deer center." On the way home from Thanksgiving house at my mother's, my girls saw about a dozen adolescent deer frolicking in our fields. They looked so carefree. Since there was no sign of any antlers in the whole bunch, they should be OK this week. The gun shot that woke me up caused a strange dream for me. (I was in a war zone with a group who was taking holiday dinner for the troops.) Now, for the next two weeks there will lots of worry about the safety of our dogs, horses, and ponies.

Actually it is a little scary even when driving around here, as the local roads are lined up with pickups and every woods is loaded with people with high-powered weapons. Most woods around here are lined with rhododendron and other thick shrubs, so even when you are pretty close to the road, the roads may be out of sight from the woods.

Right now at noon on Monday, I don't know whether Boo and Emily heard when I was talking with my girls, who said they were ready to leave for home, but Boo is standing on the couch with her front feet on the back to get a better view outside for Lloyd and the girls to drive up. Emily just cocks her ears. Emily is very good to tell when her family is close. She often waited out at the end of the lane beside the telephone pole when I came home from work, as she still does in wait of the return of the girls from school.

Well, the dogs jumped the gun, as it will be another few hours until my family will roll in. They finally made it home, safe and sound.

Speaking of jumping the gun, what about all these shootings before dawn? What kind of loonies would shoot guns before they have a clear view? Once again on Tuesday, the guns started before 6 a.m. We still have almost two weeks to go, living in a war zone.

Yesterday on a short drive I saw a pickup truck with the back full of guys in blaze orange with their guns lying on their laps. It is not a very appealing sight, compared, for example, to the only kind of hunting I ever participated in, which was the old-fashioned fox hunting. It consisted of a big pack of hounds and the huntsman with his horn, and the rest of the hunt staff in scarlet coats. The rest of the hunt followers in the field were tastefully dressed in black, white, and tan, mounted on magnificent horses.

When the hounds found a scent, the whole mass of horses began running over countryside, jumping fences, streams, and ditches. The sounds of the hounds and the horn's bright notes, followed by the thunder of horses, was breathtaking. Anyone breaking any strict protocol, breaking the strict dress code or running over the hounds suffers social disbandment.

Even my old friend who has been with me from the first grade, all through high school, college, and since, admits this dreary weather is just miserable. He always maintains that November is the most beautiful month. If you like grey, damp, and mud, I guess this is the month for you. But last Saturday, we had a gathering of the old crowd of Garrett Hall at University of Maryland, College Park. Besides Steve and his wife Eileen, who was not in that picture back 30 years or so, Walter Haydel, who was ready to go under the surgeon's knife for a torn rotor cuff tendon in his shoulder, reminisced.

We couldn't resist phoning another member of Garrett Hall, Steve Wineberger, formerly of Manhattan who now lives in Boca Raton, Fla., where he practices law and hangs out on his beach front apartment and does some golfing. We teased him about what a screw up that Florida vote is. But he was sure he punched a good hole so his vote counted for Gore. However, it did sound pretty nice down there — 75 degrees and sunny. We tried to talk him into coming up and visiting us, and to bring along the sunshine. Steve told him it is beautiful here, since we just got an ice storm. But without sun, the scene after the storm is not that pretty. Both Walter and I hooted and yelled that Schlosnagle didn't know what he was talking about. Wineberger said we should come down there. No problem, just send us a bunch of plane tickets and we will be there.

Unfortunately, he does not have his place in Manhattan, where we had many good times. If he still had that place we could just meet him in New York, but alas, his lease has run out. What a great apartment it was on the 39th floor down almost at the south tip of Manhattan. His balcony was great to watch the 4th of July fireworks over the Hudson River. He is the proud new owner of one of my best paintings depicting a storm and titled "Heavy Weather." I don't think it was ever exhibited in Garrett County except in my living room for awhile. Wineberger is one of my best art patrons. He already has bought some of my best paintings (and also expensive ones).

This morning I was anxious to get my snow tires on my car and, on the way to Grantsville, I thought I should retract all negative stuff about November, because early today was a lovely day with some beautiful cobalt blue sky peeping out of lovely white tinge of clouds. The landscape was pretty, with gentle blends of beige, pinkish tan, dark red shrubs, and a thick stand of creamy yellow grasses. There was still a handful of trees holding on with red and gold leaves. The sun was so bright that I needed my sunglasses.

Among many frustrations of my disability is that I can't sew, and that used to be an important part of my life. When it really drives me crazy is around Halloween and other times that the girls need costumes or repair or alteration on their clothes. But hope is in sight, as Thelma Emory, a wonderful seamstress and lover of children, has volunteered to teach Caitlin how to sew. A few years ago they rented their little house of our friends, Laurie and Tom Bulka, with their three children. Now that the Bulkas have moved down state, Thelma really misses the kids, so she offered to teach my daughters to sew. The girls seem interested in fashion design, as that is an important skill for that line of work. As soon as my girls have an empty day (which is not too often), they will start their lessons.

Caitlin will join her soccer team at Southern Middle School this Wednesday evening for the annual award presentations for the season. Caitlin was on the championship Under-12 team, so she is due to pick up another trophy.

Joyce (Mrs. Harley) Brennenman returned home from Mon General Hospital last Thanksgiving, but a slight stroke put her back in the hospital at Cumberland Memorial. Ruth DiPaolo visited her on Monday evening.

Home Health Therapist Debbie Friend Helping Patients Speak

by Peggy Santamaria

The scene has been recreated for audiences hundreds of times: Annie Sullivan with feverish purpose pumps water over the little girl's hands until she utters the single syllable — "wa." With that partial word, Helen Keller's dark isolation is dispelled and she re-connects with the world around her.

Helping a person discover or regain the ability to speak is the challenge of the men and women who are speech pathologists. "It may not always be as dramatic as Helen Keller's case, but it is an appropriate example," said Debbie Friend, a speech therapist who works with patients requiring the home care services of the Garrett County Health Department.

The patient, treated at home because he or she is only able to get out with great difficulty, may be recovering from a serious automobile accident, illness, or other injury. Providing multiple services, the home health team permits the patient to convalesce at home, rather than in a nursing facility, following a hospital stay.

Friend provides services to patients of all ages. "Most of the people I work with have had a stroke, but this does not mean they are necessarily elderly. More and more young people are suffering strokes and heart attacks. I have worked with stroke patients who are in their 40s," she noted. Typically, such patients may lose all control on one side of the body. They may need to learn to swallow again; they may need to learn how to eat.

But these challenges may be faced not only by victims of stroke, but by anyone who has suffered brain injuries in an accident.

The person who loses the ability to speak following an injury or illness may experience a sense of anxiety and futility, Friend explained. "Once a patient can communicate again, the level of frustration is reduced. When I'm working with kids and their parents, they are so excited and so grateful when a child is able to communicate."

Friend said that her heart is really in her work as a speech pathologist. Born with a cleft palate, she worked with a therapist to achieve the clear articulation that marks her speech today. "My speech therapist made such a difference in my life. Anyone who knows me knows that is why I chose this profession. If I can help just one person, it will be worth it. My goal is to open a free clinic some day," she said.

The skills that Friend brings to the home care team blend with those of the occupational and physical therapists. "All three of these disciplines work together to get the patient back to a functional level."

Friend underscores the fact that at anytime anyone of us may require the therapies and support services offered by Garrett County Health Department's Home Health team. For information on the services offered by this department, persons may call 301-334-8113 or 301-895-3112.

Survey Reflects Drug, Alcohol Use By County Youth

The 1998 Maryland Adolescent Survey, reflecting drug and alcohol use by state youth, indicates that Garrett County youngsters meet or exceed their peers in the use of alcohol or illegal drugs, according to information from the Garrett County Health Department. The data are responses from students in grades 6, 8, 10, and 12 to questions on use of beer and wine, liquor, marijuana, crack, methamphetamine, and amphetamines. The data show the following comparisons:

Dr. Porcaro To Lead Program On Colon Cancer

John Porcaro, M.D., will host a presentation titled "Colon Cancer: The Importance of Early Detection" next Wednesday, Dec. 6, at the Mary Browning Senior Center, 104 East Center Street, Oakland. The presentation begins at 11:15 a.m. and will focus on various procedures that can detect colon cancer.

Dr. Porcaro, of Dr. Porcaro & Surgical Associates, will explain the procedures colonoscopy and sigmoidoscopy. Both of these procedures are tools for early detection of colon cancer, which is the number two cause of cancer death for both men and women combined. However, Porcaro said, it is one of the most preventable cancers, because with early detection, doctors can identify and remove precancerous growths. "Given this information, it is advisable for seniors to be screened for colon cancer, regardless of whether or not they are showing symptoms," stated GCMH Wellness coordinator Debora Nichols.

This program is offered at no charge. The "Senior Wellness Program" is an ongoing series of presentations and screenings designed around the special needs and interests of this particular age group. Persons planning to attend are requested to register for the program by calling 301-533-4327.

AHA Reports Big Meal May Lead To Heart Attack

An unusually heavy meal may increase the risk of heart attack by about four times within two hours after eating, according to a study presented this month at the American Heart Association's Scientific Sessions 2000. Researchers said the finding indicates that eating the heavy meal may trigger the attack in much the same way as physical exertion and outbursts of anger — especially in someone who has heart disease.

The lead author of the report, Francisco Lopez-Jimenez of Brigham and Women's Hospital in Boston, said it is the first time that overeating in itself has been shown to increase the risk of heart attacks. Lopez-Jimenez pointed out that there is a distinct difference between risk factors developed over a lifetime, such as obesity, high cholesterol, hypertension, and advanced age, and those that act as triggers for a heart attack. "Both are potentially dangerous," he added.

According to the researchers, eating and digesting food releases many hormones into the bloodstream, which increase the heart rate and blood pressure, and may increase the substances that help form clots. The temporary rise in blood pressure increases the oxygen requirements and creates an extra burden on the heart. High blood pressure may also rupture cholesterol plaques in the arterial walls, triggering the formation of a clot that can block a blood vessel and trigger a heart attack or stroke.

The effects of fats in the bloodstream were also noted by the authors. These fats cause a rise in insulin that responds to the need to burn energy. This insulin may affect the blood vessels that lead to the heart and decrease the normal relaxation of the coronary arteries.

lungs, those with suppressed immune systems, and women in their second or third trimester of pregnancy. Vaccination of persons who have direct contact with at-risk individuals such as health care providers, nursing home staff members, and household members of those in the high-risk group should also receive vaccine.

The clinic will be held at the plaza from 10 a.m. to 6 p.m. that day. The cost of the influenza vaccination is $10. Pneumococcal vaccination will be available at a cost of $17. If a person has a Medicare card, the Garrett County Health Department will bill Medicare for this service.

According to a health department spokesperson, pneumococcal pneumonia is a serious disease that is responsible for a substantial number of illnesses and deaths in the United States.

Pneumococcal disease is caused by a bacteria which can lead to serious infection of the lungs (pneumonia), the blood stream (bacteremia), and the covering of the brain (meningitis). People at greater risk from the disease include those 65 and older, the very young, and individuals with other health problems such as alcoholism, heart or lung disease including asthma, kidney failure, diabetes, HIV infection, or certain types of cancer.

Influenza, or flu, is caused by a virus with typical symptoms such as an abrupt onset of fever, aching, sore throat, headache, chills, extreme malaise (tiredness), and nonproductive cough. Influenza can lead to viral pneumonia. The flu incubation period is 24 to 72 hours, with the illness lasting two to seven days. The infectious period is approximately three days after the onset of symptoms. Yearly vaccinations are recommended for high-risk and moderate-risk individuals because the viruses that cause flu frequently change and immunity may decrease in the year after vaccination. This year's vaccine contains A/Panama, A/New Caledonia, and B/Yamanashi components.

Persons who have questions about either vaccine should contact their physician or the local health department at 301-334-8111 or 301-895-3111.

Lupus Support Groups To Meet

Connections, the network of western Maryland Lupus support groups, has scheduled meetings for next week in Cumberland and Hagerstown. These organizations, sponsored by the Maryland Lupus Foundation, will meet on Monday, Dec. 4, 7 p.m., at the Hagerstown Presbyterian Church, and in Cumberland on Tuesday, Dec. 5, 6:30 p.m., at the Brandenburg Center, located along Country Club Road.

For additional information or to receive a free packet of information about lupus, persons may call the Maryland Lupus Foundation at 800-777-0934.

Report Links Low Estrogen/Heart Attacks

A recent report from the American Heart Association (AHA) links low estrogen levels to heart attack in premenopausal women. According to the report, a woman is more vulnerable to sudden, serious heart disease during the time of the menstrual cycle, when her estrogen levels are at their lowest.

Researchers also found that other health risks only worsen the odds for heart disease in premenopausal women.

"We found that significantly more premenopausal women experienced their heart attacks during or after their periods, when their natural estrogen levels are low," said lead researcher Bettina Hamelin, Pharm.D., associate professor of pharmacy at Laval University, Quebec, Canada. She noted that these young women also had a number of other important risk factors such as smoking and diabetes.

This estrogen/heart disease link was first recognized after long-term cardiovascular study in the late 1970s. After tracking the residents of one town for many years, researchers noted that age 55 seemed by Tom Johnson, M.D.

CLOT BUSTING

"Clot busting" drugs for treating the patient with an acute heart attack have been available for some years. But, they are in the news now because they have just gotten better. TNK is the abbreviation of the newest thrombolytic (technical name for the clot busters). This drug is easier to administer, quicker to act, and more likely to be successful in reversing a heart attack than TPA, the drug which pretty much replaces. However, TPA remains available as the only drug approved for use in an acute stroke (a therapy also available at Garrett Memorial Hospital).

As good as this drug is, its success depends heavily on timely administration. First and foremost, the patient with the acute heart attack must get to the hospital without delay. Too often patients wait, thinking that the chest discomfort, nausea and sweating that commonly occur with the beginning of a heart attack are indigestion and will simply go away. Precious time is lost, and the potential for damage to the heart is increased with every minute that goes by. Clot busters are most effective when given early — "Time is muscle," as we caregivers say. It pays for everyone in the community to know and recognize the early signs of the heart attack and activate the EMS system (911) as soon as possible so that treatment can begin.

Once the patient is in the system, a well-rehearsed protocol is followed. This begins with the rescue squad and is picked up by the emergency room personnel. A rapid series of steps is taken so that the correct treatment can be started as quickly as is feasible. To the patient and his or her family, the flurry of activity may seem chaotic. But, each member of the team has designated duties to ensure prompt diagnosis and treatment.

The Garrett County Memorial Hospital has been part of the National Registry of Myocardial Infarction (NORMI) since that program began over 10 years ago. Through this, we actually monitor our performance in the treatment of acute heart attacks, and are compared to other hospitals, both in our state and nationally. I am very proud to say that we have always performed better than the national average in these critical areas. This certainly would not be the case if it weren't for the dedicated doctors, nurses, nursing assistants, technicians, and other hospital personnel. These caregivers realize the importance of maintaining a team equal to the task.

So the news is that we have a new and better drug to use when treating patients with heart attacks. But, more importantly, at the Garrett County Memorial Hospital, we have a well trained and dedicated team that can assure that this new treatment is available when needed and used to its fullest potential.

to be a "magic number" for menstrual cycle prior to women: before age 55, they seldom had heart attacks, but after 55, the rate increased significantly. Hamelin said more data are needed to confirm that there is a vulnerable time during the menstrual cycle which may constitute a trigger in women at risk for heart disease.

The hypothesis states that high levels of estrogen circulating in a women's bloodstream may help protect her heart, which could be one reason a woman's risk of cardiovascular disease increases after menopause, when hormone levels decrease, Hamelin said. "We wanted to understand whether the natural increase and decrease of estrogen during a woman's

Huskies Run Into Elkton Wall, Downed 42-0 In State Semifinal

Northern High School's varsity football season came to an end one game shy of the state championship contest as the Huskies were defeated 42-0 by the undefeated Golden Elks of Elkton High, the odds-on favorite to claim the state crown tomorrow against 10-2 Forestville. "We were hammered, no doubt about it," NHS head coach Phil Carr admitted afterward. "We ran into a team that was bigger, faster, and stronger that dominated every aspect of the game. They were the best team we've faced in several years, and were also far better than their squad that beat us in the playoffs last year."

Despite the way the season ended, Carr and his coaching staff gave their small but gritty squad unqualified praise for a season that surprised everyone. "I've never been more proud of any group of kids

I've ever coached in any sport," the Huskies' skipper said of his squad, which finished with an 8-3 mark that included seven straight victories and a huge playoff quarterfinal upset of heavily favored Cambridge-South Dorchester two weeks ago.

"One of the hardest things to do is to come off an undefeated season, and we had lost a lot of major players from last year's squad. I honestly thought that a winning record this year would be a success. The guys wouldn't settle for that though, and worked their tails off from day one of practice right through to the end of this contest. Elkton coach Bill Russell told us after Friday's game, "We know we'll be seeing you again next year." The praise our guys drew from Elkton's players and even the referee unit from Washington County for our clean play and for not giving up even when it got to be hopeless says a lot about our character. That really makes me proud."

THE HUSKIES "PLAYED THEIR HEARTS OUT," despite losing 42-0 Friday at the hands of Elkton's Golden Elks, according to Northern High School varsity football head coach Phil Carr. The Maryland 1A semifinal match-up featured a determined but outlasted NHS squad, which nonetheless hit the Elks with everything they had for the entire contest. These photos capture some of the grave-digger defense's hits from the day. Above, cornerback Brandon Kamp (#15) takes on Elk halfback John Triplett with a textbook head-on tackle, wrapping up the speedster's legs and driving in and up with his own shoulders; fellow Huskies Mark Wolf (#31, diving at the far left), Toby Gilpin (#79), and Trey Brennenman (#7) had chased the speedy runner to the outside, where Kamp was ready to nab the prey on the third-down play and force an Elkton punt. (Note the sideline yardage marker partially obstructed by the ballcarrier's helmet.) Below, NHS stalwart Mark Wolf (#31) corrals Elkton fullback Dain Culver, who has reportedly signed a letter of intent to play for national power Virginia Tech. Wolf has his prey trapped like a deer in the headlights, while fellow linebacker Bill Rodeheaver (#30) zeroes in for the kill from the immediate right and big defensive lineman Tommy Menges (#78) duels with his blocker. Photos by David Foster.

A large contingent of all ages of Husky faithful made the four-hour journey to witness Friday's battle, where they saw their favorites put up a fight against a team that could pass for a 4A playoff squad. Elks' halfback John Triplett led off the scoring for the second straight NHS-Elkton meeting by scoring on a 10-yard carry early in the first quarter. (Last year Triplett took the opening kickoff back all the way to open that contest with a touchdown.) The other half of the Elkton backfield, fullback Dain Culver, scored later in the stanza on a five-yard run that made the score 14-0.

Husky linebacker/fullback Mark Wolf, hampered since the Westmar loss with a severe hip pointer, took another shot to the hip that sidelined him for several plays in the first quarter, but the warrior came back in and finished out the contest despite the pain, gaining 61 yards on 19 carries and leading the defense with 10 tackles.

The Elks' run continued when an errant second-quarter Northern pass attempt was picked off by Elkton defensive back Tony Weaver, who streaked 65 yards for a touchdown. With less than two minutes to go in the half the Elks struck paydirt again, as quarterback John Russell launched a 64-yard scoring strike to split end Shane Earl, putting the Huskies down 28-0 at the half.

"Those were a pair of bad breaks in the second quarter," commented Carr. "If we had gone into the halftime locker room down by only two touchdowns, I think we would have had a chance to bounce back."

The Elks went on another 14-point stampede in the third quarter, as Triplett scored on a six-yard run and Russell carried the ball into the endzone from two yards out to cap the scoring at 42-0. Both teams gave their youngest members playoff exposure during the fourth quarter as the squads duelled each other to a standstill. Elkton, which to date has outscored its opponents 398-68, amassed 425 yards of total offense on the day, evenly divided between 213 rushing yards and 212 yards through the air. Russell completed 7 of 11 passes, and as Carr observed, "Russell is a top-flight quarterback. He was reading our defenses at the line of scrimmage and calling audibles that capitalized on what he saw; and with the tools he had to work with in his offensive line, backfield, and receivers, it's no wonder they're undefeated."

Russell also rushed for 63 yards, Earl caught five passes for 205 yards, and Triplett rushed for 95 yards. "Elkton's squad is incredibly balanced, and superbly coached by Coach Russell and his staff," said Carr. "They have a first-class organization all the way around, both on and off the field."

Carr agreed with Russell that the two teams could meet again in post-season play next year. "We have a lot of underclassmen coming back, and many of them have three playoff games under their belt." NHS loses only six seniors to graduation this spring — Wolf, Toby Gilpin, Bill Rodeheaver, Brandon Kamp, Jeremy Frazee, and Rob Dozier — and has twice that many experienced juniors ready to return, and four sophomores who started in Friday's state semi-final contest. "Myself and all our coaches have graded this year's team with an 'A,' and feel we're looking at another 'A' squad next season. The coaching staff did its best job in my four year here, they and the players took the bull by the horns at the start of the year and never let go," stated Carr. When pressed, the modest coach admitted that he himself puts an average of

Huskies Run

40 hours a week into his coaching responsibilities on top of his full-time teaching work. "It's all part of the deal. I love teaching the game of football, as do all our coaches. We love what we're doing."

"It's nice to see my first group of kids go through four years together and come out one game away from the state championship. I've had Wolf, Gilpin, Kamp, and Rodeheaver with me since by first day as head coach at Northern. They've had a great run, and should be proud of what they've accomplished in winning 18 games in two years while losing only four times. I'm really proud of them and the winning tradition they've established and passed on to the younger guys. We'll do everything we can to keep it going."

"I'd like to personally express our appreciation to everyone who contributed to our two playoff road trips, which made the guys feel really special. They also loved to see the fans in Grantsville who turned out to cheer us on as we left town for Elkton. We are really thankful for all the parents and volunteers who assist with every aspect of the football program this and every year."

"Our weight room opens in January, and we can't wait to get the kids in there and put them to work," the Huskies' skipper said. "After they saw what Elkton produced through dedicated weightlifting work, they said they wanted to hit the weights hard too."

"We've got something really special going on here, and we aim to keep it that way."

Mountain Top League Results Are Announced

Condoerr opened its quest for a fourth consecutive undefeated season in the Mountain Top Basketball League by rallying to defeat 219 Motors, 76-66, Sunday afternoon. Condoerr trailed by nine at halftime, thanks to effective three-point shooting by 219 Motors' Jon Hegeman and Mike Fazenbaker. But Condoerr stepped up its defensive effort in the second half to hold Hegeman to just one bucket and Fazenbaker to none.

Tom Stem led Condoerr with a game-high 26 points, including 16 in the second half. Hegeman netted 12 to pace 219 Motors.

Beckman's blew a late four-point lead via costly turnovers, allowing Smiley's to pull out a narrow 51-47 victory in the second game.

ELKTON LEFT NHS FEW OPTIONS on the day, as the Golden Elks all but shut down the Huskies' option-heavy offensive scheme, a terror of western Maryland for two years running. Northern was held to zero points for the first time in recent memory by an opponent that have given up an average of less than one touchdown per contest all season long. Above, NHS quarterback Trey Brenneman (#7) looks for running room behind the block of big guard Toby Gilpin (#79). Below, Husky fullback Bill Rodeheaver (#30) attempts to flight off two Elkton tacklers as he takes a carry to the left side of the line around guard Tommy Mengee (#78). Northern head coach Phil Carr and his staff believe that Friday's defeat will prove the exception to the rule, however, as they lose only six seniors to graduation and return twice that many experienced juniors and a number of sophomores, four of whom started in Friday's contest. Photos by George Delbel.

Mike Harvey recorded 19 points and Joe Refosco finished with 11 for Smiley's, while John Orendorff and Jared Beckman led Beckman's with 12 and 10 points, respectively.

The final game was a blowout, as undermanned 84 Lumber was whipped by Deep Creek Ready-Mix, 74-32. Joey DiSimone led the winners with 28 points, while teammates Tim Beckman and C.J. Getson scored 18 and 17, respectively.

Neal Stoner netted 15 points for 84 Lumber.

The schedule for this Sunday, Dec. 3, pits Condoerr against Beckman's at 1 p.m., 219 Motors vs. Ready-Mix at 2 p.m., and 84 Lumber against Welding Rod at 3 p.m. Respective scorekeepers are Welding Rod, Condoerr, and 219 Motors. All games will be played in the main gym of Southern High School.

Floor Hockey Demo Set For Special Athletes

The Garrett County branch of Special Olympics Maryland will hold a floor hockey demonstration at Accident Elementary School on Sunday, Dec. 3 from 1 to 3 p.m. Chad Brown, director of the Garrett County Special Olympics program, described this sport as a combination of ice hockey and field hockey, in which players use a dowel rod to strike a felt puck.

"This demonstration is open to anyone age 8 or above and everybody, regardless of skill level, is invited to participate," Brown said. There will be team playing as well as instruction in individual skills, such as standing and shooting and puck control. Playoffs will practice passing drills and maneuvering around various obstacles.

Following the demonstration will be a general orientation meeting for those wishing to play in the future. Pizza and other refreshments will be served. Anyone who is interested in participating as an athlete, volunteering as a coach or assistant, or learning more about this event or other Special Olympics activities may contact Chad Brown at 301-895-3793.

Garrett County Outdoors

By Robert Youke

Maryland firearms deer season opened last Saturday, and local hunters braved an icy mix of rain and below-freezing temperatures to be a part of the traditional first-day rituals.

Despite the weather, many hunters were successful, checking in some very nice whitetail specimens. Successful hunters included Jim Hare, who got an eight-point buck in the Accident area, and Chris Bittinger, who got a six-pointer off Spring Glade Road. The Helbig clan did well. Andy Helbig got a nice six-point at Mt. Nebo and was joined in success with six-pointers by Gene and Chris Helbig. We also must mention Tom Cosner, who got an eight-point buck, and John Flanigan, with a spike.

In Region A, firearm deer hunters may take one deer. This deer must be antlered if taken from Nov. 25 through Dec. 7. This deer may be antlered or antlerless if taken on Dec. 8-9. Hunters who purchase a Bonus Deer Stamp ($5 for residents, $25 for nonresidents) may take a second deer. The second deer must be antlered if taken from Nov. 25 through Dec. 7. The second deer may be antlered or antlerless if taken on Dec. 8-9. The combined total firearm season bag limit for Region A is two deer. Firearm hunters may take only one antlerless deer within the combined total deer firearm season bag limit in Region A.

Right up until the opening of rifle season, local archers were still at it. Cliff Tasker got an eight-point with a bow in the Lost Land area and his son Brian also checked in an eight-point.

Dan Milavec, proprietor of D & B Sport Shop in Deer Park, harvested a very nice eight-point buck with his bow in the Bethlehem area.

CALLING ALL MARYLAND WILDLIFE ARTISTS
The Maryland Department of Natural Resources, in partnership with the Friends of the Patuxent Wildlife Research Center, invites Maryland artists to participate in the annual Maryland Migratory Waterfowl Stamp Design Contest by submitting an entry between Nov. 6, 2000, and March 7, 2001.

Better known as the Maryland Duck Stamp Contest, this year's event will be held in conjunction with the 2nd annual Patuxent Wildlife Art Show. Contest judging will begin Saturday, March 31, 2001, at noon in the auditorium of the Patuxent National Wildlife Visitor Center in Laurel. All artwork entered into the competition must be postmarked no later than March 7, 2001; the contest is open exclusively to Maryland citizens.

Contestants and the public are invited to attend and witness the judging process on March 31; admission is free. For complete contest rules and information, contact DNR on-line at: www.dnr.state.md.us/wildlife/duckstamp, or toll free in Maryland, at 877-620-8DNR, x8012.

"The Friends of PWRC Inc. are proud to be able to host the Maryland Migratory Waterfowl Stamp Design Contest, in conjunction with the Patuxent Wildlife Art Show," said Bob Travis, chairman of the Friends of the PWRC Art Show Committee. "The contest adds a unique dimension to the show. We heartily endorse the appreciation of wildlife through art. We are proud to partner with the Department of Natural Resources in this terrific program."

The weekend's events will include an evening reception on Friday, March 30, and a show and sale will take place on Saturday, March 31, and on Sunday, April 1. The cost of the Friday night reception is $20 per person.

GARRETT COUNTY FLYFISHERS PLAN CHRISTMAS PARTY

Don't forget that the Garrett County Flyfishers have planned their Christmas party for December 9 at McClive's Restaurant. Festivities will begin at 6 p.m., with dinner at 7. Guest speaker will be Chuck Furimsky. Interested in attending? Contact Bob Lancaster at 301-334-6124.

FLY-FISHING FOR CARP

Fishing isn't generally a hot topic this time of year, but this past weekend the Walker's Cay Chronicles featured Flip Pallot and the legendary Lefty Kreh fishing for carp on the Susquehanna River with fly rods. They were using the same equipment and many flies similar to what they use for bonefish in the tropics. The techniques were similar as well. They poled a flat bottom boat in shallow flat water, looking for fish to cast toward. This made me think about maybe trying this same thing on Deep Creek Lake or Broadford next spring. We have a good population of huge carp that aren't utilized as a game fish. Wait 'til next year.

State's Opening Day Deer Harvest Up; GC's Down

Maryland's total tally of the opening day firearms deer harvest increased by 2 percent over last year, but in Garrett County the figure was down by over 4 percent. The final two-week official firearm deer season totals are projected to top last year's harvest of 42,337 deer, according to the state's Department of Natural Resources.

Preliminary counts show 16,522 deer taken throughout Maryland on opening day this year, compared to 16,181 deer taken in 1999's initial tally. Garrett County hunters took 1,116 deer this past opening day, compared to 1,167 deer taken last year.

The top 10 counties for 2000 preliminary opening day totals are: Frederick, 1,797; Washington, 1,511; Allegany, 1,434; Carroll, 1,292; Dorchester, 1,240; Garrett, 1,116; Kent, 968; Wicomico, 818; Worcester, 716; and Queen Anne's, 680.

Maryland's firearm deer hunters take 57 percent of all deer harvested in the state. Private landowners often rely on deer hunting to manage deer populations on their lands, and 86 percent of deer killed in Maryland are bagged on private property.

The firearm season continues in Maryland through Saturday, Dec. 9. Complete hunting information and licensing requirements are available in the DNR publication Hunting and Trapping in Maryland 2000-2001, and on-line at www.dnr.state.md.

Muzzleloader Season Opens December 16

The late segment of Maryland's muzzleloader deer season will open Saturday, Dec. 16, and will continue through Saturday, Dec. 30. An estimated 32,000 muzzleloader hunters will pursue white-tailed deer in the state over the course of the two-week season.

Muzzleloader hunters are reminded that only one deer per day may be taken in Deer Management Region A, which contains the whole of Garrett County. Telescopic sights and sabots are permissible for muzzleloader deer hunting statewide. Muzzleloader rifles must be at least .40 caliber and be loaded with not less than 60 grains of black powder or an equivalent amount of Pyrodex.

Maryland's white-tailed deer harvest during the 1999 two-week muzzleloader season was 6,105 deer. The top 10 muzzleloader counties for 1999 were: Garrett, 667; Frederick, 651; Allegany, 631; Washington, 542; Baltimore, 348; Charles, 277; Montgomery, 259; Kent, 258; Queen Anne's, 256; and Carroll, 255.

Complete hunting information and licensing requirements are available in the DNR publication Hunting and Trapping in Maryland 2000-2001, and on-line at www.dnr.state.md.

DNR Duck Stamp Contest Seeking Art Submissions

The annual Maryland Migratory Waterfowl Stamp Design Contest, sponsored by the Department of Natural Resources in partnership with the Friends of the Patuxent Wildlife Research Center, is accepting entries through March 7. Better known as the Maryland Duck Stamp Contest, the event is open to Maryland citizens only.

This year's contest will take place in conjunction with the second annual Patuxent Wildlife Art Show, and the judging process will begin March 31 at the Patuxent National Wildlife Visitor Center in Laurel. Contests and the public may attend the judging process. A public reception is slated for the evening before the judging, and a show and sale are slated for March 31 and April 11.

OYFL HOLDS FAMILY NIGHT — The Oakland Youth Football League recently concluded its 2000 season by holding its "family night" in the Southern High School cafeteria. Over 250 players, coaches, parents, and other family members attended. Fred Gregg, league coach and SHS head coach, was the speaker, and awards were presented to the winning teams. Above, league officer Dave Bender, left, presents to Oakland Jet coaches Tracy Rinard, center, and Jim Bosley the NFL division championship plaque, sponsored by the Oakland Elks Lodge. Below, Ravens coach Rick Wakefield, right, presents the Elks championship plaque to Chuck Fitzwater, coach of the NCAA division co-champion Gonder Insurance Tigers. Not present was a representative of the co-champion Gregg's Pharmacy Mountaineers. The league includes six flag football teams for youth in grades 4-6, and four tackle teams for youth in grades 7-8.

"On behalf of Governor Glendening and Lieutenant Governor Townsend, I encourage Maryland's talented artists to submit their work to the annual contest," said DNR secretary Sarah Taylor-Rogers. "Maryland's waterfowl and their natural habitats have long been a vital part of our state's heritage, economy, and quality of life. Many of America's most beloved waterfowl artists have received their inspiration from Maryland's shorelines. I am confident this year's contest will celebrate that proud tradition, introduce new talent, and showcase Maryland's beauty."

Complete contest rules and information is available on the DNR web site at www.dnr.state.md.us/wildlife/duckstamp, or by calling (toll-free) 877-620-8DNR, ext. 8012. Tickets for the March 30 evening reception may be obtained by calling 301-497-5789.

Lakers Up Streak To 6-0 With Win Over Frederick

An 11-day layoff for the Garrett Community College men's basketball team apparently had no negative effect on the Lakers, who recorded an 85-69 victory over Frederick Community College last night at Hood College. It was the Lakers' sixth straight win in as many starts this season, and their first Maryland JUCO Conference victory of the 2000-01 campaign.

Kortaa Hall and Robert Hall led the scoring for the Lakers, with the former recording 22 points, including a 12-for-14 effort at the free-throw line and three three-point buckets, and the latter finishing with 13 points and nine assists.

Also reaching double figures for Garrett were Zeke Ramos, who recorded 12 points, and former Northern Husky Dustin Long, who had 11 points and also blocked five shots.

The Lakers, who held a 42-29 lead at halftime, actually won the game with an outstanding effort at the foul line, from which they converted 28 of 33, or 85%, of their attempts. The Cougars finished with a 28-25 edge in field goals, and went 9-for-14 from the line.

Cordy Clark scored 13 points for the Cougars (3-3), DeAngelo Weeks finished with 12, and Marc Falcone and Chris Sutton each netted 11 points. Falcone also grabbed six rebounds.

The Lakers will play again this Saturday against Community College of Baltimore City, and the contest will be played at Southern

Laker Women Crush Allegany In Basketball Opener, 78-40

The Garrett Community College women's basketball team drew a line in the sand for all JUCO opponents to see last night, as the Lakers absolutely destroyed arch-rival Allegany College of Maryland by a 78-40 margin on the Trojans' home court. Sophomore guards Donielle Gaines and JoEllen Kitt led the way, pouring in 17 and 16 points respectively.

GCC wasted no time last night in running up a 54-16 halftime advantage on its way to the 38-point win. The Lakers dominated both ends of the court to the closing buzzer, connecting for 32 field goals as compared to the Trojans' 14, and nabbing 38 rebounds to AC's 20. Freshman Laker forward Donna Lyles cleared the boards for 12 rebounds, and sophomore guard Crystal Kimble added 10 points to Gaines's and Kitt's tallies. LaSandra Cousins led Allegany (1-2) with 13 points and six rebounds.

The Garrett women (1-0), will join their undefeated men's counterparts tomorrow night for a GCC doubleheader at the Southern High School gym in Oakland. The women take on Montgomery-Takoma Park at 5 p.m., and the men are slated to play Community College of Baltimore City at 7 p.m. The squad of women's coach Ann Wellham rounds out the week with road trips to Harford CC on Monday and Penn State-Fayette CC on Thursday. The Laker women will not play their first game on the McHenry court until Monday, January 8, against Butler County CC.

whether or not the commissioners would appoint the treasurer, or if the position would be subject to the regular hiring procedure within the county code. The commissioners said they would like to appoint the first supervisor of tax collection, and then the position would fall into the regular hiring procedure upon the exit of the appointed individual.

A general obligation bond to help fund the under-construction Garrett County Health Center is also being sought by the fiscal authority. An amount not to exceed $3,500,000 has been requested in the form of the general obligation bond. A rural development bond has already been approved for the facility, which is currently being built along Memorial Drive and will eventually house the entire Garrett County Health Department.

Because the funds are needed quickly, the commissioners asked if the bill could be introduced early. Edwards said it could be entered as an "emergency" bill, which automatically takes effect when the governor signs it. "We could possibly have it as early as February," Edwards said.

Finally, the commissioners asked to change the wording of the county's salary study commission member designation. Currently, one member of the Parent-Teacher Association is supposed to be appointed to the board. However, as the PTA no longer exists in the county, the commissioners have asked that the representation come from the Garrett County Advisory Committee on Education (ACE).

"This is a simple house-keeping change that I would like to point out could have been done locally if we had code home rule," noted Gregg.

Hafer and Edwards said they would pursue the county requests. The two men will host their annual pre-session informational meeting on Monday, Dec. 4, at Garrett Community College auditorium, beginning at 7 p.m. They will review their plans for the 2001 session and will entertain questions and comments from the public.

WETLANDS CONSTRUCTED AT SCHOOL — The Grantville Elementary School community recently completed the construction of a wetlands habitat. With the assistance of Gary Morfoot of the Agricultural Stabilization and Conservation Service the wetland was designed and excavated. The funds for this venture were provided by the Project Learning Tree Green Works Program. Wetland plants are to be purchased for spring planting. Soon the students will be able to observe a wetland environment, complete with plants and small animals, which will provide hands-on learning experiences for the students of Grantville Elementary. Pictured above, planting a tree near the wetlands site, are Shawn Uphold, Jason Warnick, and Blair Silbaugh.

Michael's passenger, Mildred Arlene Michael, 71, also of Westernport, was transported by Southern Rescue to Garrett Memorial, where she was treated and released.

Later that same day, Michael James Gilbert, 40, Aberdeen, was driving a 1986 Mercedes 190E sedan on Mayhew Inn Road when he lost control of his vehicle on an icy curve near McComas Beach Terrace. The car went sideways, skidded off the roadway, and struck a tree. A private vehicle transported Gilbert to Garrett Memorial, where he was treated and released.

Friendsville School Community Practices Giving On Thanksgiving

During the months of November and December the virtue or character trait of giving is the focus of the students of Friendsville Elementary School. The school staff decided to do more than talk about giving by allowing the students to experience giving first-hand.

Each morning during the announcements, students have listened to and learned the song "Helping Hand," which begins with the following words: "Sometimes people lose their way without any place for them to stay. Help them on the road to home; don't just leave them all alone...."

This song became the catalyst for the monthlong project as the school "adopted" a homeless shelter in the Pittsburgh area. This meant that students would make a variety of needed items based on a list supplied by the shelter.

November 9 was designated by the school community as the "Giving" day. All students and over 20 parents came together to actually make the needed items. Pre-K students made wall hangings and decorations for the Thanksgiving Soup Kitchen in Pittsburgh, and kindergarten students created Thanksgiving center-

The sheriff said the problem in Garrett County is as great as in more urban areas, when comparing the populations.

"Last month, the narcotics task force advisory board hosted training sessions at the sheriff's office for local law enforcement. In addition to most road patrol and criminal investigators from the sheriff's office, Oakland City Police officers and troopers from the McHenry Barrack attended," the sheriff said, explaining that he and Welch wanted the officers to be aware of the symptoms of persons under the influence of these drugs and the signs or clues that a drug investigation is warranted when dealing with a traffic stop or other encounter in the community.

"It is a great task," Sanders said. "Some of these drugs are easily disguised in candy and other food items. They may even appear as innocent as water. Yet, as almost occurred recently in Preston County, there can be deadly consequences. The kids know that the 'recipes' for these drugs can be found on the Internet, and their ingredients are as common as floor stripper. We think it is time the rest of the community learned more about these substances. I've had inquiries from parents wanting to know what these things are that they hear kids talking about, or hear about in the media."

The sheriff said it is understood that most parents are reluctant to acknowledge this is a problem they may have to face in their own homes. "Therefore, we are asking them, as well as all adult community members, to come with the thought that the information you will gain could be used to help a relative, a kid you coach or teach, or the next door neighbor," the sheriff said. "We also believe some kids may be deterred from the use of these drugs if they know 'everyone' is aware."

Welch and Sanders explained that information about treatment programs will also be made available. "If it sounds like we're trying to scare the community, perhaps that's correct," the officials stated. "but we will take whatever approach is necessary to spread the word about these deadly drugs."

use of 'ecstasy' in the last two years. This tracks information provided to us by the Drug Enforcement Command of the Maryland State Police.

Welch said that the MDMA drug was found in eight counties in 1998, and in 1999 the number had risen to 16 counties. All but three Maryland county law enforcement agencies have reported the seizure of the drug this year, she said. The Maryland State Police reported four arrests in 1998 for possession of MDMA, and in 1999, that number rose to 12 arrests. This year there have been 46 arrests, two of which were in Garrett County.

"But asking the police to deal with the problem only with arrests is not the answer," Welch said. "Drug usage is a community-wide problem that requires a

GCC Schedules Wide Variety Of Spring Courses

In addition to courses in art, music, writing, and theater, Garrett Community College will offer other special interest courses during spring semester, according to the recently published schedule of credit courses.

A wide range of computer courses will be available, most of which are scheduled in the evenings. Three of these will be given at the National Guard Armory in Oakland. Windows 98 (CA 114) is scheduled on Tuesdays from 6 to 9 p.m.; Microsoft Excel (CA 183) on Mondays from 6 to 9 p.m.; and Introduction to Computers on Wednesdays from 6 to 9 p.m.

Other computer courses scheduled on the McHenry campus are Windows 2000 (CA 115) on Mondays from 6:35 to 9:35 p.m.; Intro to Computer Aided Drafting (CA 119) at a time to be determined; Desktop Publishing (CA 223) on Mondays and Wednesdays from 3 to 4:30 p.m.; Microsoft Word (CA 224) on Tuesdays from 6:35 to 9:35 p.m.

Also available on the McHenry campus are Accessing the Internet (CA 251) on Tuesdays and Thursdays from 5 to 6:30 p.m.; Microsoft Office (CA 261) on Mondays and Wednesdays from 5 to 6:30 p.m.; Web Page Design (CIT 201) on Tuesdays and Thursdays from 10:10 to 11:40 a.m.; and Introduction to Computers (CS 105) at various times in the afternoon and evenings.

Two early childhood education courses, both taught by Dr. Gail Herman, will be held at the Mary Browning Senior Center in Oakland. Early Childhood Education I (ED 101) is scheduled on Tuesdays from 3:30 to 6:30 p.m.; and Movement Experiences with Children (ED 104) is set for Mondays from 3:30 to 6:30 p.m.

Two law enforcement courses will be offered at the McHenry campus. Introduction to Criminal Justice will be taught by Raymond Strubin on Tuesdays from 6:35 to 9:35 p.m.; and Criminal Law will be taught by Jack Turney on Thursdays from 6:35 to 9:35 p.m.

For persons with an interest in adventure recreation, several adventure sports courses will be available. Cross Country Skiing (AVS 133) is scheduled for Jan. 26, 27, and 28 from 9 a.m. to 6 p.m. and Jan. 23 from 5 to 5:30 p.m. Beginning Open Water Scuba (AVS 190) will meet at the Frostburg State University pool eight Sundays from 1 to 5:30 p.m. beginning Jan. 28 and ending March 25.

Two outdoor emergency-related courses will be given during the week of spring break, March 17-25. Fundamentals of Search and Rescue (AVS 250) and Advanced First Aid (Wilderness First Responder) (AVS 260) will be instructed by a team from Stonehearth Open Learning Opportunities (SOLO).

Other special interest courses available in the spring semester are Ecotourism (AVS 292), a new course to be taught by a visiting professor from Estonia on Wednesdays from 6:30 to 9:30 p.m., Plant Propagation (HORT 103) scheduled on Tuesdays and Thursdays from 1 to 3 p.m., and Animal Health (ANSC 105) scheduled on Wednesdays from 6:30 to 9:30 p.m.

Some of these courses may have prerequisites. Interested persons may call 301-387-3044 for further information. Students may register at the Student Assistance Center weekdays during business hours through December 12 and again beginning January 8.

Friendsville Lions Remember Others On Thanksgiving

Members of the Friendsville Lions Club were joined by community volunteers last week to assemble Thanksgiving dinner baskets for area residents. Lions Club president Marlin Lawson said that the group prepared 120 baskets for families and individuals. "This is the ninth year that our club has done this project with great pride," Lawson said.

The group worked at the Friendsville fire hall preparing the baskets, which contained turkey or ham, white potatoes, sweet potatoes, cranberry sauce, onions, bread, canned vegetables, and candy.

"We're grateful to the fire department for letting us use the facilities and to the single donor who makes the project possible," Lawson concluded.

DCL Board Sets Meeting

The Deep Creek Lake Policy and Review Board has slated its next meeting for 7 p.m. Tuesday, Dec. 5, at the Deep Creek Lake Discovery Center at DCL State Park. The meeting is open to the public, and citizens may provide input and comments during the proceedings.

The meeting will include a discussion on the eligibility status of recreational permit sites on the lake for individuals who do not possess lake access or frontage on the buffer strip. These sites are affected by the lake land sale currently being conducted by the Department of General Services. The permitting issue was brought to the board by Cecil Hultschneider, who has maintained one of the permits which was issued by Penelec prior to the state's takeover of lake management in 1980.

The second agenda item will deal with the board's identification of issues for the preparation of the Recreation and Land Use Plan for Deep Creek Lake, which will guide the lake's future management by DNR. This issue was tabled at the November meeting because of time constraints.

That previous meeting included a review of proposals to allow larger tour boats on the lake. DNR is studying recommendations and will report back to the board early next year with a proposal to manage tour boats under a concession program.

Persons interested in further information on the meeting and the Deep Creek Lake Policy Review Board may contact DCL Recreation Area manager Paul Durham at 301-387-4111.

ther information on the meeting and the Deep Creek Lake Policy Review Board may contact DCL Recreation Area manager Paul Durham at 301-387-4111.

Home Decorating Contest Set In Mtn. Lake Park

The annual Christmas decorating contest sponsored by the town of Mtn. Lake Park is set for the evening hours of Tuesday, Dec. 12. Residents interested in participating are asked to turn on their outdoor Christmas lights by 6 p.m. that evening, after which contest judges will begin driving by the decorated homes.

Cash prizes of $100 for first place, $50 for second place, and $25 for third place will be awarded. Three honorable mention recognitions will also be awarded. First prize may be claimed by the same home only once every three years.

Contest winners will be announced the night of the Girl Scout caroling event, Wednesday, Dec. 20, at the M.L.P. ticket office. Winners' names will also be published in The Republican the following day.

New GCC Juvenile Justice Program Begins In Spring

New students will be able to enroll in the new Juvenile Justice program at Garrett Community College beginning in the 2001 spring semester, according to Dr. Lillian Mitchell, dean of academic and student affairs. "This program is for individuals who really want to help turn a child's life around," Mitchell said. "We know that children at risk need help from trained professionals who are dedicated to making a difference."

The Juvenile Justice program is designed to train persons to work as supervisors of incarcerated youth at residential facilities of the Maryland Department of Juvenile Justice. It was developed in conjunction with personnel from the youth centers who helped the college determine what skills and knowledge are required of persons working in such facilities. Both a 30 credit hour certificate and a 64 credit hour associate in applied science degree in juvenile justice are now available at Garrett Community College, the first college in the state to offer this program.

Students interested in enrolling in the Juvenile Justice program for spring semester 2001 should contact the Student Assistance Center of the college at 301-387-3044. Financial aid will be available for eligible full-time students and part-time students who take at least six credits. Registration for spring semester courses will continue through December 12, and will resume again January 8.

"Mom, when you gave me Mooch for my birthday last month, I was so happy, but now I feel like I could just give him away sometimes. He won't do anything I tell him to. Mooch runs into the street all the time. He could get hurt! When will this doggie learn to listen to me?"

Could God feel the same way about us at times? He has given us the opportunity to live our lives according to His word. Certainly we are more safe and happy when we do this. Yet, our Heavenly Father sees us do ourselves so much harm by not following His Divine advice. Yet, we are fortunate that God does not ever feel like giving up on us.

Worship God this week. Learn more of His Holy Word and live by it each day.

Maryland Again Considered Wealthy State, But Pockets of Poverty Remain

By Lori Silverstein
Capital News Service

WASHINGTON - Maryland has one of the highest household income levels and one of the lowest poverty rates in the nation, according to Census Bureau estimates released Wednesday.

The estimates on 1997 income and poverty rates showed that Maryland had the third-highest average income, at $45,289, of the 50 states and the District of Columbia. Only New Jersey and Connecticut had higher average incomes in 1997, according to the Census.

Maryland's poverty rate was also 46th lowest in the country, with 9.5 percent of state's residents living below the poverty line. The national average was 13.3 percent.

"Maryland is experiencing the strongest economy in the state's history," said

Michelle Byrnie, spokeswoman for Gov. Parris Glendening. "Maryland not only has a strong economy, but also a high quality of life."

But not all Marylanders are sharing the wealth.

"There's a lot of exuberance of how well we're faring. But many people don't know that not everyone is sharing this prosperity," said Steve Hill, director of Maryland Budget and Tax Policy Institute.

Most of this wealth is concentrated in central Maryland: Howard County's average income of $68,024 was seventh-highest in the nation and Montgomery County was 18th-highest in the country with an average income of $62,130.

Montgomery County officials said they are proud of the county's high ranking for income, but "no one should get the impression that we don't have our own social and economic challenges in the county."

"We are a bio-tech leader in the world. We have a lot of scientists and folks in technology community who are doing well. And we have a huge federal presence," said David Weaver, spokesman for Montgomery County Executive Douglas Duncan. "While we are very proud of how well many of our residents are doing, we also never lose sight of the fact that a number of people have difficulty making ends meet," Weaver said.

Montgomery County's poverty rate of 5.6 percent was fourth-lowest in the state, behind Howard, Carroll and Anne Arundel counties. In Baltimore City and rural counties like Somerset, by comparison, poverty rates were above 20 percent. Baltimore City had the highest percentage of residents living in poverty, at 23.7 percent, and Somerset had the lowest average income in the state, at $26,867. Garrett County ranked fifth from the lowest, with an average family income of $30,197. This is higher than Allegany County's average of $28,794, which is third from the lowest in the state.

Somerset County officials said they are not surprised by the rankings, because rural counties do not have the same economic opportunities as suburban Howard and Montgomery.

"I can't think of any state in the union that doesn't have areas of poverty and wealth," said Frank Adams, Somerset County's finance and programs coordinator. "Our economy is an agricultural and water-based economy. They have the corporate businesses, we don't."

Hill said that with all of the prosperity in central Maryland, many people are shielded from the truth that not all Marylanders are doing well economically.

"A lot of wealth is concentrated in central Maryland. As you get to far western Maryland, the Eastern Shore and Baltimore City, there is widespread deprivation," Hill said. "Most of us aren't really aware of the deprivation in the rest of the state."

Byrnie said the governor's office is aware that "not every part of the state is sharing in this prosperity" and is working with House

Speaker Casper Taylor, D-Allegany, on One Maryland legislation to help lagging areas move forward. Hill said state legislators will consider other alternatives in the upcoming legislative session to help lift up the rest of the state. That includes proposals to increase the threshold for health insurance, so more low-income residents have access, and to raise the state earned-income credit on taxes for working parents.

Maryland's Relative Wealth No Guarantee of Charitable Giving

By Lori Silverstein
Capital News Service

WASHINGTON - It's the giving season again and, once again, Maryland residents are not expected to be particularly giving. In a "generosity index" released in September, Maryland ranked 44th out of the 50 states and the District of Columbia in charitable giving. And state officials said they are not surprised.

Larry Walton, chair of the Maryland Gives! Task Force called it "just another report, saying the same thing." But Walton, whose task force was set up by the secretary of state to study and encourage charitable giving, noted that Maryland used to be ranked 47th, so "the envelope is going in the right direction. It just needs to pick up speed."

Maryland, which the report called the sixth-richest state in the nation, sat near the bottom in charitable giving, along with other relatively wealthy states of New England.

Meanwhile, Southern states with lower incomes, like Mississippi and Arkansas, topped the chart. The index was based on a comparison of average income and average itemized charitable deductions from 1998 federal tax returns.

A trustee of the Ellis L. Phillips Foundation, which released the report, said Maryland's top income groups were bringing down the state's overall rank by giving a small percentage of their income to charities. While the high cost of living in Maryland could be used as an excuse by most people, that is not the case for the highest income brackets.

"The top income average is $507,779. When you have $508,000, you're not worried about the cost of living," said George McCully, the Phillips trustee. "It's just the top group holding you (Marylanders) back."

Walton said the task force has seen that people with incomes over $100,000 tend to give smaller percentages than those earning less.

"It doesn't mean Maryland doesn't have people who are generous," he said.

TV-PIPELINE

Here are some highlights of Kent's Life

By Taylor Michaels
OTVData Features Syndicate

Q: Please tell me what you can about beautiful Heather Paige Kent from That's Life.
—Michael Thom, West Palm Beach, Fla.

A: Her new CBS series may be struggling in the ratings, but Kent has emerged as an actress to watch. The New York native earned a fine arts degree in musical theater and began her career appearing in light opera productions on the West Coast.

A 14-piece band that she organized with a friend used to open for Mel Tormé, Dana Carvey, Paula Poundstone and the Manhattan Transfer. Cast as a stand-up comic in the stage musical Funny Business, she researched her role by performing in comedy clubs.

Her TV credits include co-starring roles in Jenny and Stark Raving Mad and guest appearances on Chicago Sons, Men Behaving Badly, Early Edition and several other shows. Kent lives in Newport, Calif., with her husband, plastic surgeon Terry Dubrow.

Q: Whatever happened to Mysterious Ways? Will it be back? —Jon and Tiff, Fort Myers, Fla.

A: It never went away. Mysterious Ways airs Tuesdays on Pax TV, NBC's Pax's big sister channel, gave a limited run to the series in late summer to build viewer awareness, after which the show moved as planned to Pax. Unfortunately, a lot of the show's fans didn't follow that move, and they remain under the impression that Ways was an NBC show that was canceled.

Q: What was the name of the movie in which Gary Cooper played a Quaker? —Donna Sage, Flint, Mich.

A: Friendly Persuasion (1956). Q: Who played ALF? —Joe Weisgarber via e-mail.

A: Paul Fusco, creator of that NBC sitcom about the cat-craving Alien Life Form named Gordon Shumway, provided the voice of the title character, who was a puppet in most scenes. When a long shot required ALF to be seen in his entirety, the costume was filled by either circus performer Mihaly "Michu" Meszaros or actor Abraham Verdugo.

Heather Paige Kent

Q: Did the actor who played Sarah's brother William in Skylark play in Guiding Light several years ago? —Wilma Coleman, Webb City, Mo.

A: Yes, James Rebhorn is a soap opera veteran whose roles include Bradley Raines on Guiding Light (1984-85). He also has worked on Texas, The Doctors and As the World Turns.

Q: Why do I never see actor Howard Rollins anymore? —Mary Thomas, West Jefferson, Ohio.

A: After a long battle with drugs and alcohol, the In the Heat of the Night actor died of complications from lymphoma on Dec. 8, 1996.

Christmas Ball Dance Scheduled At Accident VFD

All residents of the Accident community are invited to attend the Christmas Ball Dance on Saturday, Dec. 9, at the fire hall. The free family-oriented event will feature music by a DJ, dancing, games (including Say "No" Bingo), door prizes, and refreshments.

"For those who are interested, there will be opportunities to have memento photos taken. There is a $1 charge for this, but in past years we have found that people really seem to like to get together with their friends for a photo," said event coordinator Virginia Like.

The Christmas Ball Dance is sponsored by the Accident Community Planning Group. People of all ages are welcome but children under 11 must be accompanied by a parent or guardian, Fike explained. For more information, persons may call 301-746-8944.

Kapok Tree Story Leads Into Study Of Rain Forest

The Amazon rain forest has been the subject of a study unit for the last six weeks in Marlene Perkins' third grade class at Grantsville Elementary School.

Dawn Moon, teaching assistant from Frostburg State University, developed the multi-discipline rain forest program based on a Lynne Cherry book, The Great Kapok Tree. From that point, the students proceeded with several activities involving computer use, a science experiment, letter writing, and creating an educational presentation.

The students explained how they had used their I-Book computers to research information on the rain forest. Each child created an illustrated dictionary of new words learned during the research. "They have been very enthusiastic about this unit," Perkins said.

The students made writing paper from recycled scrap paper, and they learned about deforestation

Moon explained.

The culmination of the writing segment of the unit required the students to write persuasive letters to various companies that manufacture paper products. The purpose was to encourage the conservation of trees by substituting other plants such as hemp, kenaf, corn stalk, cotton, and bamboo to make paper. "One student told me that when we write letters we have power," Moon said.

MD's Wealth

but it does raise questions that he has been unable to answer.

"I wish I could put my finger on it and correct it," Walton said. "It would make my job a lot easier."

Bill Ewing, executive director of the Maryland Food Bank, said his organization has found many Marylanders who are willing to give. While he could not say that his donors tend to be more or less wealthy, he did have an idea of why the richest might sometimes be less generous.

"Why it's true I don't know. But poor people are closer to the problem and know what it's like. If I had to guess, I'd say that is it," Ewing said.

Ralph Nappi, president of the Make-A-Wish Foundation's Mid-Atlantic office, said his organization has had a very positive experience in Maryland, but he knows that there are small groups of people who are less willing to give.

"When we go out and speak to people in Maryland, they are always generous and kind. But Maryland is a pretty big state with a lot of people all over. So there are pockets where people have a lot of money and don't give a lot of it," Nappi said.

Walton said the geography of the state could also keep people from giving.

"The geography creates a situation where a lot of people who live in Maryland work in another state. Sometimes when you have that, you don't have as much putting roots down in local communities," Walton said. "But I can't prove it. I wish I could."

Walton, who is also president of the United Way of Central Maryland, said maybe the non-profits should be doing more.

"I'm in that business every day... I'd like to think we're doing a good job asking. But maybe we're not getting the message out," he said.

Ewing said that "when we do make our point with people, they are willing to give."

And McCully tried to put the best face on the report for Maryland. "If you invert this index and call it an opportunity index, you could say in proportion to income, Maryland has a greater opportunity for giving than other states," McCully said. "There is the greatest room to grow."

Legislators Foresee An End To Five-Year Budget Surpluses

By Sean Mussenden

Capital News Service

ANNAPOLIS — The

honeymoon may be over.

After five straight years of budget surpluses — including an estimated $1 billion total surplus this year and $619 million last year — Maryland appears headed for a $201 million operating budget deficit in fiscal 2003, according to the state Department of Legislative Services Office of Policy Analysis.

Maryland law requires a balanced budget, so any shortfall in revenues would mean a corresponding cut in expenditures.

The legislative committee that signals to Gov. Parris N. Glendening what level of spending he can push through the legislature in the 2001 General Assembly session — the joint Spending Affordability Committee — indicated Tuesday that a smaller rate of spending growth than in previous years may be in order.

Legislators aren't looking for a lower spending increase, said the committee's House Chairman Nancy K. Kopp, D-Montgomery, at a Tuesday hearing, but the governor may be looking for a significantly higher spending increase.

"We will give a prudent (spending increase), something that allows the governor to spend on his top priorities," she said.

Glendening's communications director Michael Morrill said the governor's budget will not be introduced until January. But he said he expects "the governor's priorities will remain the same: to invest in education, and increase and sustain the quality of life for the people of Maryland."

Warren G. Deschenaux, director of the Office of Policy Analysis, said recent income tax revenue reductions, a general salary increase in 2002, and legislation enacted in 2000 would likely mean a $201 million deficit in 2003.

The Legislative Services fiscal office predicts a $9 million surplus is projected in 2002, a $172 million deficit is projected for 2004, and a $98 million deficit is projected for 2005.

"It does have a happy ending," Deschenaux said. A $19 million surplus is projected for 2006.

Heavy Federal Spending Offsets Maryland's High Federal Taxes

By Riyad Mathew
Capital News Service

WASHINGTON - For every dollar a Marylander paid in federal taxes in 1999, the state got back $1.29 in federal spending, according to a study released this week.

The study by the North-east-Midwest Institute said that while Maryland had one of the highest federal tax burdens per capita in the nation, that was offset by heavy federal spending in the state.

The federal government spent $42 billion in Maryland in 1999 on contracts, salaries, grants, Social Security benefits, and procurement. When other non-state payments are included, such as foreign aid and debt payments, the adjusted federal spending in Maryland was $9,882 per person in 1999, according to the report.

That was well above the adjusted national per capita spending average of $6,569. Only Alaska and Virginia had higher adjusted federal spending rates.

But Maryland also had the fifth-highest federal tax burden in the nation at $39.6 billion, or $7,663 per person compared to the national average of $6,569.

The resulting $1.29 return on the federal tax dollar in Maryland was the 17th-highest in the country. That was down slightly from its 1998 return of $1.33, but experts said it still showed the powerful economic influence of Maryland's proximity to the nation's capital.

"The proximity to Washington, D.C., which results in more federal jobs, dramatically affects the federal spending on salaries and wages," said Matt Kane, policy analyst for budget issues at the institute and one of the authors of the report.

"The federal money spent on salary and wages in Maryland is almost three times the national mark," said Kane. "The federal procurement in the state is also very high . . . more than three times the national average. That also has to do with the geographic location of the state."

A spokeswoman for Gov. Parris Glendening acknowledged the "unique position of the state" in relation to

"The governor's priorities are very much in sync with those of the Clinton-Gore administration," said Michelle Byrne, the Glendening spokeswoman. "Be it education, environment or healthcare, the emphasis given by the two governments is similar. That has gotten a lot of additional federal money into the state."

While total federal spending in Maryland was high, the state was in the middle of its neighbors when it came to the return on its federal tax dollar. Virginia, which had higher overall federal spending, and West Virginia, which had a lower tax burden, both got a better return than Maryland. Pennsylvania and Delaware both had sharply lower returns.

Experts said Maryland's relatively high federal taxes are just the "higher prize a wealthier state has to pay."

"The federal tax is uniform in all states. So it's simple: the higher the income, the higher the federal tax you pay," said Steve Hill, director at Maryland Budget and Tax Policy Institute.

"It's just the prize a wealthy state has to pay. A person in Mississippi for example, should not feel too happy because he or she is paying a smaller amount in federal tax compared to a Marylander," Hill said. "It just means that a person in Maryland enjoys a higher income."

Kane agrees, but argues that the federal tax is more of a burden for a wealthy state like Maryland. Higher income, he said, means a higher cost of living.

"The standard of living in Maryland is definitely more expensive when compared to a state like Mississippi," Kane said. "For example, the price of land will be much higher in Maryland . . . so will be the cost of other overheads. So while it's true that the federal tax system depends on how progressive a state is, it doesn't in anyway mean that higher incomes make it easier for the citizen," Kane said. "The tax burden, in all probability, is only greater for a wealthy state like Maryland."

Free Shuttle Van Service Available For Area Veterans

World AIDS Day Focuses On Men's Prevention Role

World AIDS Day 2000 is tomorrow, Friday, Dec. 1, and the worldwide topic of this year's United Nations observance is "Men and AIDS." In the United States, this 13th annual AIDS Day emphasizes the theme "AIDS: All Men — Make a Difference!" as developed by the American Association for World Health (AAWH), which adapted the global topic selected by the Joint United Nations Program on HIV/AIDS.

"AIDS: All Men — Make a Difference!" encourages all men to increase their awareness of the risk of HIV/AIDS infection for themselves, their partners, and their families, and to use their influence to help stem the tide of the HIV/AIDS epidemic. The Board of Garrett County commissioners has lent its support to the effort by signing a proclamation urging all local citizens to increase their understanding of the disease and make use of the myriad educational and preventive measures at their disposal to help further its prevention.

The AAWH has identified five reasons for the focus on "Men and AIDS":

- men represent the majority of people living with HIV/AIDS;
- men's behavior often puts their sexual partners at risk for HIV;
- unprotected sex endangers men's male and female sex partners;
- men need to give greater consideration to AIDS as it affects their families; and,
- men often do not give adequate attention to their own health.

"Men are a highly diverse group, and we must be cautious about making generalizations about their behavior," stated an AAWH spokesperson. "The hope is, however, that such a focus will result in greater awareness of the risk of HIV/AIDS among all men, whatever their age, race, or sexual orientation. It is also hoped that increased awareness will stimulate all men to use their influence to stem the tide of the HIV/AIDS epidemic."

COMMISSIONERS NOTE WORLD AIDS DAY — The board of Garrett County commissioners have signed a proclamation marking tomorrow, Dec. 1, as World AIDS Day in Garrett County, in accordance with the nation's theme of "AIDS: All Men — Make a Difference!" The commissioners join the Garrett County AIDS Council in urging all citizens to increase their understanding of HIV/AIDS as a global challenge and take part in its prevention through education and behavior management. Seated from left are Commissioners Wendell Beltzel, Fred Holaday, and Ernie Gregg, and standing are Hector Gomez, AIDS regional case worker for western Maryland, and Donna McClintock of the local AIDS Council and the HIV/AIDS Social Work Case Management Service of the Garrett County Health Department. Not pictured are members of Pandora's Box health drama troupe, who performed an original play for the commissioners on Tuesday that underscored the responsibility men have to play in HIV/AIDS prevention. Two new cases of HIV are reported among persons under 25 years old each hour in the United States.

AIDS epidemic."

Over 34 million men, women, and children worldwide are currently living with HIV/AIDS, with young people under the age of 25 accounting for more than half of all new infections, according to the United Nations. Last year 2.8 million deaths from HIV/AIDS were recorded, marking the highest annual total since the global epidemic began. The disease has taken its severest toll in the African subcontinent, although China, Russia, and the nations of Eastern Europe are also reporting drastic increases in infection rates.

Here in the United States over 850,000 people are now infected, and that number continues to increase each year. Every hour in America two new cases of HIV are reported in young people under the age of 25, and, in the population as a whole, women, youth, and racial and ethnic minorities appear to be particularly hard hit. Experts stress that, regardless of one's subgroup or behavior, no one should assume that he or she is completely safe from the disease.

For further information on HIV/AIDS awareness, education, and prevention activities, or to volunteer in promoting such efforts, interested persons may contact the Garrett County AIDS Council through the county's health department at 301-334-8253 or 301-895-3113.

Mountain Lake Park Observer

By Dan Whittlesey
Phew! It seems like this election will never be over. In my last article several weeks ago I pointed out that the whole world was watching us. I did a little bragging about our system in turning over power to the president-elect. I don't believe that a foreigner can fully understand our system, the difference in power and responsibility held by Florida Supreme Court while the court itself is apparently confused. They start making law where they should not have... Hopefully by the time you read this column we will be closer to a resolution.

One aspect of this whole affair that impressed me is the fact that when procedures are not followed then all sorts of unexpected troubles occur. Believe it or not, this applies to Mountain Lake Park government. When procedures are avoided in order to "save time" or "get the job done," then comes trouble, particularly in the political arena. I have tried to make this point a number of times. Florida certainly illustrates it.

I have attended several Zoning Appeals Board meetings. I think there are several problems there. The board has only three members, which I do not believe is enough to give a fair hearing to an appellant.

Bob Watson has been attending these meetings and has had to explain to the board the rules and regulations.

The board keeps no minutes. How can they be responsible to us and demonstrate what sort of job they are doing? How did this get started? I will bet that the "sunshine laws" would call for minutes.

A couple from Mountain Lake Park pointed out that the board should be very careful about variances. Too many variances allowed for no good reasons can be destructive of the whole zoning procedures and regulations. There is a problem here in that many residents go ahead and create violations of the zoning laws and then come to the Appeals Board for absolution at a later date. This is not the way it should work. The mayor and town council should address this problem.

While the election fever is still in the air, I have some vote totals for Mountain Lake Park. There were 1,179 ballots cast out of 1,860 registered voters.

For president and vice president, Al Gore received 354 votes, or 30%, George W. Bush received 793, or 67%, and others, which include Ralph Nader and Pat Buchanan, received 29 votes, or about 2%. It is interesting to note that the "others" combined could not have changed the outcome of the presidential race.

The race for senator in Mountain Lake Park was won by Paul H. Rappaport with 643 votes, or 56%. Sarbanes received 494, or 43%.

There will again be a judging of homes as the "Best Decorated for Christmas" The judging will be announced in the newspaper. Keep your eye out for it.

The Ticket Office will be presenting a sing-a-long given by the Girl Scouts on Dec. 20. Cookies and drinks will be served. Watch for further details in the weeks ahead. You are invited.

Farmers See Virtual Veggies As Way To Earn Real Money

by Rachel Brown
Capital News Service

The apples look shiny. The strawberries look scrumptious. The Christmas trees look full and ready to take home. And they should. They are frozen in cyberspace, part of a growing trend to advertise and sell Maryland farm produce over the Internet.

"There is a big push to get farmers marketing over the Web," said Ben Beale of the Maryland Cooperative Extension. "If you can direct-market products to the consumer you have an advantage."

Farmers get, on average, about 21 cents for every dollar the consumer spends, Beale said, but marketing over the Internet could push their return up to 90 cents for every dollar.

But Beale cautioned that the demand for cyber farm produce has to increase before the Web can be profitable for farmers.

For that to happen, it has to be easier for people who want to buy farm products to find the appropriate farm web page, said Dale Johnson, who compiles farm web sites at www.marylandagriculture.com. Johnson has collected just under 60 Maryland sites, which represents only about 0.5 percent of the state's approximately 12,000 farms.

Other states have a larger web presence. New York Department of Agriculture spokeswoman Jessica Chittenden said that farmers there, for example, have used the Web extensively. She pointed to www.nyapplecountry.com, a site that links to web sites of individual apple orchards around the state.

"This gives them another avenue to effectively and economically reach consumers who want New York products, but who can't get out to the country," Chittenden said.

But Johnson said that consumers are not yet flocking to Maryland's farm web sites.

"I have a small farm and I have a web page," he said. "We are not getting a lot of business from it."

Johnson said that one of the reasons his web business is slow is that people are accustomed to purchasing farm products in the traditional ways.

"People want to smell, see and feel the food they are going to buy," he said.

But Johnson hopes consumers will change their tune once they realize the benefits to farmers through direct web purchases. He has held public meetings to inform consumers of just that.

And farmers' awareness of the web's potential is increasing, Johnson said, that he adds about a web site a week to his list.

Farmers who are already advertising on the web are also becoming more sophisticated.

"The next thing that we realize we have to do is to get a credit card system for apple orders," said Priscilla Harsh of Clopper Orchards in Smithsburg.

She said that she has had a good response to the orchard's Internet presence—people as far away as Texas and New Jersey have visited the web site and had apples shipped to them. She thinks that the credit card system will make it easier for these long-distance consumers to purchase her goods.

Michael Pappas, owner of Eco Farms in Lanham, considers his web site a tool to break down several barriers. The first barrier is geography.

"There is no reason why I can't ship around the world," said Pappas. "It (the Inter-

Thanksgiving Dinner Cost Less in 2000

Americans had a little more to be thankful for this Thanksgiving Day, as the price of the traditional Thanksgiving Day dinner has decreased, according to the American Farm Bureau Federation (AFBF).

In its annual survey of the price of basic items found on the Thanksgiving Day dinner table, the average cost of this year's feast for 10 was $32.37, a $1.46 drop from last year's $33.83 average. It marks the first drop in average price for the Thanksgiving Day dinner since 1991.

The holiday feast included turkey, cranberries, pumpkin pie and all the trimmings. "Each year, thanks to the efforts of America's food producers, Americans are able to sit down to an abundant, affordable and safe Thanksgiving Day dinner," said AFBF president Bob Stallman.

"America's farmers and ranchers have experienced three years of economic uncertainty, low commodity prices and numerous weather disasters. Yet, their professionalism and dedication to producing the world's safest food supply makes this year's feast possible."

"This year we could all pause and be thankful for the many blessings our nation enjoys. And, as we sat down with our families to this traditional meal, it was appropriate to remember that it all started on America's farmland."

The AFBF shopping list included turkey, stuffing, sweet potatoes, rolls with butter, peas, cranberries, a relish tray of carrots and celery, pumpkin pie with whipped cream, and beverages of coffee or milk.

The cost of a 16-pound turkey, at $12.52, or roughly 78 cents per pound, was the largest contributor to the overall drop in the cost of Thanksgiving dinner. Turkey prices dropped $1.71 from last year's average.

Most items on the survey fell in average price. Other decreases included: gallon of whole milk, $2.56, down 39 cents; sweet potatoes, $1.94 per three-pound bag, down 23 cents; a 14-ounce package of cubed stuffing, $2.14, down 16 cents; a 12-ounce package of fresh cranberries, $1.54, down 16 cents; a 30-ounce can of pumpkin pie mix, $1.54, down 7 cents; a 16-ounce package of frozen green peas, $1.06, down 7 cents; a half-pint carton of whipping cream, $1.11, down 4 cents; and a 12-ounce package of brown-and-serve rolls, $1.36, down 1 cent. Additionally, a combined pound of celery and carrots, used for a relish tray, dropped 5 cents to 75 cents.

A combined group of miscellaneous items, including coffee and ingredients necessary to prepare the meal (onions, eggs, sugar, flour, evaporated milk and butter), cost $2.73, a 27-cent drop from last year's average.

The drop in the overall average of the Thanksgiving Day dinner survey did not surprise Joe Miller, an economist with AFBF. He said the decrease in prices across the survey reflected large supplies in pretty much all commodities. It also mirrored the rock bottom farm prices producers have faced over the past few years.

"There is typically a lag between consumer prices and what the farmers have been seeing," said Miller. "We've seen low prices at the farm level for two or three years now. Those dropping prices are just now starting to reach the retail level.

"What we are also seeing is a fairly large supply of pretty much every commodity produced in this country. It doesn't matter which commodity you talk about. Almost all have low prices, from cranberries to turkeys to grains. Just about everything has low prices."

A package of two nine-inch pie shells increased 12 cents to $1.54.

The decrease in this year's average price breaks a string of seven surveys when the price went up. This year's average was only $3.63 higher than the inaugural 1986 survey price of $28.74.

Prices of past surveys include: 1999 - $33.83; 1998 - $33.09; 1997 - $31.75; 1996 - $31.66; 1995 - $29.64; 1994 - $28.40; 1993 - $27.49; 1992 - $26.39; 1991 - $25.95; 1990 - $28.85; 1989 - $24.70; 1988 - $26.61; 1987 - $24.51; 1986 - $28.74.

The Farm Bureau Thanksgiving Dinner Survey is unscientific, but prices reflect actual trends across the nation. Bargain shoppers in all areas were able to purchase these items at a price comparable to the Farm Bureau survey. Supermarkets in some areas were offering ready-to-eat Thanksgiving meals for up to 10 people, with all the trimmings, for approximately $40.

One hundred twenty-one shoppers from 30 states participated in this year's Thanksgiving dinner price survey. The results were based on the best in-store price, excluding special coupon deals and purchase requirements. Farm Bureau's survey menu has remained constant since 1986 to allow for valid price comparisons.

Maryland Harvest Nears Completion

Despite rain showers on Saturday and Sunday of last week, state ag statistician Ray Garibay said Maryland farmers managed to work in the fields an average of 5.9 days. He said the needed wet weather has improved small grains and pasture conditions, but has slowed harvest.

Also, the lack of storage experienced recently in many areas is reported to put a damper on harvesting activities, especially for soybeans. Amounts of both corn and soybeans are being stored outside in some areas because of lack of storage. Currently soybean harvest is 88% complete, matching the five-year average. The corn harvest is virtually complete.

Surpluses in soil moisture levels have developed as a result of the wet conditions last week. Topsoil moisture rating was 4% very short, 28% short, 62% adequate, and 6% surplus. Subsoil moisture rating was 4% very short, 26% short, 67% adequate, and 3% surplus.

Garibay said this will be the last weekly crop and weather report for this year's growing season. The reports will resume again in April 2001.

Crop progress for the week which ended Nov. 26, listing the crop and percentages for this week, last week, last year, and the five-year average, in that order, follows:

Small grain seeded: wheat 95, 93, 96, 96; rye 92, 88, 95, 97.

Crop harvesting: soybeans harvested 88, 79, 92, 88.

Hay harvested: alfalfa, 5th cutting 90, 79, 94, 82.

Crop conditions for the week which ended Nov. 26, listing the crop and percentages for very poor, poor, fair, good, and excellent, in that order, are: barley 1, 4, 37, 57, 1; rye 0, 2, 15, 76, 7; winter wheat 1, 3, 34, 61, 1; range and pasture 1, 8, 36, 51, 4.

Broiler Setting Eggs Down In Selected States

The National Ag Statistics Service (NASS) reported that commercial hatcheries in the 15 states weekly surveyed by its program set in incubators 176 million eggs during the week ending Nov. 18. This was down 2% from the eggs set the corresponding week a year earlier.

Average hatchability for chicks hatched during the week was 82%. Average hatchability is calculated by dividing chicks hatched during the week by eggs set three weeks earlier.

Broiler growers in the 15-state weekly program placed 129 million chicks for meat production during the week ending Nov. 18.

Are You Interested in Raising Range Hogs?

What is a range hog? In broad terms a range hog is a hog that is raised out of confinement and has the opportunity to be out on pasture. What is an "all natural" hog? Again, in broad terms an "all natural" hog is a hog that raised on field crops and are not fed or injected with chemicals such as antibiotics.

I am excited about a potential niche market that we are presently pursuing in cooperation with Yoder's Meats Inc., Grantsville, and Yorkshire Farms located in New Jersey. Yorkshire Farms is a processor of gourmet meat products marketed throughout the country. The company is in need of the "all natural" pork and has met with area representatives on two occasions to investigate our interest in producing range hogs.

Why is Yorkshire Farms interested in buying hogs from our area? First of all we are blessed with a lot of open range located in the mountains, and secondly, Yoder's Meats are specialized in slaughtering pigs and already has an established transportation system into the Eastern Seaboard.

Presently, we are working together to define the regulations that will apply to raising range hogs. Also, for the producer's economic welfare, we are formulating production budgets that will establish a minimum guaranteed price that will be paid to the producer. Our first production goal is to supply approximately 250 range hogs per week weighing in around 240 pounds each. I would project that it will take at least three years to reach that goal.

There are still a lot of details that need to be wrapped up. As the process moves along we will be sponsoring informational and educational workshops. If you are interested in the project contact my office for details (301-334-6960).

Lohengrin, "Through the Eyes of Love" and "Bridal March."

The bride chose an ivory hand-beaded Italian silk gown by Mon Cheri with re-embroidered Alencon lace, an off-the-shoulder neckline and short cap sleeves with a modified natural waistline and semi-cathedral train. She carried a bouquet of ivory roses enhanced with limonium.

Attendants were attired in periwinkle A-line halter-top gowns by B2. They carried bouquets of ivory roses and carnations, periwinkle delphinium, purple stock, and limonium.

The mother of the bride chose an ivory sheath gown with a satin-trimmed jacket from the Catarina Collection. The bridegroom's mother wore a pale pink suit with a three-quarter length embroidered jacket. Both mothers wore a shoulder corsage of ivory roses with pearl sprays.

Following a reception at the Georgetown Centre in Pleasant Hills, Pa., the couple took a wedding cruise through the southern Caribbean.

Prenuptial events included a bridal shower hosted by the bridesmaids at West Virginia Wesleyan College, a shower given by the maid of honor and the bride's mother at Rock Run Inn, Elizabeth, a bridal trip to Deep Creek Lake, a pool-side luncheon at the home of the bride's parents, and a rehearsal dinner hosted by the bridegroom's parents at the Carriage Inn, Elizabeth.

The bride is a 1996 graduate of Elizabeth Forward High School and graduated magna cum laude with a bachelor of arts degree in elementary education from West Virginia Wesleyan College, Buckhannon, where she was affiliated with Alpha Gamma Delta Sorority. She is a fourth grade teacher in the Harford County Public School System.

The groom is a 1995 graduate of Northern Garrett High School and graduated magna cum laude with a bachelor of music degree in education from West Virginia Wesleyan in 1999, where he was affiliated with the Theta Xi Fraternity. He is an instrumental and general music teacher in the Harford County Public School System.

The couple reside in Forest Hill.

THE BUNNY HOP owner Rita Hare and her daughter, Denise Moll (right), stand with a few of the many items for sale at their new location in the former Ranch Restaurant along Rt. 42 north of Deep Creek Lake. The Bunny Hop can be reached by calling 301-746-4426.

Let's Get Down To Business!

This is a feature of The Republican to better acquaint our readers with various area business establishments.

The Bunny Hop

Owner Rita Hare has moved The Bunny Hop, but just a hop, skip, and jump away from its former location along Rt. 42. Now operating in the former Ranch Restaurant location, the popular shop continues to offer a wide variety of gifts, crafts, collectibles, and personalized items.

Rita and her daughter, Denise Moll, put a little bit of themselves into each of their creations, and in addition to the crafts, they offer countless other items. In time for the holidays, customers will find personalized Christmas creations. Wreaths are on display or can be customized. Floral creations and baskets can be ordered to accent the home or for special occasions.

The line also includes finished ceramic pieces, McCutcheon jams, Ganz Collectibles, knickknacks, magazine racks, wall and free-standing shelves, hand-decorated chests, clothes hampers, footstools, lamps, Cushy Critters, and Amish rockers.

The list goes on and on with hand-painted furniture, aromatic candles, imported table clothes, baskets, tree ornaments, dolls, bunnies, Tender Hearts, and much, much more.

"This is also the only place in the area to get Woollys—even some that have been retired," Rita said.

She explained that as her personalized craft trade increased and she found the need to specialize more on it, she has decided to clear out all her unfinished ceramic bisque pieces this month. "While they last, they will all be drastically reduced," she said. "We simply need the space."

Applications For BPW Scholarship Now Available

Applications are now available for the Garrett County Business & Professional Women's Club's annual scholarship for a woman over the age of 30 who lives, works, or furthers her education in Garrett County. The scholarship must be used for tuition, fees, books, travel, or related expenses to attend a university, community college, or trade or technical school program that leads to a degree or certification.

Selection is based on a combination of criteria, including academic ability, financial need, and civic involvement. The completed application and required documents, such as academic transcripts and letters of reference, must be returned by December 30, 2000.

The award is in the amount of $600. Applicants from prior years are encouraged to re-apply. Persons desiring an application or needing more information may contact scholarship chairperson Lisa Thayer Welch at 301-387-4405, evenings, or 301-334-1974.

Bazaar, Turkey Dinner To Fund Meal Delivery

Garrett County Community Action, Area Agency on Aging (AAA) will hold its annual Holiday Bazaar and turkey dinner to raise money for the Home-Delivered Meals Program on Thursday, Dec. 7, at the Mary Browning Senior Center, 104 E. Center St., Oakland.

"The bazaar has proven to be a very successful fundraiser for the program; and it also brings together the talents of the seniors in the community who make the crafts, the homemade baked items, and the candies," said Ronnie Padmos of the AAA.

Home delivered meals are provided to frail, vulnerable, homebound elderly to assist them in maintaining or improving their nutritional status and ultimately remain in the community, avoiding premature institutionalization. The program serves more than 225 elderly each year. "The average age of the meal recipient is 76. Most require assistance with three or more activities of daily living and take a minimum of four medications. Approximately 90 percent are low income and 68 percent live alone. Of those served, 74 percent are female and 26 percent are male, Padmos explained.

The program will deliver an estimated 28,000 meals in FY2001. "Because of the Home-Delivered Meal Program, frail elderly sometimes regain their health and are able to discontinue the meal at home and start to enjoy life at the meal sites in the community," said Padmos.

The bazaar starts at 11 a.m., and the turkey dinner will be served at 11:30 a.m. Dinner tickets are $5.50 and take-out orders are available. To make reservations, persons may call 301-334-9431, ext. 137.

The list goes on and on with hand-painted furniture, aromatic candles, imported table clothes, baskets, tree ornaments, dolls, bunnies, Tender Hearts, and much, much more.

"This is also the only place in the area to get Woollys—even some that have been retired," Rita said.

She explained that as her personalized craft trade increased and she found the need to specialize more on it, she has decided to clear out all her unfinished ceramic bisque pieces this month. "While they last, they will all be drastically reduced," she said. "We simply need the space."

Cinderella To Be Performed By WVP Theatre

West Virginia Public Theatre (WVPT) will present the fairy tale Cinderella December 13-23 at the Creative Arts Center in Morgantown. WVPT will present this Rodgers and Hammerstein family classic featuring Broadway stars and returning WVPT actors. Kristin Gillies will be returning to the WVPT stage in the role of Cinderella. Gillies debuted at WVPT last summer as Maria in The Sound of Music. Having appeared in the national tour of Camelot with Robert Goulet, Gillies has also appeared as Laurie in Okla-homa!, Eliza in My Fair Lady, and Belle in A Christmas Carol. New York City native Stanton Garr will be cast in the role of the Prince. Returning to WVPT after his role as Joe in last summer's production of The Most Happy Fella, Garr has also appeared as Robert Mission in The New Moon, Count Danilo in The Merry Widow, and the Pirate King in Pirates of Penzance.

Returning to the WVPT stage will be local performer Cyndi Bess as the Queen. Currently teaching voice and music education at West Virginia University, Bess previously appeared in the WVPT productions A Christmas Carol, Annie Get Your Gun, and The Sound of Music.

Pittsburgh native and long-time WVPT performer Americus Rocco will also be returning to the stage as the King. Most recently cast as Guiseppe in WVPT's production of Streets of Gold, Rocco has performed in over 35 WVPT productions.

Local actor Catharine Thieme will also return in the role of the Fairy Godmother. Known for performing Broadway tunes with soap opera star Bill Hayes for WVPT's Spring Cabaret, Thieme most recently appeared in the WVPT productions of The Sound of Music and The CUBS VISIT ANNAPOLIS — With the help of a generous donation from Oakland Elka Lodge, members of Cub Scout Pack 31 participated in the Boy Scout Fall Camporee and the U.S. Naval Academy Scout Day recently. Scouts and their families hunked in cabins at Elka Youth Camp Barratt, where they dined in the camp cafeteria and enjoyed nightly campfires. The Naval Academy Scout Day event included a U.S. Navy Seals demonstration and a college football game between the Midshipman and the Wake Forest Deacons. A shopping outing at the Annapolis Mall rounded out the three days of activities. Shown in the front row, from the left, are Nathan Gover, Coty Rasel, Joshua Bernard, Christopher Kianer, Jesse Paugh, Kane Browning, Dakota Pritt, and Andrew Dale. In the second row are Eric Robison, Tyler Sanders, Matthew Broadwater, Nathaniel Walking, Trevor Messenger, Brandon Pritt, and Jeremy Sharpless. In the third row are Billy Goldaborough, Bryan Berghelm, Jeff Ruah, Nick Sharpa, Matthew Bernard, John Compton, Heath Naylor, and Russell Gover. The local lodge paid registration costs for all Pack 31 Scouts and leaders for the events, which were sponsored by the MD-DE-DC Elka Association.

The next academic pep rally will be held Wednesday, Dec. 20, beginning at 2 p.m.

The students will present their Christmas program on Thursday, Dec. 21, at 1:30 p.m. in the cafeteria. The public is welcome to attend.

Santa's Shop will be held on Dec. 4, 5, and 6, for children to shop in the mornings.

Every Tuesday and Thursday from Dec. 12-Feb. 22, the Northern Garrett Youth Basketball League will meet from 6 to 8 p.m. in the gym. For more information, persons may contact Paul Edwards, director, at 301-895-4255.

FREE BLOOD PRESSURE CHECKS

Free blood pressure screening is being offered on Friday, Dec. 8, at Charlie's Restaurant in Friendsville from 9 a.m. to noon for anyone interested. The event is being sponsored by the Garrett County Health Dept. Outreach Program.

CRIME WATCH

The police academy for Crime Watch members is scheduled for Tuesday, Dec. 5, and Thursday, Dec. 7, from 6 to 9 p.m. at the Friendsville town hall. ## NOTICE TO CREDITORS OF APPOINTMENT OF FOREIGN PERSONAL REPRESENTATIVE

Estate No. 9068

NOTICE IS GIVEN that the Orphans' court of Garrett County, Maryland, appointed Lee Beveridge, 159 Beveridge Drive, Charlestown, PA 15022, as the Executrix of the Estate of Russell Marino, who died on August 22, 2000, domiciled in Pennsylvania.

The Maryland resident agent for service of process is Charles C. Case, whose address is 19746 Garrett Highway, Oakland, MD 21550.

At the time of death, the decedent owned real or leasehold property in the following Maryland counties: Garrett County, MD; being known and designated as Lot 8, Block B, Lakeside Development (Dist. 18 - Map 50 - Parcel 511); of record at Liber 311, Folio 244.

All persons having claims against the decedent must file their claims with the Register of Wills for Garrett County with a copy to the foreign personal representative on or before the earlier of the following dates:

(1) Six months from the date of the decedent's death; except if the decedent died before October 1, 1992, nine months from the date of the decedent's death; or

(2) Two months after the personal representative mails or otherwise delivers to the creditor a copy of this published notice or other written notice, notifying the creditor that the claim will be barred unless the creditor presents the claims within two months from the mailing or other delivery of the notice. A claim not presented or filed on or before that date, or any extension provided by law, is unenforceable thereafter. Claim forms may be obtained from the Register of Wills.

TRUSTEE'S SALE

1159 Sand Flat Road
Oakland, Maryland 21550

In execution of the Deed of Trust dated October 29, 1998 recorded in Liber 758, folio 381, among the Garrett County land records, the undersigned Substitute Trustees, any of whom may act, will offer for sale at public auction on DECEMBER 8, 2000, at 12:05 p.m., at the Circuit Court for Garrett County, at the Courthouse door, at Oakland, Maryland, the following property: 1159 Sand Flat Road, Oakland, Garrett County, Maryland, and as more particularly described in the Deed of Trust.

The property and improvements will be sold in "as is" physical condition without warranty of any kind and subject to all conditions, restrictions and agreements of record affecting the same.

TERMS OF SALE: A non-refundable bidder's deposit of $12,000 by cashier's/certified check required at time of sale except for the party secured by the Deed of Trust. Risk of loss on purchaser from date and time of sale. The balance of the purchase price together with interest thereon at 8.50% per annum from date of sale to receipt of purchase price by Trustees must be paid by cashier's check within 10 days after final ratification of sale. All real estate taxes, water rents and public charges/assessments shall be adjusted to date of sale. Purchaser shall pay all transfer, documentary and recording taxes/fees and all other settlement costs. Purchaser is responsible for obtaining possession of property. Time is of the essence for purchaser. If purchaser defaults, deposit will be forfeited and property resold at the risk and cost of the defaulting purchaser who shall be liable for any deficiency in the purchase price and all costs and expenses of both sales. If Trustees do not convey title for any reason, purchaser's sole remedy is return of deposit. (#1788)

Under and by virtue of the power of sale contained in the certain Deed of Trust from Lindsey Williams to Developers Mortgage Corporation, dated May 26, 1989, and recorded among the Land Records of Garrett County, Maryland, in Liber 531, folio 439 (the "Deed of Trust"), the holder of the indebtedness secured by said Deed of Trust (the "Lender") having subsequently appointed Paul J. Cohen and Charles F. Dodge, Jr., Substitute Trustees for the purpose of foreclosure, by instrument duly executed, acknowledged and recorded among the Land Records of the County aforesaid, default having occurred under the terms of said Deed of Trust and after the sale of the party secured thereby, the undersigned Substitute Trustees will offer for sale at public auction on the premises on:

at 12:00 NOON

ALL that certain piece or parcel of land situate, lying and being in Election District No. 14 in Garrett County, Maryland, lying on the east side of Deep Creek Lake, and along the west side of the Lake Shore County Road; adjoining the property of Pennsylvania Electric Company, between Smith's Run and the Tree Hollow and being part of the 44.09 acre tract that was conveyed by Fulcher O. Smith and Marie S. Smith, his wife, to Ann Blakeslee Smith, by deed dated July 2, 1948, and recorded in Liber 153, folio 442, one of the Land Records of Garrett County, Maryland, the part hereby intended to be conveyed is part of the subdivision of the tract of land formerly known as the Stella Roy Tract and is more fully described as follows:

BEGINNING at a concrete monument marked "N-192"; said monument being a corner of Pennsylvania Electric Company and being the fourth corner of the 44.32 acre tract that is described as TRACT No. 6 in the deed from Eastern Land Corporation to Youghiogheny Hydro-Electric Corporation, dated October 1, 1925, and recorded in Liber 91, folio 448, one of the Land Records of Garrett County, Maryland, said monument also being the 8th corner of the 44.09 acre tract hereinbefore referred to, and running thence from said monument with the line of Pennsylvania Electric Company, North 1 degree 47 minutes East 112.6 feet to an iron pipe; thence South 88 degrees 13 minutes East 163.50 feet to an iron pipe; thence South 66 degrees 59 minutes West 174.77 feet to an iron pipe in the line of Pennsylvania Electric Company; thence with the line of said Company, North 34 degrees 47 minutes West 13.92 feet to the beginning, containing thirty-four hundredths (0.34) of an acre, more or less.

BEING the same property as was conveyed to the Grantor by deed from Chester W. Spicher, Jr. and Gertrude H. Spicher, husband and wife, dated August 25, 1980, and recorded in Liber 411, folio 449, one of the Land Records of Garrett County, Maryland.

SUBJECT to covenants and restrictions as set forth in the above referenced deed from Chester W. Spicher, Jr., et al, to the Grantors.

SUBJECT to a reservation of all coal, gas, oil and other minerals underlying to the subject property, together with the rights and privileges incident thereto.

DESCRIPTION OF PROPERTY: The property is believed to be improved by a frame, "Ranch Style" home situated in the most desirable waterfront area of "Deep Creek Lake." The property affords a "Magnificent" view of the lake and is believed to contain approximately 126'-4" feet of water frontage and a 1A Dock Permit which allows for 3 boat slips.

TERMS OF SALE: A deposit of $15,000.00, payable in cash or certified check, will be required of the Purchaser(s) at the time and place of sale. The balance of the purchase price shall be due upon settlement, which shall occur within twenty (20) days following the final ratification of the sale by the Circuit Court for Garrett County, Maryland. Time is of the essence. The Substitute Trustees reserve the right to reject any and all bids.

Interest shall be paid by the Purchaser(s) on the unpaid purchase money at the rate of ten percent (10%) per annum from the day of sale to the date of settlement. In the event the Lender or an affiliate of the Lender is the successful bidder at the sale, the Lender or said affiliate will not be required to make a deposit or to pay interest on the unpaid purchase money. All taxes (including, without limitation, any taxes due and owing as a result of any tax sale(s), personal property taxes or otherwise), water rent and all other municipal charges and liens shall be adjusted to the date of sale and paid thereafter by the Purchaser(s). In addition, all other charges, expenses and liens owed against the Property including, but not limited to, all public charges and assessments owed against the Property and payable on an annual basis, such as sanitary and/or metropolitan district charges, if any, shall also be adjusted to the date of sale and paid thereafter by the Purchaser(s). The cost of all documentary stamps, recordation taxes, document preparation and transfer taxes shall be paid by the Purchaser(s).

The Property will be sold subject to all easements, conditions, liens, restrictions, rights of redemption, covenants, encumbrances, such state of facts that an accurate survey or physical inspection of the Property might disclose, agreement of record affecting the same, if any. The Property will also be sold subject to all existing housing, building and zoning code violations, subject to all environmental problems or violations which may exist on or about the Property, subject to all applicable rules, obligations, easements, equitable servitudes and regulations, subject to all matters and restrictions of record affecting the same, if any, and subject to all rights having priority over the Deed of Trust, if any. The Property will also be sold in an "AS IS" condition and without any warranties or representations, either express or implied, as to the nature, condition or description of the Property or the improvements thereon. The Purchaser(s) at the foreclosure sale shall assume the risk of loss for the Property immediately after the sale takes place.

In the event the Purchaser(s) fail to go to settlement as required, the aforementioned deposit shall be forfeited and the Property shall be re-sold at the Purchaser(s)' risk and expense.

If the Substitute Trustees are unable to convey the Property as described above, the Purchaser(s)' sole remedy at law or in equity shall be limited to the refund of the aforementioned deposit. Upon such refund of the deposit to the Purchaser(s), the sale shall be void and of no effect, and the Purchaser(s) shall have no further claim against the Substitute Trustees or the Lender.

ORDER OF PUBLICATION

The object of this proceeding is to secure the foreclosure of all rights of redemption in the following property, located and situate in Election District No. 4, Garrett County, Maryland, sold by the Collector of Taxes for the County of Garrett, State of Maryland, to the plaintiff in this proceeding, consisting of five (5) acres, more or less, and described in a deed from Joseph F. Howe and Alice A. Manos, dated September 2, 1994, and recorded in Liber No. 637, page 449, one of the Land Records of Garrett County, Maryland. The Complaint states, inter alia, that the amounts necessary for redemption have not been paid. It is thereupon this 27th day of November 2000, by the Circuit Court for Garrett County, Maryland, ORDERED that notice be given by insertion of a copy of this Order in some newspaper having a general circulation in Garrett County, once a week for three (3) successive weeks, warning all persons interested in the property to appear in this Court, by the 27th day of December 2000, and redeem the property and answer the Complaint, or thereafter a final judgment will be entered, foreclosing all rights of redemption in the property and vesting in the plaintiff a title free and clear of all encumbrances.

STANDING TIMBER FOR SALE

The Maryland State Forest and Park Service is offering for sale the following timber on 88 acres of Compartment #73 of Savage River State Forest.

This sale is estimated to cut 646,230 BD FT of live hardwood sawtimber according to the International "K" Saw Rule (FC-78), and 426 cords of hardwood pulpwood, more or less. All tallied trees 11" D.B.H. and larger with at least one 16' log to an 8" top D.B.H. with less than 50% defect were tallied as sawtimber. Timber is located one mile east of the intersection of New Germany and Frank Brenneman Roads off an access road which proceeds east through the Boys' Camp and through private property beyond. Timber is offered for sale subject to the following conditions:

1. Timber will be shown at 9:00 AM on MONDAY, December 4, 2000. Anyone interested in seeing this timber may meet at the intersection of New Germany and Frank Brenneman Roads at the above time and date.

2. Contract/Bid Forms will be available at the showing or from the Savage River State Forest Headquarters, 349 Headquarters Lane, Grantsville, MD 21536, or phone 301-895-5759.

3. A Security Bond in the amount of 10% of the bid submitted must be posted upon submission of the bid to the Maryland State Forest & Park Service.

4. The operator must be a registered Forest Product Operator in Maryland for the current year and hold a Certificate of Erosion and Sediment Control (Green/Gold Card) training to be awarded successful bidding.

5. A Performance Bond in the amount of 10% of the bid submitted must be posted upon acceptance of the contract by the State of Maryland. The Security Bond may be applied to cover the Performance Bond.

6. All timber volumes noted in this offering are estimates. Parties bidding on this timber should determine such volumes to their own satisfaction. No adjustments on the basis of volumes will be made with buyers.

7. Bidder may pay 50% of bid price on acceptance of the contract, with the remaining payable within 90 calendar days from bid acceptance. If buyer selects this option, the delayed payment must be covered by a payment surety bond in form acceptable to the State.

8. Bids will be received up until 1:00 PM on MONDAY, December 18, 2000.

NOTICE TO PUBLIC OF FINDING OF NO SIGNIFICANT IMPACT AND NOTICE OF INTENT TO REQUEST RELEASE OF FUNDS

TOWN OF MTN. LAKE PARK

The purpose of this Notice is to identify two separate but related actions to be taken by the Town of Mtn. Lake Park.

On or about December 16, 2000, the above named Town of Mtn. Lake Park will request that the Maryland Department of Housing and Community Development release funds under the Small Cities Community Development Block Grant Program to be used for the following project:

Project Title: "G" Street Acquisition
Purpose of Project: To acquire a dilapidated property and demolish the existing structure in order to eliminate a blighted condition.

Location: 309 "G" Street, Mtn. Lake Park, Maryland.

FINDING OF NO SIGNIFICANT IMPACT

Notice is hereby given that the above named municipality has prepared an Environmental Review Record on the project described in this Notice and has determined that said project will have no significant effect on the quality of the human environment. No further environmental review of said project is proposed prior to requesting Release of Funds.

The Finding of No Significant Impact is based on the following:

There are no known negative environmental consequences related to the demolition and removal of the existing structure. The Environmental Review Record which documents the Environmental Review of this project is available for public examination at the town hall during normal business hours.

Public Comments on Finding

All interested agencies, groups and persons disagreeing with this decision are invited to submit written comments respecting the environmental impacts of the described project to the offices of the Town of Mtn. Lake Park and to the Department of Housing and Community Development. All such comments must be received no later than December 18, 2000. All comments will be considered and the town will not request the release of funds nor take any action on the project prior to this date.

REQUEST FOR RELEASE OF FUNDS

The Town of Mtn. Lake Park will undertake the project described above with Small Cities Community Development Block Grant Funds. This Notice also certifies that Paul Shockey, serving in the official capacity of Mayor, consents to accept the jurisdiction of the Federal Courts if an action is brought to enforce responsibilities in relation to environmental reviews, decision making, and action; and that these responsibilities have been satisfied. The legal effect of the certification is that upon approval, the town of Mtn. Lake Park may use Small Cities Community Development Block Grant Funds and the Maryland Department of Housing and Community Development will have satisfied its responsibilities under the National Environmental Policy Act of 1969.

Objections to Release of Funds

Objections to the release of funds will be accepted by the Department of Housing and Community Development; only if it is on one of the following bases: (a) that the certification was not in fact executed by the Certifying Officer; or (b) that the town of Mtn. Lake Park's Environmental Review Record for the project indicated an omission of a required decision, finding or step applicable to the program in the Environmental Review process, or (c) no opportunity was given to the Advisory Council on Historic Preservation or its Executive Director to review the effect of the project on a property listed on the National Register of Historic Places, or found to be eligible for such listing by the Secretary of the Interior, in accordance with 36 CFR Part 800(d), Objections by a Federal Agency. All interested agencies, groups and persons disagreeing with this decision are invited to submit written comments to the town of Mtn. Lake Park and to the SUBCUBS Program Coordinator, Department of Housing and Community Development, 100 Community Place, Crownsville, Maryland 21032. All such comments must be received no later than January 2, 2001.

Garrett Community College Position Announcements Massage Therapy Adjunct Instructors

November 15, 2000

Garrett Community College is seeking a person or persons to fill adjunct instructor positions noted below. These positions will be filled for the Spring/Summer 2001 term. Individuals will be contracted with the College by course. Responsibilities include participation with students in classroom/clinical environments, assisting students to meet course competencies through professional observation, evaluation and feedback, development and implementation of lesson plans to meet course objectives, and a willingness to become part of a teaching team. The ideal candidate(s) will have excellent communication skills, people skills, and a thorough understanding of the practice of Massage Therapy. Additional qualifications include state license/National Massage Therapy certification with a minimum of two years experience. An Associate's Degree in health or social science area and previous experience in training-related delivery is preferred. These positions do not earn institutional seniority or benefits, except those required by federal and state law. Salary varies based on course length.

POSITION 1 - Co-Instructor of Body Mechanics I & H. Body Mechanics I focuses on appropriate use of practitioner body mechanics to support the physical movements of massage therapy including principles of movement, stance, strength, and flexibility with an emphasis on prevention of back injuries. Body Mechanics II focuses on the practical application of stance, movement, and breath during a deep tissue massage session. These are one-day courses. Body Mechanics II will be offered Spring 2001 term. This instructor will work with the lead instructor who is a physical therapist.

POSITION 2 - The instructor position is contracted for the semester and the specific course will be Massage Therapy: Anatomy and Physiology III. The course is a lecture course with focus on the anatomy and physiology of the trunk, the muscular and skeletal structures of the spine and rib cage, and the respiratory, digestive, and circulatory systems. Students enrolled in this course are also enrolled in a companion practicum course. This is a semester long course which meets one evening per week during the Summer 2001 term.

POSITION 3 - This position is the lead instructor position for Bodywork and the Psyche. This course is a lecture course with some practical application. The focus is exploration of the relationship between tactile sensations of bodywork and the processing of the mind. This course meets evenings for 6 weeks during Summer 2001.

To apply, send a cover letter, current resume, copy of current license/certification, and names of 3 professional references to: Garrett Community College, Attn: Thomas H. Kierstead, MS, P.O. Box 151, McHenry, MD 21541. EOE. If you have questions, call 301-387-3084.

TRAILBLAZERS by Emily Cosner Reporter

The November meeting of the Trailblazers 4-H Club took place at Yough Glades Elementary School. Plans were made for the club's Christmas dinner, which will be held at 7 p.m. Friday, Dec. 1. Members signed up to bring items for the dinner. Names were drawn for the dinner's gift exchange. Club members decided to donate money to the Warm the Children Fund.

Enrollment forms were distributed. Sarah and Jennifer Cosner gave demonstration presentations on their sewing projects. Linda Rush distributed a list of events club members attended over the past year to assist in the preparation of record books.

NORTH STAR by Jerry Cosner, reporter

North Star 4-H Club met November 14 at the Accident fire hall. There were 11 members and one guest, and six adults present.

Election of officers was held and the new officers are: president, Rachel Schmitt; vice president, Becky Wiles; secretary, Cassie Adkins; treasurer, Duane Rice; reporter, Tonya Broadwater; and photographer, Kara Savage.

The club voted to go to the Goodwill Mennonite Home on December 9. They will be meeting December 1 at the home of Darlene Schmidt to make a craft for the nursing home

4-H CLUB TO PRESENT GIFTS - Pictured are the members of the Red House 4-H Club displaying one of the many gifts they will be presenting to the residents of the Dennett Road Manor Nursing Home for Christmas. ## Traffic Signals Planned At DCL, Estimates Noted

The Garrett County commissioners this week discussed the furtherance of two stoplight projects on Rt. 219 near Deep Creek Lake. Estimates of the county's costs for the two traffic controls were given to the county by the Maryland Department of Transportation in the form of a letter from Fred Crozier, district engineer for the SHIA.

The first project is the installation of an "intersection control beacon" at the intersection of Rt. 219 and Mosser Road. The beacon will be built with the capability of eventually being upgraded to a full signal, according to Crozier. The county's share of the cost for this project is 50%, or approximately $20,000.

The second project is a traffic signal at the intersection of Rt. 219 and Glendale Road. The county's share is 33%, which equals about $28,300. The SHIA will be footing 66% of the total cost, which is $85,000.

The next step in the process for SHIA is to submit traffic engineering design requests with supporting data to the Maryland Office of Traffic and Safety for review and approval. After that office has reviewed and prioritized each project for funding, the local SHIA staff will announce the schedule for the design and construction phases. This process is expected to take at least one year, officials said.

Developer Buys Oakland Tract For CVS Store

Site preparation began this week for a new CVS Pharmacy store after a Georgia-based developer's recent acquisition of a 1½-acre tract on the west side of the intersection of Garrett Highway and Memorial Drive. Timber Development Corporation of Marietta, Ga., is demolishing four structures on the site in advance of constructing a new 10,500-square foot CVS Pharmacy store and, after the store opens in early summer, the two CVS stores currently operating in the Oakland area will be closed.

Timber Development paid a total of approximately $500,000 for the four

WHEN CHILDREN SPEAK, Santa listens. And the jolly old elf has been doing a lot of listening all over Garrett County the past several days. This photo was taken last Friday at the Flower Loft in Grantville during the town's community holiday celebration. Soon afterward, Mr. Claus had to "fly" to Oakland to make an appearance in that town's Main Street Christmas parade the same evening, and to continue to accept gift requests from local little people. Santa reminds all that there are only 17 shopping days left until Christmas.

MLP Man Struck By Car Monday Along Md. Hwy.

A Mtn. Lake Park man remains hospitalized after he was struck by a vehicle on Maryland Highway Monday evening, according to the Garrett County Sheriff's Office. Deputies are continuing to investigate the mishap, although no charges have been filed to date.

Johnny Jason Thomas, 39, reportedly stepped into the path of an oncoming vehicle at the intersection of Maryland Highway and H Street in front of C.P. Martin's store at approximately 7:43 p.m. He was struck by a 1990 Dodge Spirit operated by 79-year-old Gertrude Gladys Rexrode, Loch Lynn, which was approaching from the east.

Thomas was transported by the Southern Rescue Squad to Garrett County Memorial Hospital, and from there was flown to Ruby Memorial Hospital, Morgantown, W.Va. He remains hospitalized there in critical condition. Rexrode was not injured in the accident.

In other motor vehicle accidents of the past week, a Saturday morning mishap closed Garrett Highway in the Deep Creek Lake area for almost two hours after a dump truck overturned near Bill's Marine Service and spilled a load of salt. The 10:30 a.m. accident occurred when the truck, operated by Robert Eugene Collier, 37, Accident, was struck head-on by a 1987 Plymouth sedan that had reportedly crossed the centerline.

The driver of the Plymouth, Betty Louise DeWitt, 76, Oakland, and Collier were both transported by Southern Rescue to Garrett Memorial Hospital, where DeWitt remains hospitalized in stable condition. Collier was admitted, but later released.

Responding to the scene along with the SGRS were the Northern Rescue Squad, the Deep Creek Volunteer Fire Company, the Maryland State Police, and the Maryland State Highway Administration. The accident is still being investigated by the sheriff's office, and no charges have been filed.

Charges were filed against a Deer Park man

Garrett Co. Most Likely Will Not Join 2001 Bi-County Tourism Plan

The specially appointed five-member committee to study Speaker of the House Casper Taylor's proposal to join tourism efforts of Allegany and Garrett counties has met twice with its peer committee in Allegany County. The local component has thus far maintained that Garrett County will not "get on board" with the proposal this year, according to Jerry Geisler, a member of the local group.

"There are some positive things about the idea, but we're not nearly ready to join in," Geisler said. "We might be interested as early as next year, but there are a lot of complicated issues that must be worked out first."

The proposal, spearheaded by Taylor, would put Garrett County into the Heritage Area designation, which is already established in Allegany County. The legislation would create a bi-county "Mountain Maryland Tourism Promotion Council," funneling state and federal money to the western Maryland region for tourism, rather than dividing the funds between the two counties. This new council would fall under the proposed Canal Place "Gateways" Preservation and Development Authority. (The Canal Place Preservation and Development Authority [minus "Gateways"] has already been established.)

Taylor had hoped to join the counties in time for legislation during the 2001 General Assembly, but local officials were concerned about ramifications of the proposal. The funding of the new council was a concern, as well as the possible loss of Garrett County's autonomy in the area of tourism. Officials spoke out about the current rise in tourists to the area, and the argument was made that the Garrett County Chamber of Commerce and other county entities are already successful in promoting

OTT WELCOMES THE FARNDALE TOWNSWOMEN — A farce of the first degree will be presented at Our Town Theatre in Oakland next week, with performances slated for Dec. 13-17 at 8 p.m. each evening. The show is titled — get ready — The Farndale Avenue Housing Estate Townswomen's Guild Dramatic Society's Production of A Christmas Carol. Whew. Theatre officials noted this week that Dec. 15 is already sold out, so persons who wish to attend the show should call to make reservations as soon as possible.

Michael Horton, Myrna Paris To Join Garrett Choral Society In "Messiah"

The Garrett Choral Society will present G.F. Handel's Messiah this weekend, Dec. 9 and 10, with four featured singers performing as soloists. The concerts will be given at the Faith Evangelical Free Church on Saturday, Dec. 9, at 7:30 p.m., and on Sunday, Dec. 10, at 2 p.m. Tickets are $8 for adults (youth under 12 will be admitted free). They are available for purchase at Gregg's Pharmacy in Oakland, or at the door.

Michael Horton of California and Mtn. Lake Park will serve as the tenor soloist, and Myrna Paris of Pittsburgh will sing the mezzo soprano solos. As was reported in last week's issue of The Republican, California native Kristin Peterson will sing the lyric soprano solos, and Garrett Countian David Callis will be the bass soloist.

Interstate 68 Closed When Tractor Trailer Dumps Cargo Of Ice Cream

A tractor trailer accident on Interstate 68 Tuesday morning dumped a load of ice cream along the highway near the 2-mile marker, requiring the State Highway Administration to close the highway to traffic for approximately one hour.

Truck operator Brandon King, 24, Fort Wayne, Ind., told Tfc. Charles Ward of the McHenry Barrack of Maryland State Police that he was traveling eastbound in the "slow lane" when a dark colored van swerved into his lane at 12:43 a.m., causing him to lose control of his vehicle. The truck subsequently left the right roadside and crashed through the guardrail, spilling the contents of the trailer.

King was transported to Garrett Memorial Hospital by Northern Rescue Squad, where he was treated and released. Friendsville Volunteer Fire Department also responded to the scene.

The operator was charged with negligent driving and a log book violation.

Vehicle Strikes Tree
Todd Allen Tasker, 19, Swanton, was taken to the hospital after his vehicle struck a tree along Green Glade Road Sunday, Dec. 3, at 1:10 a.m. According to Tfc. L. Ward, Tasker was traveling northbound near Hazelhurst Road, when his vehicle left the right side of the road and struck a tree.

Tasker was taken to Garrett Memorial Hospital by Southern Rescue Squad. He was reportedly treated and released. Deer Park Volunteer Fire Department also responded to the scene.

Two Taken to Hospital
Two 16-year-old girls were taken to Garrett Memorial Hospital following an accident on Bumble Bee Road yesterday afternoon.

According to a police report, the girls were

Two 16-year-old girls were taken to Garrett Memorial Hospital following an accident on Bumble Bee Road yesterday afternoon.

According to a police report, the accident occurred when the tractor trailer, operated by Todd Allen Tasker, 19, Swanton, was taken to the hospital after his vehicle struck a tree along Green Glade Road Sunday, Dec. 3, at 1:10 a.m. According to Tfc. L. Ward, Tasker was traveling northbound near Hazelhurst Road, when his vehicle left the right side of the road and struck a tree.

Tasker was taken to Garrett Memorial Hospital by Southern Rescue Squad. He was reportedly treated and released. Deer Park Volunteer Fire Department also responded to the scene.

Swanton Woman Arrested After School Assault

A Swanton woman faces charges after a Monday incident on the grounds of Broad Ford Elementary School in Oakland.

Marilyn Marie Storey, 46, was arrested by detectives with the Garrett Bureau of Investigation in the wake of the alleged assault, which took place near the school entrance. Storey is accused of assaulting another woman near the school entrance.

Storey was jailed on charges of second degree assault, disorderly conduct, and disrupting school activities. She was released from the Garrett County Detention Center after she posted a $10,000 unsecured bond as set by a district court commissioner.

In other sheriff's news, two Friendsville men were arrested on drug charges by detectives with the Garrett County Narcotics Task Force Saturday evening near Friendsville.

Neil Miller and Carl Friend, both 22, were stopped in their vehicle at approximately 9 p.m. With the assistance of Maryland State Police troopers, Task Force detectives located suspected marijuana in the car. Each subject was charged with possession of marijuana and drug paraphernalia.

Miller and Friend were both released on their own recognizance.

An Oakland man remains detained in jail on charges of violation of an ex parte order and disorderly conduct that resulted from a Tuesday night domestic-related incident.

Harry William Mayle, 64, was taken into custody when deputies arrived at 342 Blue Ribbon Road to investigate a disturbance. There they found Mayle inside the home arguing with other family members, even though a court order was reportedly on file barring Mayle from the residence. Mayle is being held on a $5,000 bond.

BIG BEAR BAGGED IN PRESTON COUNTY — Oakland resident Eric Moyer took this 480-pound black bear Tuesday morning in Preston County, W.Va. The bear was harvested on the property of Grimm Lumber after Moyer, who had been observing the bruin for several months to learn its habits, was able to begin tracking it in the snow on Saturday. After coming onto a very fresh track early Tuesday morning, Moyer contacted Pleasant Valley tracker Ern Schrock and his sons. The Schrocks, who often track problem bears for Maryland's Department of Natural Resources, were able to pick up the track almost immediately and the bear was located a short time later. Moyer brought the bear down with two shots from his Remington 7mm Magnum from a short distance. Moyer plans to have the bear mounted in a full body mount, a big project in itself. Moyer is employed as a correctional officer at the Garrett County Detention Center.

Autumn Glory Fest Critique Slated Dec. 13

A meeting to critique this year's Autumn Glory Festival will be hosted by the Garrett County Chamber of Commerce on Wednesday, Dec. 13, in the Garrett Community College cafeteria, beginning at 6 p.m. While invitations have been sent to individuals who have taken part in former AGF meetings, the public is welcome to attend and offer suggestions to improve the festival, according to a chamber spokesperson.

Oakland mayor Asa McCain has been appointed as the chamber's AGF task force chairperson, and Jeff McCauley will continue to serve as the parade task force chair. A similar meeting was held last year, resulting in what the chamber spokesperson said were several additions and changes to the festival.

All interested persons are invited to attend, but should RSVP to the chamber at 301-387-4386 so meeting arrangements can be planned.

Driver Assaults Police Officer During Arrest

A Friendsville man, arrested early last Saturday morning for driving while intoxicated, assaulted a Maryland State Police officer who attempted to handcuff him following a field sobriety test.

According to the report filed at the McHenry barracks, Brandon Baumgardner, 22, Friendsville, was operating his vehicle in an erratic manner when Tfc. K. Stakem, with back-up from Tfc. R. Sharp, stopped him in a McHenry parking lot. The suspect reportedly violently resisted arrest and was sprayed with pepper spray, with little effect.

The suspect was taken to the ground several times, but managed to get back up, the officers reported, and struck Sharp in the face twice with a closed fist.

While the two officers were attempting to restrain Baumgardner, his two passengers, Heather Umbel, 18, and Sherry Stanton, 30, both of Friendsville, refused to obey an order not to interfere, the report said. Umbel allegedly pushed Stakem, and both women were said to be screaming and crowding the officers.

Baumgardner, Umbel, and Stanton were all arrested at the scene.

BOE Monthly Meeting Slated

The Garrett County Board of Education will hold its regular monthly meeting on Tuesday, Dec. 12, in the Board of Education meeting room. The board will meet in closed session from 4:05 to 5:30 p.m. and reconvene in open session immediately thereafter.

The public is invited to attend. Time is set aside at 4 p.m. and 7 p.m. for public comment and participation on any topic.

Tuesday's meeting will include recognition of Rob Sharps of the Advisory Committee on Education and review of the Maryland School Performance Report.

Arrest Made On Parental Child Abuse Charges

Grantsville resident Tracy Eugene Suter, 30, was arrested Tuesday evening by Maryland State Police from the McHenry barracks. The police arrested Suter on a warrant for parental child abuse and second degree assault.

The arrest warrant was based on an application resulting from an investigation by Tfc. S.D. Bennett, the Garrett Bureau of Investigation, and Child Protective Services of the Department of Social Services. The investigation reportedly revealed that Suter had struck his 5-year-old son in the face several times, causing visible bruising on both sides of the child's face and around one of his eyes.

Suter was taken before a court commissioner and held on $10,000 bond in the Garrett County Jail.

The charge of child abuse carries a maximum penalty of 15 years, and the charge of second degree assault carries a penalty of 10 years.

Prince. He also starred in Cats and Jesus Christ, Superstar.

Most recently, Horton collaborated with singer Linda Ronstadt on a Sony Classical CD, featuring glass harmonic artist Dennis James. He has appeared with the Long Beach Opera, Opera Pacific, Pittsburgh Opera, Lake George Opera Festival, and the Cincinnati Opera, among many others.

Horton has sung on a number of movie soundtracks, including those of Men in Black, Independence Day, Waterworld, Extreme Measures, Mars Attacks!, and Inspector Gadget. Since 1983, he has also provided the voices of several characters on the popular PBS series "Mr. Rogers' Neighborhood."

The concert is being presented with the assistance of the Garrett County Arts Council, the Maryland State Arts Council, the Stanley P. Smith Family Foundation, and the Sprenger-Lang Foundation. The group is under the direction of Nancy K. Learcy, and will be accompanied by the West Virginia University Symphonette.

A daughter was born December 2 at Garrett County Memorial Hospital to John Friend and Lisa Curtis, Oakland.

Ida Reckner, 95 Years Young, Still Fulfills Her Civic Duty

NINE AND 1/2 DECADES of living hasn't slowed Ida Reckner down significantly, especially when it comes to fulfilling her civic duty as a voter. The photo above was taken during the now infamous 2000 election back on November 7 at Garrett Community College.

At the age of 95, Ida Reckner, Bittinger, has participated in quite a few elections, but like all other voters has never witnessed any like the 2000 presidential election. She has not always voted the straight ticket, but made her choices for the candidate whom she felt had the best qualifications and principles, and whom she decided was most capable of fulfilling the duties of the office which the candidate was seeking.

Ida says she remembers voting in Pennsylvania while she and her husband John resided near Republic, Pa., during the early years of their marriage. John was employed there as an assistant master machinist, but relinquished a good job to return to Garrett County in 1931 to care for his elderly parents, and to assist them in operating the Reckner farm near Bittinger. John and Ida later purchased the farm, and managed it until John's death in 1981.

They had two children, John Jr., who succumbed to lung cancer at the age of 58, and Donna, who resides with her husband, Jim Glotfelty, on the neighboring Elwood Glotfelty farm. The Reckners also have seven grandchildren, 18 great-grandchildren, and two great-great granddaughters. Ida returned to teaching when the shortage of teachers occurred during the World War II era. She was principal of the one-room, seven-grade Beachy School.

school in Bittinger, later transferring to Accident Elementary, where she mainly taught second grade. She retired after 32 years in the teaching profession.

Ida has always enjoyed gardening and working outdoors on the farm. Until a few years ago, she enjoyed traveling and making quilts for her children and grandchildren, all of which were blue-ribbon and Best-of-Show winners at the Garrett County Fair. Ida faithfully attends Sunday morning worship services at St. John's Lutheran Church in the Meadow Mountain area near Swanton, where she has been a lifelong member.

Ida said she hopes the "political wrangling" will soon be ended, and that "fair and honest election results" will have determined who will next serve the nation as president and vice president.

When Beachy was closed, she taught the primary grades at the two-room port, the driver lost control of the vehicle on loose gravel and left the roadway, striking an embankment.

Deep Creek Volunteer Fire Company responded along with Northern Rescue Squad. No charges were filed.

Vehicle Overtakes

A 1987 Ford Bronco II, operated by John Christopher, 20, Baltimore, overturned Saturday afternoon, sending the driver and a passenger to Memorial Hospital in Cumberland for treatment of injuries.

According to the police report, Christopher was northbound on Rock Lodge Road at 4:24 p.m. when he lost control of the vehicle, which crossed the center lane, struck a tree, spun around down an embankment, and overturned.

Christopher and a passenger, Richard Manley, 20, Rock Hall, were taken by Northern Rescue Squad to Memorial Hospital. Bittinger Volunteer Fire Department also responded to the scene.

CDS ARRESTS

William Lance Dew, 53, Charleston, W.Va., was arrested yesterday at 4 p.m. and charged with possession of marijuana and paraphernalia. Dew was charged following a traffic stop while he was traveling westbound on I-68 at the Casselman River.

Ilt. LeMay reported that Dew, who was traveling at 77.6 mph in a 65 mph zone, was observed to have ashes and suspected marijuana on the front of his shirt when he was stopped. A search of the vehicle revealed several small containers of marijuana and rolling papers, LeMay said. Dew was released on a $500 bond.

David Eric Peterson, 22,

Morgantown, W.Va., was stopped for a traffic violation while operating a 1990 Subaru on November 25 around 1:15 a.m. The investigating officer reported that upon contacting the driver he noticed an odor of burnt marijuana, and that a search of the vehicle revealed residue of suspected in a 35mm film canister. Peterson was arrested and charged for possession of marijuana. He was later released on $500 bond.

What Can We Learn?...

The outcome of the 2000 presidential election remains undecided as of today, a full month after election day, and oh, what a complicated mess it has become. However, we can rest assured that the 167 lawyers — yes, that is an accurate number — who now are working on the case, along with umpteen judges at all levels of our judicial system, will ultimately force a decision, and most likely within the next few days.

We have grown exceedingly weary of the analysis, predictions, and descriptions of all the legal options that have dominated the airways since Nov. 7, so we have no desire to add our own. Rather, we prefer to focus on the positive effects of this chaos and what we as a nation can, or should, learn from it.

Certainly one of the positive effects has been the interest and educational opportunities that have been generated. Probably at no time in our history has there been so much inquiry and learning about the Electoral College, for example. School teachers all over the nation have been fielding numerous questions from their students, and conducting civics and social studies lessons, about the electoral process.

We sincerely hope that the crisis also generates some sweeping reform in the election process, i.e., uniformity in the presidential portion of the ballot, and the elimination of any kind of a ballot that involves the punching of holes, chads, and "butterflies." We can take up-close photographs of the surface of Mars, we can be in Washington, D.C., in the morning and in Los Angeles in the afternoon, and we can cure any number of once-deadly illnesses. With all of our technological capabilities, certainly we can come up with a common, near-infallible ballot.

Based upon the same reasoning, surely we can utilize computer technology to allow persons to vote on election day, no matter where they happen to be on the planet, and thus basically do away with absentee ballot. We can do almost every other transaction online; why not voting?

We also learned that over 200 students at Marquette University in Wisconsin voted more than once on election day, just to see if they could get away with it. One young man voted four times. Such behavior happens to be a federal offense, but we would hope that a major tightening of security and procedures at the polling places would be another consequence of the 2000 election.

The crisis is bad enough in and of itself, but it would be a much greater travesty if nothing good came out of it.

Letters to the Editor

To the Editor:

I spent from June 15 until October 3 at Deep Creek Lake helping a friend's family take care of a very ill parent. He passed away Oct. 3. I would like for everyone in Garrett County to know just how great Hospice was in their help to me and to the family. They became part of our family. They helped us cope with everything we had to face and helped Ben to die with dignity. I am not a local, but was never treated as an outsider. Hospice spent hours with us and was with us at the end.

Thanks to Cheryl, Wanda, Jennifer, and especially, Ethel! Also Ida and Paul Yoder—volunteers who gave me some much needed time off.

Garrett County has one of the best hospices I've seen. It is a small group, but very caring and loving. Keep up the good work. Thanks so much for allowing me to become a part of you and Oakland. I'll never forget you.

With sincere appreciation and affection,
Dennise Cristales
Rochester, N.Y.

To the Editor:

Community Action, Area Agency on Aging, would like to thank the following people who were so generous to take time out of their Thanksgiving Holiday to prepare and deliver a meal to a homebound frail elderly person in their community: Janet White, Lisa Miller, Jane Nolan, Donna Parks, Marie Skipper, Linda Hartman, Shirley Whitman, Mary Donaldson, Annette San Julian, Carol Walker, Sharon Butler, Stephanie Shaffer, Debbie Hinebaugh, and Pat Williamson.

This program was started because we realized that many of our home-delivered meal clients were home alone during the holidays. We hope that this was a rewarding experience for all the volunteers. On behalf of the Area Agency on Aging and the recipients of the Thanksgiving meal, we would like to wish you the best holiday season ever.

To the Editor:

We all know it is almost that time of year when the snow starts to fly. Being a snowplow operator for the State Highway Administration, I have seen my share of brave individuals trying some daredevil stunts on the road! Just some tips to help the public along, because that's why we're out there, to make sure you get to your destination safely.

Stay well back from snowplows to avoid having your vehicle hit by sanding material; plow drivers can't see directly behind the trucks. Snowplows travel 30 to 50 mph slower than normal traffic, so reduce your speed. Don't drive through whiteouts. These snow clouds can be caused by plowing snow. Be patient, conditions will change so you can pass safely. Don't assume you'll have good traction because the road looks sanded. The sand can sink into the compacted snow, leaving a slick surface. Keep your gas tank full. Watch bridges, overpasses, and shaded areas; they may be slick. Turn on your headlights to see and be seen.

Remember, snowplow operators are working for you and not to get in your way. Hope everyone has a safe winter season.

Sincerely,
Dean Sullivan
Mtn. Lake Park

To the Editor:

The recent decision by the DNR and DCL Planning Board to permit several 62-foot tour boats on Deep Creek Lake is clearly wrong. These boats are too big, too dangerous, and will cause property destruction and substantial environmental degradation.

1. The huge wake will swamp kayakers and canoes and likely drown young swimmers. Every day on the lake will now be like the fourth of July — rough and dangerous.

2. The wake will cause docked boats to slam into the docks and will accelerate soil run-off along the shoreline.

3. The huge wakes generated by these behemoths will reduce small boat use and force boaters to purchase larger boats that will withstand the deep chop. Fishing in small 12- and 14-foot rowboats will become dangerous, if not impossible.

4. The 62-foot boats will likely carry over 100 people many times per day, and the additional 300 cars (6 x 50) will further congest the roads in McHenry or at the Nature Center, wherever these elephants are tied. There will be no parking for others in McHenry or at the Nature Center.

5. The constant drone of the huge diesel engines will be an intrusion upon peace and quiet for swimmers, fishermen and homeowners.

6. The addition of approximately 600 people each day to the lake will make the lines at restaurants even longer. Their parking lots will always be full. The purpose of these huge boats is to benefit Mr. Browning and other businesses, but it should not be done at the expense of recreational users of the lake and property owners.

7. If one of these huge boats crashes into a boat or rocks, the escaping oil and hundreds of gallons of diesel fuel will kill the fish and make the lake unusable. Does Mr. Browning have an insurance policy that will cover this multi-million dollar loss? Exxon Valdez is coming to Deep Creek.

8. Every tourist brochure distributed by the county depicts sailing at Deep Creek, but because of the huge barges generated by these barges, sailing will be challenged, if not impossible. The lake will smell like the pumps at a truck stop because of the large volume of diesel exhaust.

9. With such extensive impact to the lake and surrounding property, surely a federal environmental impact statement is needed before a final permit is issued.

10. The noise and destruction caused by these huge boats will lower the value of each homeowner's property by $20,000. Perhaps this can be recovered in a private nuisance suit.

In conclusion, those of us who have been coming to Deep Creek Lake for many years and who live there realize that it is a tiny, beautiful, and fragile body of water. It will be substantially damaged and altered by 62-foot tour boats. Such huge vessels belong on the Ohio River, Lake Erie, or the Atlantic Ocean, not on little Deep Creek Lake.

The United States Constitution was ratified in 1789. In part it determines how the president is chosen. The founding fathers were divided on this issue. One faction wanted the president to be elected by popular vote. Others wanted Congress or the governors to select the president. Deadlocked, they compromised by creating a process we know as the Electoral College.

Thus, while legislators at the local and state level are elected by popular vote, the president is not. Instead, we vote for a slate of electors. The electors cast their votes for president according to state laws, which vary from state to state.

In most elections, the Electoral College has mirrored the popular vote. Not this year. It appears that Mr. Gore has won the popular vote while Mr. Bush will win the Electoral College. While the "Florida Follies" are at the center of the controversy, it is one of three states in which the electors are still in doubt after nearly a month. American industry would not tolerate such delay and inaccuracy. Neither should the voters.

The public focus has caused some states to review their ballot tabulating equipment, as well as confusing or conflicting voting regulations. More important, the value of the Electoral College should be reconsidered. If the presidential selection process were being devised today, few would suggest that such a system should be used. In fact, the entire presidential nomination/campaign/election process is a remnant of the 18th century. It drags on over a year and costs billions of dollars. The endless TV ads, mass mailings, cross-country tours, etc., cost far more than our five or fifty dollar contributions would support. Campaigns are funded by large contributors who want to control the selection process.

Public financing of elections would go far to return the entire selection process to the citizens. Thus far, Congress has not found the foresight or courage to consider campaign finance reform. Senator McCain said during the primary season that no significant progress would be made on major issues such as tax reform or health care until there is campaign finance reform.

In the land of the free and the home of instant communications, state primaries should be replaced with a national primary. Responsible third party candidates should be heard in national debates. After all, millions of taxpayer dollars help underwrite their campaigns. The campaign process should be confined to several weeks of publicly financed debates and widely distributed position papers on the major issues. Such a system would be more informative, take less time, and cost less money. Most important, control of the nomination/election process would be wrested from the hands of large contributors, which should produce candidates who will think and act for the good of the country.

There have been articles in the newspaper and pieces on the radio about the sentence that may be imposed upon this drunk driver. The Cumberland Times reported in a press release, undoubtedly from the Garrett County State's Attorney's Office, that the driver could get up to five years in jail, as well as a fine of $5,000. The fact is that a hearing was held on Monday, Dec. 4, in which the state's attorney accepted a plea agreement that will sentence the drunk driver to only 30 days in jail. The 30-day sentence imposed upon the drunk driver whose negligence took the life of this 15-year-old girl will include being allowed release time from jail to work on the work release program. In essence,

PUTTING THE HOUSE BACK TOGETHER

Grandma was here this morning helping me put books back on shelves. For the first time in over two years I am writing this column in my study, the Oxford Room, named after that great city and university where I studied now 20 years ago.

The floors and baseboard have been refinished. The walls wear a new coat of paint. The rug cleaner was here on Tuesday. Since then I have been returning furniture to the room, some pieces to the places where they had previously sat, and some rearranged to accommodate other furniture and new needs.

Since the middle of August the house has been topsy-turvy, but since the end of September it has been coming together. It is perhaps an exercise in the analysis of creation when one can discern the difference between disintegrating chaos and a chaos moving toward integration.

Today is the first day since I have lived here — since 1984 — that all rooms of the house have been used. The house has grown in the meantime. Even then there was the one bedroom which was put to no better use than as a kind of attic. It was a default attic at that, things stored there because they were never put into their proper place.

Much still needs to be put somewhere other than in a box on the floor, but my vision of this house begins to take full material expression. I say "my vision" of the house, which I named "Love-in-the-Ruins" when I first moved here. I hope it is not merely my vision of this house, but the vision of the builders before me.

There was the original builder sometime between 1800 and 1825. There was the first remodeler circa 1900 when a 600-square-foot addition was joined to the original 800-square-foot house. I have added and altered the house according to what I think my predecessors had in mind.
